PREFACE.

THE Publisher having been authorised by the Government of Bengal, at the recommendation of the Sudder Court, to reprint, in one Volume Octavo, the CIRCULAR ORDERS passed by the Nizamut Adawlut for the Lower and North-Western Provinces, from 1796 to 1853, he has much pleasure in offering to the public this Volume, which contains the CIRCULAR ORDERS issued by both Courts now in force only; all such as have been rescinded and superseded, or become obsolete by subsequent Legislative Enactments have been omitted.

With a view to prevent misapprehension, the Publisher has, with much care, prepared and appended a list, showing the CIRCULAR ORDERS which have been omitted in the Volume, with reasons for the omission, and he therefore hopes that the work will be found useful and perfect.

As in the Dewanny Edition, the original numbers of the CIRCULAR ORDERS passed by the Nizamut Adawlut have been also retained in this Volume, and notes have been added for facility of reference to other orders bearing upon the same subject.

THE CIRCULAR ORDERS

PASSED BY

THE NIZAMUT ADAWLUT,

AND COMMUNICATED TO THE

COURTS OF CIRCUIT AND ZILLAH AND CITY MAGISTRATES

REGISTER OF THAT COURT,

FROM 1796 TO 1853.

VOL. I.

TO THE COURTS OF CIRCUIT.

March 24, 1796.

No. 2.

Courts of circuit and magistrates to keep separate, as far as possible, the proceedings on the trial and commitment of prisoners upon distinct charges.

THE Court of Nizamut Adawlut having had before them numerous cases in which several charges against prisoners, preferred by separate prosecutors, have been blended and proceeded upon in one trial, and being of opinion that the trials of prisoners upon distinct charges, especially where the prosecutors are also distinct, should, as far as possible, be kept separate, as well for the sake of perspicuity, as to avoid an unnecessary occupation of the time of the courts of circuit, and their own, in cases where a prisoner may have been convicted of an offence rendering him liable to capital punishment, they have directed me to communicate this remark to you for your general observance in future trials, and to desire that you will circulate it to the several magistrates within your division for their guidance in future commitments.

Convicts to be employed on public works with what exceptions.

THE Court of Nizamut Adawlut, having ascertained from their law officers, that the employment of all convicts, sentenced to imprisonment, in the repair of the public roads, or in other similar public works, is consistent with the Mahomedan law, and being of opinion that such employment must be salutary to the prisoners, they have thought proper to resolve, that all prisoners of the description above mentioned shall be so employed, with an exception to any person who may be incapable of bodily labour from age, sickness, or other infirmity; and accordingly desire you will issue the necessary orders to the several magistrates within your division.

NOTE.—See Nos. 8, 44, and 98, Vol. I., and No. 99, Vol. IV.

No 5.

May 5, 1796.

Courts of circuit to require from magistrates a return of the execution of orders for the restoration of stolen property found on convicts.

THE Court of Nizamut Adawlut, adverting to the orders which frequently form part of their sentence for the restoration of stolen property found on he prisoners convicted, and being of opinion that the execution of such orders should be certified by the zillah and city magistrates, either in the return endorsed by them on the warrant of the court of circuit, or in a subsequent return to be made as soon as the execution of the order may admit; you are accordingly directed to require the magistrates of your division to certify to you, in the manner above stated, the execution of all orders of the foregoing description, and are to be careful that such certificates are preserved among the records of your court.

The magistrates authorized to transmit monthly report required by Regulation IX. 1793, in Persian with an English abstract.

THE Court, adverting to the convenience that may arise to the several magistrates from being allowed to transmit the monthly reports required from them by Regulation IX. 1793, in Persian, with an abstract only in English, instead of sending the whole in English as at present, and being of opinion that detailed reports in Persian, with English abstracts, will equally answer every purpose intended by the reports in question, they have directed me to inform you, that you are authorised to transmit such, if more convenient to you.

Form of list to accompany convicts sent for transportation to the magistrate of 24-Pergunnahs.

THE Court of Nizamut Adawlut have directed me to desire, that whenever you may in future send down convicts for transportation to the jail of the 24-Pergunnahs, you will transmit with them to the magistrate of the said zillah, an accurate list, containing the names of the several prisoners, the dates of their sentences respectively, and the period for which they are ordered to be transported, according to the form herewith furnished for your guidance :

List of Prisoners sentenced by the Nizamut Adawlut to be transported.

Names of Prisoners, and of their Fathers.	Crime.	Date of Sentence.	Period of Transportation.
Teencowry, son of Punchoo,	Murder.	Sept. 1, 1796.	For life.
Gungaram, son of Dirumpershaud, ...	Gang robbery.	Oct 1, 1796.	For 14 years.

No. 8.

Magistrates to report any instances of prisoners whom they may judge it proper to exempt from the operation of the preceding order for the employment of con-

THE Nizamut Adawlut being of opinion, that cases may occur, though but seldom, in which it would not be proper to enforce their Circular Order of the 6th of April last, for employing all convicts sentenced to imprisonment in the repairs of the public roads or other similar public works, with an exception to such as are incapable of bodily labour from age, sickness, or other infirmity, have directed me to desire that you will instruct the several magistrates within your division, in case any convict, now, or hereafter, sentenced to imprisonment, should, from his rank and situation of life or otherwise, appear to them an improper object to be employed on the public roads, or other similar works, agreeably to the said order, to report the same, with the circumstances of the case, for the special orders of this Court, and in the mean time to suspend the execution of the former order.

No. 9.

November 30, 1796.

Prisoners committed by a magistrate after the arrival of the court of circuit at his station, should be tried at the session then pending, provided the trial be ready to be proceeded upon.

A QUESTION having been submitted to the Nizamut Adawlut, whether a prisoner committed by the zillah magistrates, after the arrival of the court of circuit at his station, is to be tried at the session of the court of circuit then pending, or at the ensuing session, the Court direct me to acquaint you, for your guidance in cases of this nature, that they are of opinion, provided the witnesses are in attendance, and the trial is in every respect ready to be brought before the court of circuit, it should be immediately proceeded upon, in humanity to the prisoner, who must otherwise be kept in confinement till the ensuing jail delivery.

NOTE.—See No. 77 Vol. I. This Circular is still applicable to judges holding quarterly sessions. See also No. 49 of the same Vol.

Magistrates to certify on the record of all examinations and depositions, before whom they are taken.

INSTANCES having occurred in trials referred to the Nizamut Adawlut, in which the confessions of the prisoners have been stated to have been taken in the fouzdaree cutcherry without any specification of the person before whom they have been taken, the Court desire that you will instruct the magistrates of your division to certify upon the record of all examinations of parties and depositions of witnesses before whom such examinations and depositions are taken, and that such certificate be invariably included in the copy of their proceedings transmitted by you on trials referred to this Court.

NOTE.—See Nos. 23 and 58, Vol. I., and para. 20, No. 54, Vol. II.

TO THE COURTS OF CIRCUIT.

December 7, 1797. No. 16.

Courts of circuit to record on their proceedings, that the witnesses have been admonished as directed in Clause 6, Section VII., Regulation IV. 1797.

Also to remind witnesses of the above admonition whenever there appears occasion for it in the course of their examination.

THE Court, adverting to Section VII. of Regulation IV. 1797, and being of opinion that the proceedings of the courts of circuit should notice the admonition to witnesses directed in the 6th clause of that section, in like manner as they notice that witnesses have been sworn, I am directed to desire that in all future trials held before you, you will record on your proceedings that the admonition in question has been repeated to the witnesses as directed in the above Regulation.

2. I am also directed to desire, that you will remind the witnesses examined before you of the above admonition, particularly of that part of it which enjoins them carefully to distinguish what they personally know, from what they may have heard from others, whenever in the course of their examination, there may appear occasion for it.

TO THE COURTS OF CIRCUIT.

April 19, 1798. No. 17.

Courts of circuit, in trials of murder referred to the Nizamut Adawlut, to transmit inquest held on the body of the deceased, or, if no inquest has been held, to notice the omission.

THE Court of Nizamut Adawlut being of opinion, that in trials of murder, the inquest on the body of the deceased, when taken as prescribed in Section IX. of Regulation IV. 1797, is of material use both in ascertaining the fact, and in weighing the credibility of witnesses, they desire, that on all references of such trials to them, you will make it an invariable rule to transmit with your proceedings a translation of the report made to the magistrate of the inquest held upon the body of the deceased, or, if no inquest shall have been held, that you will notice the same in your letter accompanying the trial, with the cause of omission ; calling upon the magistrate, if necessary, for an explanation thereof.

TO THE ZILLAH AND CITY MAGISTRATES.

November 14, 1798. No. 18.

Employment of convicts under a single guard prohibited.

THE Court of Nizamut Adawlut, considering the frequent escape of convicts whilst employed on the roads, or in other places out of jail, under the custody of a single sepoy or burkundaz, have thought it proper to prohibit the employment of any convicts, out of jail, under the custody of a single guard, and direct that the convicts under your charge be on all occasions employed, as far as possible, collectively, under the guard of as many sepoys and burkundazes as can be spared from other duties for the purpose.

Confessions made before magistrates to be attested by three or four respectable witnesses who can read and write.

THE Court of Nizamut Adawlut observing that in many trials which come before them, where the only proofs that can be adduced against the prisoners are their own confessions before the magistrate, these confessions are attested by no more than two witnesses, and that in the event of the death of any one of those witnesses before the trial, the prisoner must be acquitted, I am directed to desire that you will issue circular orders to the several zillah and city magistrates, requiring them to cause all confessions of this description, made before them in future, to be attested generally by four, or at least by three, creditable and respectable witnesses, who can read and write.

No. 25.

Description of the persons of convicts sent to the magistrate of 24-Pergunnahs to be inserted in prescribed list.

THE Court of Nizamut Adawlut being of opinion, that an accurate description of the persons of convicts sentenced to transportation will be of material use in identifying such convicts, they desire you will furnish such description of all convicts who may be hereafter sent by you to the jail of the 24-Pergunnahs for the purpose of being transported; inserting the same in an additional column, in the list prescribed by the Court's circular order of the 3rd August 1796, viz. in a second column, to follow the names of the prisoners required to be inserted in the first column; and to be entitled "description of prisoners."

2. The Court further rely on your attention to see that such description be in all cases as full and accurate as possible.

No. 26.

Bodies of prisoners who may die in jail not to be removed till an inquest has been held.

AN instance having occurred of a prisoner escaping from the jail in which he was confined, by feigning himself dead, the Nizamut Adawlut, in order to prevent the success of future similar attempts, think proper to desire, that you will instruct the several magistrates within your division, not to allow the removal of the bodies of prisoners who may die in jail, until an inquest shall be held on them by the native surgeon of the station, and such other persons as the magistrate shall appoint for the purpose, and the result of such inquest regularly reported.

No. 27.

Proceedings in trials referrible under Regulation X. 1799 to the Nizamut Adawlut, to be transmitted within the ten days fixed by Section LXVIII. Regulation IX. 1793. Native officers of magistrates to assist in transcribing the proceedings of the courts of circuit, and additional mohurrirs to be employed.

Original of magistrate's proceedings to be transmitted to the Nizamut Adawlut, without copies being made of them.

SEVERAL instances having occurred of very considerable delay in the transmission of trials referrible to the Nizamut Adawlut, whereby the objects proposed by Regulation X. 1799, viz. to prevent the lengthened confinement of prisoners who may be ultimately acquitted by the Nizamut Adawlut, and to expedite the punishment of those who may be convicted, have been in a material degree frustrated, the Court, with a view to the more certain and actual attainment of the ends proposed by the above Regulation, desire your strict observance of the following instructions in addition thereto.

2. To enable the judges of circuit to prepare the counterpart record of trials referrible to the Nizamut Adawlut, with the least possible delay, the several zillah and city magistrates will be instructed to give the assistance of their native officers in transcribing the original proceedings; and the judges of circuit are authorized to employ any additional mohurrirs they may find necessary, and be able to procure, for the same purpose; transmitting a contingent bill on this account, for the sanction of Government.

3. The proceedings and papers received from the magistrates, required by the Regulation above mentioned to be transmitted to the Nizamut Adawlut with trials referrible to that Court, are to be transmitted as received from the magistrates, without making copies of them; and such papers, after the Nizamut Adawlut shall have passed sentence on the trial referred with them, will be returned to the judge of circuit.

4. By these means, the Court trust that the trials referrible to them will be always transmitted in future, within the period of ten days fixed by Section LXVIII., Regulation IX. 1793, as well as without any impediment to the business of the circuit.—If any other measures should appear to you advisable for either of these purposes, the Court desire you will communicate them.

No 32. March 13, 1804.

In cases of capital punishment, copy of sentence to be sent to the magistrate along with warrants for execution.

THE Court of Nizamut Adawlut deem it expedient to direct that in all cases of capital punishment, you will transmit to the magistrates, together with your warrants for the execution of the prisoners, copies of the sentences of this Court.

TO THE COURTS OF CIRCUIT.

No. 34. June 19, 1804.

Warrants how to be returned after execution of sentence.

I AM directed to inform you that it is the intention of the Nizamut Adawlut that all warrants should be returned to the court by which they are issued, after the complete execution of the sentence contained in them, with an endorsement, certifying the manner in which the sentence has been carried into execution.

In the case of a sentence both for corporal punishment and imprisonment, the carrying into execution of the former part of the sentence should be endorsed on the warrant at the time of inflicting the punishment; but as the warrant in this case cannot be considered to be completely executed until the prisoner has undergone the period of imprisonment adjudged against him, the magistrate should retain the warrant until the expiration of the term of imprisonment, or return it duly endorsed, should the prisoner die during the course of the term; or, in the event of his being removed to another zillah, the warrant should be transmitted to the magistrate of the zillah to whom the prisoner may be sent, with information that he is to return it duly endorsed to the court of circuit on the expiration of the sentence or death of the prisoner.

The Court accordingly desire, that you will communicate the above remarks to the several magistrates within your division for their information and guidance.

Construction of Section XXII., Regulation XXII. 1793, and corresponding enactments respecting criminal charges preferred against officers of police.

A DOUBT having arisen whether it be meant by Section XXII., Regulation XXII. 1793, and Section XVII., Regulation XX. 1795, that criminal charges preferred under these sections against officers of police, should be received and proceeded upon by the courts of circuit in the first instance, or whether they should be preferred to the magistrates, and the parties accused be committed or held to bail by them for trial before the courts of circuit, I am directed by the Nizamut Adawlut to inform you that they are of opinion, it was meant by the Regulations and Sections in question, to give an option, in the cases therein mentioned, either of a civil action in the Dewanny Adawlut, or of a criminal prosecution before the court of circuit; but that it was not intended by those sections to except any complaints brought under them from the regular course of procedure in other cases.

I am further directed to notice to you that the construction of the Regulations referred to, is confirmed by Section XXI., Regulation XXXV. 1803, for the Ceded Provinces.

Instructions respecting the insertion of certain particulars in the monthly reports of persons apprehended, required by Section XXVIII., Regulation IX. 1793, and corresponding enactments.

THE Court of Nizamut Adawlut adverting to the monthly reports of persons apprehended by the magistrates, in pursuance of Section XXVIII., Regulation IX. 1793*, and observing that some of the magistrates omit to insert the date of apprehension, for persons apprehended in former months, but detained in confinement for examination, they desire that you will instruct the several magistrates within your division, to insert, in all cases, the date of apprehension, as well as the dates of punishment, release, or commitment, under the proper heads of the report above-mentioned.

The Court also observing that some of the monthly reports transmitted under the section referred to, exhibit the names of persons apprehended for petty offences, and admitted to bail, in former months, but upon whom no final order has been passed, they desire you will inform the several magistrates under your authority that they are not required to include in their future monthly reports of persons apprehended, those who may have been apprehended in former months, and are still held to bail.

Principle to be observed by the magistrates in the use of fetters, with respect to prisoners in confinement for trial before the court of circuit.

AN instance having occurred wherein several respectable persons charged with a bailable offence, were committed to prison by the magistrate for trial before the court of circuit, and confined in fetters, and it having been stated to the Nizamut Adawlut, that it is a prevalent practice with many of the magistrates to confine in fetters all persons ordered to be tried by the courts of circuit, and not admitted to bail, or unable to give the bail required from them, whatever may be their situation in life or the nature of the offence charged against them; the Court desire it to be notified to the several magistrates, that such practice, with respect to persons charged with offences not of a heinous nature, or who might be committed to prison from inability to find sufficient bail, being unnecessary to secure their appearance at the time of trial, (the only object of personal custody in such cases,) and it being the evident intention of the Regulations that no prisoner, before he is brought to trial, should suffer more corporal restraint or personal ignominy than may be unavoidable for his safe custody, and appearance at the time of trial, they are required to be careful in observing this principle; and consequently are not to confine in fetters any person for trial before the court of circuit, who may be charged with a bailable offence, and committed to prison from inability to find bail or who, though not admitted to bail, may not have been charged with an heinous offence, such as from the nature and circumstances of the case, considered with the prisoner's condition of life, may appear to render the use of irons indispensably requisite for his secure custody.

Discretion vested in the judges of circuit to exempt from hard labour persons sentenced by them to imprisonment.

A DOUBT having been expressed as to the expediency of a judge of circuit directing in his warrant the exemption from labour of any persons sentenced to imprisonment, I am directed to inform you, that the Court of Nizamut Adawlut, adverting to their circular orders to the magistrates issued through the courts of circuit, under dates the 6th April and 10th August 1796, are not aware of any objection to judges of circuit inserting an exemption from hard labour in the warrants issued by them to the magistrate, in cases wherein they may, on consideration of the rank or situation in life of any person sentenced to imprisonment, consider him to be an improper subject of hard labour.

No. 48.

Judges of circuit, in their reports on the conclusion of the half-yearly jail deliveries, to report the circumstances of prisoners confined under the direct orders of Government.

I AM directed by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to transmit to you the accompanying extract of a letter from the Secretary to Government in the judicial department, dated the 1st instant; and to desire, that the judges of circuit in making the report prescribed by Section XII.*, Regulation IV. 1797, on the conclusion of each of the half-yearly jail deliveries, will report the situation of any prisoners who may be in confinement in any of the zillah or city jails, or otherwise in restraint, under the direct orders of Government; noticing at the same time whether they may be charged with crimes against the state, or confined on any other ground.

Extract from a Letter from the Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department, under date the 1st of April, 1808.

The Governor General in Council entirely concurs in the opinion expressed by the Nizamut Adawlut, that as Government, for reasons of state, has reserved to itself the power of ordering the confinement of persons, when the exigency of the case may appear to require it, the judges of circuit would not be warranted in directing the ordinary procedure to be observed with respect to such persons. His Lordship in Council is at the same time of opinion, that not only the judges of circuit in the division of Benares, but likewise the judges of circuit generally, should be directed to draw the attention of Government periodically to the situation of prisoners of that description, that such orders as may appear to the Governor General in Council to be proper, may from time to time be passed respecting them. The Nizamut Adawlut is accordingly requested to issue the necessary orders upon this point to the several courts of circuit.

Judges of circuit, in completing the jail delivery, to admit and try any commitments

I AM directed by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to desire, that the several judges of circuit for the division, on completing the sessions of jail delivery, will in future admit and try any commitments which may be made during their residence at each zillah;

Rule to be observed with respect to the salary of police darogahs when suspended for misconduct.

I AM directed by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut, to transmit to you, for your information and guidance, the accompanying copy of a letter, addressed to the Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department, under date the 19th ultimo, and an extract of a letter from Mr. Secretary Dowdeswell, dated the 28th ultimo, and to desire that you will communicate the same to the judicial officers in your division, for their respective information and guidance.

To the Secretary to the Government in the Judicial Department, April 19th, 1809.

I am directed by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to request, that you will submit for the consideration and orders of the Right Honorable the Governor General in Council, the accompanying copy of a letter from the acting magistrate of zillah Tipperah, dated the 3rd instant.

Adverting to the subject of the last paragraph of the acting magistrate's letter, the Court are of opinion, that whenever a police darogah is suspended from office during the trial of a charge against him, and it is found necessary to appoint an acting darogah, the latter should receive the full salary of the office whilst he is so employed.

The Court are further of opinion, that in such cases, if the darogah be acquitted of the charge against him, the magistrate, or court of circuit, before whom the trial may be held, should report, for the consideration and orders of Government, whether the darogah appears to them to be entitled to receive the whole or any part of the salary of his office for the time of his suspension.

In the event of a darogah being considered to be entitled to the whole or any part of his salary, the Court would recommend that it should be paid by Government.

Extract of a Letter from the Secretary to the Government in the Judicial Department, dated 28th April, 1809.

The Governor General in Council approves the rule suggested by the Court to be observed with respect to the salary of police darogahs, when suspended from office, on charges of corruption or other misconduct. The Court is accordingly requested to issue the necessary instructions on that subject, to the several magistrates and courts of circuit.

Conduct to be adopted by the magistrates in securing the co-operation of landholders in the suppression of crimes.

I AM directed by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut, to transmit to you the accompanying extracts from the report of the senior judge of the Calcutta court of circuit, on the conclusion of the 2nd sessions of 1808.

Adverting to the very successful operation of the measure adopted by the magistrate of zillah Nuddea, in obtaining the aid and support of the landholders and their agents, as required by the Regulations, (especially by Sections XI. and XII., of Regulation IX. 1808,) the Court desire that you will communicate the extract above-mentioned to the several magistrates within your division, and direct the adoption of similar measures whenever the state of the district, with respect to prevalence of dacoity may appear to require it.

Extract from a Letter from the Senior Judge of the Calcutta Court of Circuit, dated the 21st May, 1809.

Para. 4.—Opinions vary as to the causes of this continued and increasing commission of offences, and many I believe ascribe it to the defects of the system. I confess I cannot concur in this sentiment, for the Regulations appear to me in every respect well adapted to ensure an efficient police, and, if fully carried into effect, would soon lead to the suppression of dacoity. This is strongly demonstrated in the district of Nuddea, where the magistrate has succeeded in obtaining the aid and co-operation of the zemindars, and almost every description of people, to an extraordinary degree, which he seems to have accomplished by assembling and explaining to the naibs and agents of the zemindars attending at the station, the purport and intention of the Regulations, the assistance and co-operation expected from them, and the consequences of any omission or neglect on their part, either to assist the police officers, or to deliver up notorious dacoits, vagrants, or persons of bad or suspicious characters, supposed to subsist by depredations on the public.

Magistrates in what cases to permit their native officers to take examinations of prisoners and depositions of witnesses, and with what precautions.

I AM directed by the Nizamut Adawlut to transmit to you, for your information and guidance, the accompanying extract from the Court's proceedings of this date, and to desire that you will communicate the same by a circular letter to the several magistrates within your division.

Extract from the proceedings of the Nizamut Adawlut, on the 12th December 1809.

A reference having been made to the Nizamut Adawlut, respecting the propriety of magistrates permitting their native officers to take the examinations of prisoners and depositions of prosecutors and witnesses, the Court direct that the following observations be communicated to the several zillah and city magistrates, through the courts of circuit of their respective divisions, for their information and guidance.

The Court are of opinion, that in all cases, the examinations of prisoners, and, as far as possible, particularly in serious cases, the depositions of prosecutors and witnesses, should be taken, exclusively and entirely, before the magistrate, or his assistant, without any preliminary or partial examination before a native officer.

The Court are further of opinion, that whenever a magistrate or his assistant, from the great pressure of public business, may be under the necessity of employing any of the native officers in taking depositions of prosecutors or witnesses, such depositions should be invariably taken in some part of the cutcherry in which the magistrate or his assistant may be sitting, and not in a separate building, or in the absence of the magistrate or his assistant.

Duties and powers of magistrates on the receipt of complaints against European British subjects.

THE advocate general having been consulted by the Nizamut Adawlut, whether, under the appointment of a magistrate to be a justice of the peace in conformity with the provisions of the statute 33 George III. Clause 52, Sections 151 and 152, and under the rules prescribed in Regulations II. 1796 and XV. 1806, for the guidance of the zillah magistrates on the receipt of criminal charges against European British subjects, it is incumbent on a magistrate, as a justice of the peace, to comply with an application made to him for relief, in a case of forcible entry and detainer,—and the Court having further requested the opinion of the advocate general, whether the zillah and city magistrates who have taken the oaths of qualification as justices of the peace, are bound in consequence to take cognizance of any complaints against European British subjects, excepting such as are provided for by the rules contained in Regulations II. 1796 and XV. 1806,—the advocate general has given the annexed opinion on the foregoing questions, which you are desired to communicate to the several magistrates within your division, for their information and guidance.

Opinion of the Advocate General, December 11, 1809.

The office of justice of peace being introduced into this country by Act of Parliament, the Regulations can have no effect in dispensing with any duties which persons holding that office would be bound by law to perform. Whether they are, or are not, authorized to exercise any specific power, or (which is the same thing) bound to discharge any specific duty in this country which belongs to the office of justice of the peace in England, must in every instance depend upon the question, whether that part of the English law on which the given power or duty depends, is or is not applicable in this country. There are some broad lines which might be laid down for determining this question in certain cases; but in many cases it is and must be matter of nice judicial discretion. As I see no practical use, but on the contrary a great deal of inconvenience, in attempting to describe generally what matters are and what are not cognizable by justices of the peace here, I beg to decline it. The cases of the most common occurrence are attended with no difficulty; and the course which the magistrates have to take in them is, or easily may be, well known. If any should occur which are out of the ordinary routine, the easiest and safest way for the magistrate is to apply to the Government for instructions, which may be always obtained without any great delay. And if the case should be such as not to admit of that delay (though I can hardly imagine such a case), the magistrate may, I am sure, confidently act for the best, refusing or granting his interference as he thinks most expedient for the purposes of justice and public convenience. If his intentions are upright, the law will hold him harmless of any personal consequences; and speaking from my own experience I have no doubt that the Government would always think itself bound to defend him if attacked, where his motives were unquestionable.

With regard to the particular instance which has been brought before the Nizamut Adawlut of an application for a proceeding under the statutes of forcible entry, I am of opinion, that the magistrate acted rightly in refusing to comply with it. By those statutes justices of the peace in England have two sorts of powers; the one penal, against those who commit the violence; the other remedial, by directing restitution to the party dispossessed: this latter, however, they cannot exercise of themselves, but are bound to summon a jury to inquire of the fact of violent dispossession, and if the jury present the force to the justice, he may issue his warrant to the sheriff to restore the possession. This part of the statutes has been very lately holden by the Supreme Court not to be applicable in this country, upon a motion made by me in the last term, for a mandamus to the justices of Calcutta, directing them to issue their precept to the sheriff to summon a jury to inquire of a forcible dispossession. The motion was rejected principally upon the ground that this proceeding by jury was not applicable to the state and condition of British subjects in this country, or consonant to the spirit of the charter, which had for reasons obviously derived from that state and condition, intrusted the decision on facts in matters of civil right (as they held this of restitution to be) to another tribunal. This reason of course applies a fortiori in the mofussil. With regard to the penal power, the justice in England may, on the application of the injured party, proceed to the spot, and if he finds the offenders in the actual commission of violence, or armed to retain what they have seized, he may record the fact on his own view, and commit them to prison, or take away their arms; but must not put the ousted party into possession. I am inclined to think that if it were necessary, a justice of the peace might exercise this power here over Europeans; but in the case before the magistrate, it was not necessary to exercise this summary authority in order to preserve the peace; and therefore he did rightly in a doubtful and unprecedented case, to abstain and report the matter to the Nizamut Adawlut.

Judges of circuit, except in particular cases, not to carry away the proceedings of magistrates in cases referred by them to the courts of circuit, and to return to the magistrates their proceedings on cases referred to the Nizamut Adawlut.

THE Court of Nizamut Adawlut having been given to understand that some of the judges of the courts of circuit are accustomed to carry away the proceedings of the magistrates in the trials made over by them to the courts of circuit, and that in consequence the magistrates have been under the necessity of having copies of such proceedings made to be retained among their own records, the Court direct me to desire that you will in future abstain from such practice.

I am further directed to desire that you will return to the magistrates their proceedings on trials referred to this Court, which are always returned to you from this office.

As however the judges of circuit may think it expedient in particular cases to detain the original proceedings of the magistrates referred to above, or to require copies of them, I am at the same time desired to inform you that you are competent to resort to either of those measures whenever it may appear essentially necessary.

Examinations of all persons, however young, provided they have a competent discretion, and a sufficient sense of the nature and obligation of an oath, to be taken on oath or solemn declaration.

INSTANCES having occurred of witnesses being permitted to give their evidence without taking the oath, or subscribing the solemn declaration required by the Regulations, on the grounds of the tender years of the person examined, I am directed by the Nizamut Adawlut to desire that you will make it a rule to take the examinations of all persons deposing before you, on oath, or a solemn declaration, however young in years they may be, provided they appear to have a competent discretion, and to entertain a sufficient sense of the nature and obligation of an oath.

I am further directed to desire that you will circulate the above instructions to the several magistrates within your division, for their information and guidance.

Instructions for the more effectual promulgation of the proclamation prescribed by Section III., Regulation IX. 1808.

I AM directed by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to transmit to you the accompanying extract of a letter from the senior judge of the Bareilly court of circuit, under date the 20th of October last, and to desire that you will communicate the same to the several magistrates within your division, with instructions to adopt the measures proposed by Mr. Brooke, whenever they may have occasion to promulgate the proclamation prescribed by Section III., Regulation IX. 1808.

Extract of a Letter from the senior Judge of the Bareilly Court of Circuit, dated the 20th October, 1809.

PARA. 6. The provisions in the 3rd Section do not appear calculated for the most extensive promulgation that can be made. It directs the proclamation to be affixed at the magistrate's cutcherry, and at the police thannahs, and to be published by beat of drum in the towns in which they are situated. This appears scarcely sufficient, as a person may certainly be proclaimed and remain in ignorance of the proclamation.

7. For its more general promulgation, I beg leave to suggest that a copy of the proclamation be affixed at the collector's cutcherry, and that the collector be directed to transmit copies to his tuhseeldars, to be affixed by them at their cutcherries. It ought also to be an invariable rule to have the publication made by beat of drum in the town, village, or place, where the person or persons proclaimed, or their families, have their residence.

8. I beg further to suggest that if at the town where the thannadar is stationed, and where the person proclaimed has his residence, a market be held, that the publication by beat of drum be ordered to be made on a market day, at the time of day when the people assemble in greatest number, and that it be published in this manner for three successive market days; and where a market may not be held, the publication be made by beat of drum at three different times, at a distance of a week between each publication.

9. With these precautions, it would be almost impossible for a person proclaimed to offer a plea of his being unacquainted with the proclamation; whilst, as the rule now stands, his ignorance may be urged with every presumption in favour of the credibility of his plea.

Rules respecting the execution of persons sentenced to suffer death.

It having been represented to the Nizamut Adawlut that the execution of the criminals who are sentenced to suffer death, (especially of sirdar dacoits, and other notorious robbers,) may in some instances produce a deeper impression, and operate more powerfully as an example, by its taking place at or near to the spot where the crime has been committed, instead of the usual mode of execution at the magistrate's place of residence, and gibbeting the body at or near to the place where the crime was committed, I am directed by the Court to desire you will inform the several magistrates within your division, that they are at liberty in all instances to execute criminals sentenced to suffer death, at such place within their respective jurisdictions, as may appear to them most expedient, causing the body to be afterwards gibbeted* at or near to the spot where the crime may have been committed. The future sentences of the Nizamut Adawlut will accordingly not specify the particular place of execution; and the necessary alteration is to be made in the warrants of the court of circuit.

2. In exercising the discretion thus vested in the magistrates, they will of course be careful whenever a convict may be sent to any distance from the jail for execution, to appoint a sufficient guard for his safe custody, together with a responsible officer of the court, who, jointly with the commanding officer of the guard and the local police officers, after attending the execution of the prisoner, should make a written report of the due execution of the sentence.

* Gibbeting bodies is now prohibited. Vide No. 140, Vol. II.

3. The Court further desire that the magistrates will be careful to prevent any exactions from the inhabitants of the country, either at the place of execution, or where the body is gibbeted: and, with a view to prevent offence against the prejudices of the natives, the Court direct that no criminal be executed or gibbeted within any town, village, or other inhabited place, or so near to the house of any individual as to afford just ground of complaint.

Instructions relative to the discharge of convicts under confinement in a zillah or city different from that in which they were committed for trial.

I AM directed by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to communicate to you, for the information and guidance of the several magistrates within your division, the following instructions relative to the discharge of convicts sentenced by the courts of circuit, or Nizamut Adawlut, to temporary imprisonment, and confined under a sentence of banishment, or otherwise, in a zillah or city different from that in which they were committed for trial.

First.—Whenever a convict sentenced by a court of circuit, or the Nizamut Adawlut to temporary imprisonment, shall be in confinement at the approach of the period fixed for his discharge, in a jurisdiction different from that in which he was committed for trial, he shall be sent back (with the warrant containing his sentence, or an authenticated copy of it, if the warrant include other convicts who are not sent at the same time,) to the magistrate of the jurisdiction in which he was committed for trial, unless the magistrate having charge of the convict, on information of his intended place of residence, or for any other special reason, shall judge it proper to discharge him in his own jurisdiction, or to send him for discharge to the magistrate of a different jurisdiction, in which last case, he shall be sent to the magistrate of such jurisdiction; and the magistrate to whom the convict may be sent in such cases, shall carry into effect the warrant for his discharge, taking bail or not, as therein directed; or in particular cases requiring bail, though not directed in the warrant, if from any information before the magistrate of the prisoner's dangerous character, it shall appear indispensably necessary to adopt this precaution: Provided that in all such cases the prisoner, with a full report of the magistrate's information respecting him, shall be brought before the court of circuit at the next session, for the orders of that court.

Secondly.—The magistrate having charge of convicts to be discharged in another jurisdiction under the above rule, is to send them, in such custody as may appear sufficient, and with or without fetters, or with an iron on one leg only, as he may deem proper, to the magistrate by whom they are to be discharged, so as to reach him before the expiration of their respective sentences ; and whenever a convict may have been committed for trial in a jurisdiction different from that to which he is sent for the purpose of being discharged, or may have resided before he was apprehended in a different district from that in which he was committed, and also from that in which he is sent for discharge, notice shall, at the same time, be given to the magistrate both of the jurisdiction in which he was committed for trial, and of that in which he formerly resided.

Thirdly.—The magistrate sending convicts from one station to another under these instructions, is to furnish them with a sufficient allowance for their subsistence on the way, at the prescribed rate of diet money for the calculated period of the journey ; but the allowance for one month's maintenance, not exceeding five rupees, to which convicts released after an imprisonment of six months, or upwards, and appearing to be in need of such assistance, are entitled under Section XXV., Regulation IX. 1793,* is to be paid to them by the magistrate who discharges them, and he is required to be particularly careful that such allowance is, in all instances, received without deduction, by the person entitled thereto.

The foregoing instructions (which are issued with the sanction of Government on the suggestion of the magistrate of zillah Hooghly) have in view not only the prevention of hardships to which convicts released at a distance from their places of residence are exposed, from their suspicious appearance, and consequent risk of being frequently seized and detained on their journey, but also to obviate, as far as practicable, the ill consequences that have been found to result from persons of dangerous character, and convicted of criminal offences, being released at the expiration of their sentences without the knowledge of the magistrate in whose jurisdiction they were apprehended and brought to trial, or in which they have resided after being set at liberty.

It is expected that the magistrates and police officers of zillahs, in which discharged convicts were apprehended and brought to trial, or in which they may intend to reside, being duly advised of their release, will take the requisite precautions to watch the conduct of the persons discharged, especially of such as may appear to be of dangerous character, and to guard against the repetition of criminal offences by them : the Court of Nizamut Adawlut therefore desire, that you will enjoin the strict attention of the magistrates to the rules now transmitted for their observance.

Provisions of Regulation XIII. 1793, construed not to preclude a criminal prosecution on charges of corruption or extortion against native officers of the courts. Magistrates how to proceed in such cases.

A QUESTION having arisen, whether, under the provisions of Regulation XIII. 1793, (extended to Benares by Regulation XII. 1795, and re-enacted for the Ceded and Conquered Provinces by Regulation XII. 1803,) charges of corruption, or extortion, against the native officers of the civil and criminal courts, can in any case be prosecuted criminally, I am directed by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to inform you (and to desire you will acquaint the several magistrates within your division,) that the Court do not consider the provisions in the Regulation above-mentioned, whereby the parties injured have the option of instituting a civil action, to preclude a criminal prosecution whenever there may appear to be sufficient grounds for it, as expressly authorized with respect to charges of corruption or extortion against the police darogahs by Section XXII., Regulation XX. 1793, (Section XX., Regulation XVII. 1795, for Benares, and Section XXI., Regulation XXXV. 1803, for the Ceded Provinces).

The Court are of opinion that in such cases, when the magistrate shall consider the information and evidence before him to be sufficient for bringing the parties accused to trial before the court of circuit, the prosecution should be public, and conducted by the vakeel of Government.

No. 70. April 27, 1810.

Rules respecting the enforcing the penalty of security-bonds, and limitation of the amount of security to be required.

A RECENT case before the Court of Nizamut Adawlut, in which it appeared that a prisoner convicted of robbery had, on a former occasion, been discharged under security for good behaviour, has induced the Court to consider the expediency of enforcing the penalty to which the surety is liable in such instances, with a view to discourage the common practice of persons for a pecuniary compensation, making themselves answerable for the conduct of men of bad character, over whom they have no influence, in the expectation that whatever may be the future conduct of those for whom they are responsible, their security will be regarded as nominal, and not put in execution.

To put a stop to this practice, the Court are of opinion that whenever a person who has given security for his good behaviour and appearance, may be convicted of a serious criminal offence, and may not have been delivered up by his surety, the latter should be called upon to show cause why the penalty to which he is liable by his engagement, should not be enforced; and that unless satisfactory reason be assigned against enforcing the security bond, in whole or in part, it should be put in execution, by the usual process for the recovery of money from the civil court, if not paid on the requisition of the magistrate.

The Court of Nizamut Adawlut accordingly desire, that you will attend to this point in any instances of the nature above-mentioned which may come before your court; and that you will direct the attention of the magistrates in your division to the subject of this communication, instructing them to make it known to all persons who may offer themselves as sureties for the conduct and appearance of men of suspicious character, in their respective jurisdictions.

The Court further direct that the magistrates be cautioned to limit their requisitions of security for good behaviour and appearance, to such sums as it may appear equitable to recover in the event of the conditions of the engagement not being performed; and that they be careful in ascertaining that the sureties accepted are sufficiently responsible to make good the amount eventually demandable from them.

Explanation of the mode of procedure prescribed by Section X., Regulation IX. 1808, in the event of any specific charge being preferred against a prisoner who may surrender or be apprehended on a proclamation issued under the above Regulation.

Judges of circuit how to proceed, in referring the case of a prisoner convicted under Section VIII. of the above Regulation.

It is provided by Section X., Regulation IX. 1808, that a conviction under the provisions of that Regulation shall not exempt a prisoner, so convicted, from being brought to trial on any specific charge of any other crime or offence, the nature of which may be such as to render him liable to an equal or a greater degree of punishment under the Regulations; and further, that, whenever a charge of this nature shall be preferred against a prisoner so convicted, whether before or subsequently to his being apprehended, or shall arise from any proceeding held against him, and there shall appear to the magistrate sufficient grounds for so doing, he shall bring the prisoner to trial, on such charge, before the court of circuit, under the established rules, as soon as may be practicable after the prisoner's surrender or apprehension.

Instances having occurred in which the proceedings held on the trial of prisoners under Regulation IX. 1808, for not appearing within the periods specified in proclamations published for their appearance under that Regulation, have been transmitted to the Nizamut Adawlut without any intimation of the prisoner's having been brought to trial on any charge of the nature specified in the preceding paragraph, I am directed by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to desire that you will instruct the several magistrates within your division to bring to trial before the court of circuit, as soon as may be practicable, any prisoner who may surrender or be apprehended, in conformity with a proclamation issued under Regulation IX. 1808, whenever a specific charge, of the nature already stated, may be preferred against him and there shall appear sufficient grounds for his commitment.

I am further directed to desire that, whenever a judge of your court shall refer to the Nizamut Adawlut, the proceedings held by him on the trial of a prisoner, under Section VIII. of Regulation IX. 1808, he will also state, whether or not the prisoner has been tried or committed for trial on any specific charge, the nature of which may render him liable to an equal or a greater degree of punishment under the Regulations than that prescribed by the section above-mentioned, at the same time transmitting to the Nizamut Adawlut any proceedings held by him on the trial of the prisoner upon any such specific charge.

Persons held to security may be employed on public works with what restrictions.

REFERENCES having of late been made to this Court to know whether prisoners confined till they furnish security for their future good behaviour, may be employed in the construction of public works, or in the repair of public roads, I am directed by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to acquaint you, that in conformity with the spirit of Section X., Regulation XXII. 1793, (or Section X., Regulation XXXV. 1803, in the Ceded Provinces,) you are at liberty to employ prisoners of the above description in the same manner, and with the same restrictions, as you are authorized to employ convicts by the Circular Orders of the Nizamut Adawlut, under date the 6th April and 10th of August 1796.

2. I am at the same time directed to desire that you will be careful not to employ the prisoners at any great distance from the sudder station, where they might be subject to difficulty in procuring sureties; you will endeavour as much as possible to keep prisoners of the above description distinct from prisoners convicted of specific offences; and you will understand that they are never, on any occasion, to be sent beyond the boundaries of your district.

TO THE COURTS OF CIRCUIT.

No. 73.

Precautions to be observed by magistrates and courts of circuit in taking the confessions of prisoners, and examining the attesting witnesses.

SOME trials have been recently before the Nizamut Adawlut, in which there were strong grounds for believing that confessions have been procured from the prisoners at the thannas by very improper means, and that such confessions have been subsequently repeated and confirmed before the magistrates under the influence of those previous impressions.

2. The attention of the Court has, in consequence, been seriously engaged in considering whether any measures can be adopted calculated to repress practices so atrocious in themselves and so incompatible with a pure administration of justice. It having occurred to the Court that the following precautions will conduce to that important end, they have directed me to communicate them to you for your information, and to desire that you will extend the communication to the several magistrates within your division, for their information and guidance.

3. Experience having shown that accused persons sent into the common jail, without examination, are put on their guard by the other prisoners, and, in consequence, generally decline to make any confession or discovery when examined, several magistrates, to avoid this inconvenience, appear to have adopted the practice of examining all persons sent in by the police officers, as soon as possible after their arrival at the station.

4. This practice, the Court observe, is well adapted to accomplish the object which it proposes; but is also attended with danger that the persons examined, when under strong impressions of any improper treatment which they may have experienced in the mofussil, may be induced, before they have had time to recollect themselves, to confirm fabricated and extorted confessions.

5. The Court remark that it will obviously require great circumspection on the part of the magistrate to guard against this danger. That the following are the precautions which naturally suggest themselves. The magistrate (or his assistant, if the latter be employed on such occasions,) to be mild and patient in his examination of the prisoners; to exert himself to ascertain whether they have been subjected to improper treatment in the mofussil; to make prisoners sensible that they are secure against such practices while under the magistrate's charge; to be particularly attentive that alleged mofussil confessions of prisoners be not recorded as confessions made before himself, from being read to prisoners and receiving their assent; but to satisfy himself, by making prisoners tell their own story, that their statements are deliberate and spontaneous; lastly, to be watchful that prisoners are not subject in the jail, or other places of confinement, to any continuance of the improper means to which they are liable at the thannas.

6. In one of the cases which have drawn the attention of the Court to this subject, a prisoner accounted for his having confirmed before the magistrate a false confession which the police officers had extorted from him, by stating that when examined in the fouzdarry court, he was surrounded by several of the persons who were concerned in the violence which he had suffered. The Court remark that this circumstance will show the magistrates the necessity of being cautious that the police officers under whose charge the prisoners are sent in, be not permitted to exercise any interference when they are examined.

7. The Court are further of opinion that the ill-treatment of prisoners might be greatly checked by attention on the part of the magistrates to enforce the rule contained in Section XVII. Regulation IX. 1807, which enjoins that the police darogahs shall, in all cases, despatch to the magistrates all persons apprehended by them, within forty-eight hours after their arrival at the thanna cutcherry. The Court have had frequent occasion lately to notice the infringement of this rule, and judge it therefore necessary to impress upon the magistrates the necessity of enforcing its strict observance.

8. The Court have also observed that confessions have been frequently procured from prisoners in the mofussil at unseasonable hours of the night, and in secret, and sometimes in solitary places, where only the police officers, or persons under their influence, have been allowed to be present: that altogether to prohibit secret examinations, would lead to serious inconvenience; but that at the same time, the most vigilant attention of the magistrates, is obviously required to prevent the police officers grossly abusing this power; that such mode of proceeding can rarely be necessary, and that it ought of consequence to be the constant care of the magistrate to see that it is not adopted without adequate cause.

9. But with all these precautions, the Court remark, that the principal security against the practice of procuring false confessions, will consist in the careful investigation by the magistrates and courts of circuit of the cases coming under their cognizance; that the too easy admission of confessions will always operate as a temptation to impose false confessions on the courts; while, if they are received with circumspection, and all the additional evidence which the case may admit of, uniformly required and carefully taken, the fear of detection must prove a powerful discouragement to the practice.

10. The Court likewise desire to call the attention of your court to the necessity of carefully examining the witnesses to fouzdarry confessions, so as to ascertain that they have been made under the magistrate's immediate inspection, or that of his assistant, and under circumstances which excluded any improper interference or influence: the case which the Court have referred to above sufficiently establishes the expediency of these cautions.

11. The Court also rely on your court to enforce the observance of the preceding instructions to the magistrates, and to correct any irregularities which you may notice in their proceedings and the proceedings of their police officers, which may have escaped their animadversion.

12. It is only, the Court observe, by the constant exercise of this control that the regularity of proceeding can be secured, which is essential, not only to the prompt despatch of business, but to the highest interests, both of individuals and the community.

Rules respecting the recovery of the penalty of a security bond from the estate of a person deceased.

Modes in which sureties may get discharged from their bonds.

A QUESTION having arisen, whether recognisances for the peace and good behaviour are merely personal, and the obligation of the penalty bond determinable with the life of the original surety, or whether the amount of the penalty be demandable from the estate of the surety, I am directed to desire, that you will circulate the following instructions for the information and guidance of the several magistrates within your division.

2. In cases wherein it may be necessary to enforce a penalty bond entered into by a surety for the peace, and it shall appear that the surety is dead, the magistrate, in enforcing the engagement as directed in the Court's Circular Orders of the 27th April last, will proceed against the heirs and executors of the surety, to the extent of any property belonging to the deceased, which may have come to their hands.

3. Under the above rule, the magistrate will be careful in future that the penal engagement entered into by a surety, specifies the responsibility to which his heirs and executors will be liable in the event of his demise.

4. You will instruct the magistrates at the same time to cause it to be generally made known that sureties delivering up the persons for whom they are responsible, may at all times obtain a discharge from further responsibility, and direct them to attend to any application made to them for that purpose,—at the same time requiring the persons so delivered up, to find other and sufficient security.

5. In all cases when the surety may die, his representative will also have the option of obtaining a discharge by delivering up the party engaged for, as provided with respect to the surety himself in the preceding paragraph.

6. In carrying the above instructions into effect, when the magistrate may not receive any special orders from your Court or the Nizamut Adawlut, the Court authorize the magistrate to exercise his discretion in not enforcing the penalty, either wholly or partially, when the circumstances of the case may appear to call for indulgence, or any equitable reason may exist for dispensing with the penalty.

Magistrates how to proceed in summoning persons to give evidence before the courts of circuit, and with what precautions to pay the diet money allowed to indigent prosecutors and witnesses.

THE Court of Nizamut Adawlut having had their attention drawn to the severe hardships to which prosecutors and witnesses are occasionally subjected, by a protracted detention at the sudder station during the time of session, and it being desirable that individuals should be relieved as much as possible from the inconvenience attending their being summoned to give evidence before the courts of circuit, and the Court judging it of moment that the heavy expense to which Government is at present subject on account of diet money to indigent prosecutors and witnesses, should be reduced as far as circumstances will admit, I am directed to desire that you will communicate the following instructions to the magistrates of the several districts comprising your division.

2. The magistrates, on receiving intimation from the judges of circuit of the date on which they propose to commence the jail deliveries of their respective stations, will summon the prosecutors and witnesses in a few only of the first trials on the calendar, and are desired to be careful that they are in attendance against the judge's arrival

3. As soon as the judge of circuit arrives and the circuit duty commences, the magistrate will proceed to issue the customary process for the attendance of the prosecutors and witnesses in a few more of the trials, and so on in regular succession according to the calendar.

4. The magistrates, in carrying the above orders into execution, will hold it in mind that the two objects to which their attention is particularly required, are, the relief of prosecutors and witnesses from unnecessary detention to give evidence on the trials, and the preventing interruption to the sittings of the judge of circuit, from delay in causing their attendance when the trials on which they are summoned are brought forward.

5. The magistrates, in paying the prescribed allowance to indigent prosecutors and witnesses, will be careful to ascertain the actual attendance of the parties on the courts of circuit, and are desired to establish such checks as may appear to them most effectual, to guard against overcharge by the native officers on this account.

6. The detailed accounts for diet money will be countersigned by the judge of circuit, holding the jail delivery.

Modification of former orders respecting the immediate trial of prisoners committed during the session of the court of circuit.

A QUESTION having been submitted to the Nizamut Adawlut respecting the immediate trial of prisoners committed by a magistrate, whilst the court is sitting, I am directed to communicate to you the following instructions, in modification of the order issued by the Nizamut Adawlut on the 30th November, 1796, and 13th April, 1808.

Circulating orders of Government respecting the exertions necessary to prevent confessions being extorted from persons accused, and the circumspection to be used in the employment of goindahs.

I AM directed by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut, in continuation of the orders communicated to you in my circular letter of the 23d of August last, to transmit to you the accompanying extract of a letter, from the Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department, dated the 21st ultimo, and to desire, that you will communicate the same to the several magistrates within your division.

Extract of a letter from the Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department, dated December 21, 1810.

PAR. 3. The Governor General in Council has learned with deep concern, the offence committed by some of the darogahs of police in that zillah, of extorting by threats and intimidation unfounded confessions from persons apprehended. His Lordship in Council would hope, with the Nizamut Adawlut, that this criminal practice may not be so prevalent as appears to be supposed by the acting judge; but the facts stated by Mr. Watson are sufficient to show that every possible exertion should be made for the prevention of this serious evil in future. The Governor General in Council approves generally the orders passed by the Nizamut Adawlut on this point.

PAR. 5. The Governor General in Council has observed with equal concern, the grounds which exist for apprehending that acts of great violence and extortion have been committed by the goindahs, noticed in the 11th paragraph of the Court's resolutions. These cases being under investigation, the Governor General in Council has no particular orders to pass on the subject further than to observe that the magistrates cannot be too strongly enjoined to observe the utmost circumspection in the employment of instruments of that description, and to take immediate measures for bringing to condign punishment any of them who may be guilty of the above, or any other criminal offence.

Penal engagements in what cases not to be taken.

Restrictions to the powers of zemindars in matters of police.

Explanation of Section XVIII. Regulation XVI. 1810.

I AM directed by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to transmit to you the accompanying extract of a letter from the Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department, dated the 11th instant, and to desire, that you will communicate the same to the several magistrates within your division, for their information and guidance.

Extract of a letter from the Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department, dated the 11th January, 1811.

PAR. 2.—The mochulkas taken either in conformity to the orders of the Nizamut Adawlut of the 31st May 1809, or in consequence of a misconception of the intent of those orders, appear to be of three descriptions; 1st, Those taken from the zemindars themselves; 2ndly, Those taken from the munduls, or principal persons in each village; and 3dly, Those taken (accompanied with security) from the ryuts.

3. Although mochulkas or penal engagements may be convenient and unobjectionable in instances in which only individuals are concerned, the Governor General in Council is decidedly of opinion that in cases affecting whole classes of the people, the proper course is, to prescribe the duty to be performed by them by a Regulation, with the adequate penalties for neglect of its provisions. The Governor General in Council would have entertained these sentiments had the present question respected only much smaller bodies of the people than must have in fact been affected by its operation; but when it is considered that, under the threefold distinctions already stated, mochulkas must have been taken from a large proportion of the general population of the country, and that the mochulkas were not taken at least in two out of the three cases above stated directly by the magistrates, but by the zemindars and munduls, the Governor General in Council cannot but apprehend, with some of the local officers, that the requisition of those instruments may have been attended with considerable abuse and extortion.

4. With these sentiments the Governor General in Council is entirely of opinion that the magistrates should be prohibited from requiring any further mochulkas of either of the descriptions noticed at the commencement of this letter, or from acting upon those already executed. Considering the numbers which must have been taken, it might be attended with inconvenience formally to annul them, but Government is entirely of opinion that they should be rendered inoperative.

6. The Governor General in Council entertains considerable doubts regarding the expediency of investing the zemindars with power to apprehend persons on the ground of their being known robbers, and persons coming under the appellation of vagrants.

7. The abuses formerly committed by the zemindars, when invested with power in matters of police, are notorious. The truth of this position is recognised in the preamble to Regulation XXII. 1793. The policy of Government, especially during the last two or three years in which the police has engaged so much of the attention of the Governor General in Council, has been to restrict the agency of the zemindars and others to the communication to the magistrate, and other officers of police, of early information respecting the commission of public offences, within the limits of their respective estates, (in the performance of which duty it is not easy for them to commit any abuse or oppression,) but to withhold from them all positive power of interference in matters of that nature, in which experience had shown that they could not safely be trusted. It will of course be understood that the zemindars, like any other individuals, are competent to apprehend persons in the actual commission of public crimes.

13. The Governor General in Council would suppose that Section XVIII. Regulation XVI. 1810, as it present worded, would be considered applicable to any meritorious service rendered (to use the terms of your letter) in the discovery and apprehension of persons really "notorious as robbers." But if not, His Lordship in Council thinks that it might be explained in an order from the Nizamut Adawlut. His Lordship in Council is at the same time of opinion that the provision in question should not be considered applicable to persons coming under the vague description of "vagrants," as he is apprehensive that such a construction of it might be productive of much vexation to the community, especially to travellers.

Confessions in the mofussil how to be taken.

I AM directed by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to communicate to you the following instructions, in continuation of those contained in my letter of the 23rd of August last*, on the subject of confessions taken in the mofussil; and to desire that you will circulate the same to the several magistrates within your division, for their information and guidance.

1st. The confession should be witnessed by three or more creditable persons, (as required by Section XVII., Regulation IX. 1807,) who can sign their names, and are not officers of the police, or connected with the thanna establishment.

2nd. All confessions committed to writing should be taken down in the presence of the subscribing witnesses, and immediately signed and attested; and the police officer taking the same, should state, at the foot of the confession, the date, hour, and place at which it was taken, signed, and attested. This instruction, the Court remark, will not preclude the police darogah from making any private verbal examination, which he may deem requisite, with the view of ascertaining accomplices, or finding stolen property or means of proof.

3rd. The original confession, viz. that bearing the original signatures of the party and witnesses, to be invariably transmitted to the magistrate, and not a copy.

4th. When the confession may be taken at night, or at any other place than the police thanna, the special reason for its having been so taken, should be stated in the darogah's report, with information of the date and hour at which the prisoner was apprehended, and brought to the thanna.

5th. The magistrate, in examining the witnesses to a written confession, should be careful to ascertain that they, as well as the party confessing, were fully informed of the contents of it. To secure this object, the police officers should also be enjoined in all instances, after taking down a confession, to cause it to be read over to them in the presence of the party and witnesses, before it is signed and attested.

TO THE COURTS OF CIRCUIT.

No. 93. July 18, 1811.

Transmitting extracts of several letters from the Secretary to Government, containing instructions relative to the employment of goindahs as spies in aid of the police; enjoining strict attention to the provisions of Regulation XI. 1807, respecting the issue of criminal process; prohibiting magistrates from intrusting any authority to goindahs; and informing them of the mode of paying those persons for their services.

I AM directed by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to transmit to you for your information, and to desire you will communicate to the several magistrates within your division, for their information and guidance, the accompanying extracts of letters from the Secretary to Government in the Judical Department, under dates the 13th June and 4th August, 1809, and 5th April, 1811, relative to the employment of goindahs as spies or informers in aid of the police.

2. These instructions are circulated by order of Government, in consequence of a recent instance, wherein several persons were apprehended, and others proclaimed, on the vague accusation of two informers, who, on inquiry, were not able to establish any part of the charge preferred by them, and who, on examination, were not found to possess any personal knowledge of the facts charged by them.

3. The Court observe that the oppressive consequences which in this instance resulted from issuing process on the unsupported information of the goindahs, would have been obviated by a due regard to the provisions in Regulation IX. 1807, which, to warrant the issue of process on criminal charges, by the magistrates or police officers, require that the truth of them be deposed to, either by the complainant, if attending and present at the commission of the act complained of, or if not, by one or more persons present, or otherwise personally informed of the truth of the complaint. It is, indeed, provided in the latter part of Section IV. of the Regulation above-mentioned, that the rule therein prescribed shall not be construed to restrict a magistrate from issuing process to apprehend a person suspected of having committed a heinous crime, or for whose apprehension sufficient cause may appear upon the report of a police officer, or upon any other credible information. But a just exercise of this discretion by the magistrates, would evidently require strong and sufficient ground of suspicion, or more credible information than that of a common goindah personally unacquainted with the truth of the facts represented by him. The Court further remark that this discretion is not extended to the police darogahs.

4. You will enjoin the magistrates within your division to be careful in observing the strictest adherence to the provisions of the Regulation above-mentioned ; and especially, in receiving any criminal charge or information from a person known to be a goindah, or public informer, to be cautious not to issue any process against the accused, without satisfactory evidence of the truth of the accusation.

5. The manner in which it is deemed expedient to employ goindahs as spies to discover the haunts of robbers, to watch their movements, and to convey intelligence to the magistrate of their operations, or designs, being fully stated in the accompanying instructions, the Court do not judge it necessary to enlarge further on this point. The Court direct, however, that the magistrates be enjoined not to intrust the execution of any criminal process to a goindah, nor to allow any authority whatever to be exercised, directly or indirectly, by any person of this description. Also, that the utmost vigilance be observed to prevent every possible abuse (especially with regard to confessions, and the finding stolen or plundered property) in all cases wherein a goindah may be employed, or may have given information, or have interfered in any respect whatever.

6. The Court are of opinion that the darogahs of police should be prohibited from giving any encouragement to professional goindahs, and from employing them in any manner, without the knowledge and express sanction of the magistrate. They should also be restricted from apprehending any person, without a regular charge, except in the cases expressly authorized by the Regulations ; or if any exception be allowed, to prevent escape, with respect to persons named by confessing prisoners as accomplices, (for the usual process against whom there is no express provision in the Regulations,) the immediate seizure, without previous communication to the magistrate, in such instances, should be confined to persons of suspicious character, or who, there may be reason to believe, would abscond if not apprehended before the orders of the magistrate could be received on a report of the circumstances of the case.

7. You will observe, from the 15th paragraph of Mr. Secretary Dowdeswell's letter of the 13th June 1809, in what manner the persons whom the magistrates may think it expedient to employ as spies should be paid for their services ; and the Court direct me to add that any requisite fixed allowances which the magistrates may pay to such persons, should be charged in their contingent bills. But any rewards for meritorious service which may be done by them, will come within the provisions of Section XVIII., Regulation XVI. 1810.

Extract of a Letter from the Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department, dated the 13th June, 1809.

PARA. 10. A great deal of misconception has existed with respect to the means employed by Mr. Blaquiere in the apprehension of dacoits. Two distinct classes of people, the goindahs (informers) and the geerindahs (persons employed to apprehend), have been strangely confounded in the discussion which has taken place on this subject. This misconception is the more extraordinary, as their respective duties can scarcely be more clearly described than they are by the use of the two very common Persian words by which they are respectively designated.

11. The established duty of the goindahs is, to discover the haunts of the dacoits, to watch their movements, to mix with them occasionally with the view of obtaining accurate intelligence respecting their operations and designs for their employer, to communicate to him the result of their observations and inquiries, and finally, to point out to the geerindahs, who are usually regular police officers, the persons of the individuals whom the magistrate in the discharge of his public functions, may order to be apprehended.

12. Another mistake equally palpable, appears to exist with respect to this question. It seems to have been supposed that Mr. Blaquiere is in the habit of issuing general warrants, that is, of granting to his police officers a commission for the apprehension of suspected persons, without previously informing himself of their names, or taking any other means to identify the individuals. But from all the inquiries which have been made on the subject, it does not appear that Mr. Blaquiere ever issued a commission of this nature. At all events, goindahs ought only to be employed in the manner stated in the preceding paragraph. With respect to general warrants, (if they ever have been issued,) they should be altogether discontinued.

13. Of the efficiency of those agents, no doubts can reasonably be entertained. Long lists might be produced of criminals whose apprehension is entirely ascribable to the services of goindahs; but not being a matter of official record, it may be sufficient for the present to notice the case of Gungaram, a notorious and atrocious offender of the zillah of Nuddea, who, by the uncommon skill of Mr. Blaquiere, and by his judicious employment of the agency of goindahs, was recently apprehended under an assumed name at Patna, at a distance of five hundred miles from the Presidency.

14. It is an incontrovertible fact that the darogahs themselves employ goindahs. Now, it seems evident that if they are to be employed at all, they must be less capable of committing abuse under the watchful eye of a gentleman of character, talents, and experience, than under the control of darogahs almost as unprincipled as themselves.

15. Another point worthy of consideration is, that when goindahs are employed by Mr. Blaquiere, or the superintendent of police, they are paid in a much less exceptionable manner than when they are employed by the darogahs. In the former case, they receive a small monthly allowance for their immediate subsistence, and are rewarded for any particular duty according to the judgment which may be formed of their activity and fidelity by their employer, whether the persons apprehended through their means are convicted or otherwise. The darogahs, on the other hand, have no other means of remunerating the goindahs employed by them, but with a portion of the rewards paid under the Regulations for the conviction of criminals. In such case it seems natural to conclude that the darogahs will consult only their own avarice and the demands of the goindahs, and that they will listen little to the calls of justice and humanity when evidence might be obtained through their means for the justification of individuals charged with the commission of public offences.

Extract of a Letter from the Secretary to the Government, in the Judicial Department, dated the 4th August, 1809.

PARA. 3. It does not appear clear to the Governor General in Council whether, by the suggested extermination of goindahs and the discouragement of the old goindah system, the provincial court of Moorshedabad mean only the abolition of the powers heretofore, sometimes so very injudiciously, granted to persons of that description, or whether they mean the entire suppression of spies and informers in the conduct of the business of the police.

4. In the former case, it is only necessary to remark, that the Governor General in Council is impressed with the strongest sense of the danger and mischief which might arise from the delegation of such powers to goindahs. If, however, the provincial court mean the uniform suppression of spies and informers in the conduct of the business of the police, the Governor General in Council desires that the provincial court my be prohibited from issuing any orders to the magistrates to that effect.

5 The restrictions under which persons of that description should be employed, and the benefits which may be derived from their services, are stated in the orders of Government of the 13th June last.

Extract of a Letter from the Secretary to the Government, in the Judicial Department, dated the 5th April, 1811.

PARA. 8. In the different discussions which have taken place respecting the employment of spies and informers, Government has not failed to inculcate the great circumspection which should be observed in the employment of those instruments, and in receiving the information which might be furnished by them.

10. The Vice-President in Council deems it further necessary to desire that if the magistrates generally are not already apprised of the mode in which spies and informers should be employed, they may be furnished with the necessary instructions on that point, as stated in my different letters to you on that subject.

Discretion to be with the magistrates in regard to the period of carrying into execution sentences of capital punishment.

WITH a view to obviate the serious inconveniences noticed in the following extract from a letter from the commanding officer of the corps of Hill Rangers at Bhagulpore, and at the same time to enable the magistrates to execute criminals, sentenced by the Nizamut Adawlut to capital punishment, in conformity to the Court's Circular Orders, of the 5th of March, 1810, the Court desire, that in issuing your warrants to the magistrates in future, you will leave a discretion with them, in regard to the period for carrying such sentences into execution, specifying in the warrants* on a certain date, or as soon after, as circumstances may admit.

Extract of a Letter from the Commanding Officer of the Corps of Hill Rangers to the Adjutant General, under date the 23rd September, 1811.

"It has been customary to execute a person on the spot, whose body is to be hung in chains at a great distance, without the least consideration of the season of the year in respect to the heat, prevailing winds, or state of the roads as to inundation, &c., &c.

"In September, 1809, a convict was executed here, to be hung in chains on the hills below Rajmehal. The body was conveyed hence by water to Rajmehal, and then carried to its destination, which, owing to adverse winds and bad roads, took up a period of twelve days.

"I took an opportunity of speaking to the judge and magistrate of the danger and impropriety of this proceeding, who said that the like should not occur again, but the person should be taken to the place and executed, where the body was to be hung in chains; notwithstanding, a convict was hanged here on the 12th instant, and the body conveyed about thirty miles above Monghyr, to be hung in chains; it was taken in a boat as far as Surageegurrah, and then carried on a cot inland by dooms, which in all took up five days.

"I shall refrain from an attempt to describe the shocking state of the bodies of the deceased in these two instances; the sepoy guard and others who were obliged to attend and handle the corpses not only run the risk of infection, but

Law officers of the courts of circuit to be instructed to avoid the use of the term Gharutgaree, when it is their intention to convict a prisoner of robbery, and in all cases to be careful to use the proper term appropriated by the Mahomedan law, or by usage, to designate the offence of which a prisoner is convicted.

THE Court of Nizamut Adawlut having observed that in the futwas of some of the law officers of the courts of circuit, the crime of robbery by open violence, as defined in the first clause of Section III., Regulation LIII. 1803, is denominated by the ambiguous term Gharutgaree, which might be applied to acts of plundering distinct from robbery, I am directed to desire you will caution your law officers not to use the above term in future when it may be their intention to convict the prisoner of the crime of robbery, which, as noticed in the Section and Clause above referred to, is designated in the Mahomedan law by the term Surka i Koobra, and more commonly Shub Khoonee, or Dukyutee, unless it be a robbery on the highway, in which case it is usually called Kutaoot tureekee.

2. The Court further desire, in addition to their circular instructions of the 5th September last for stating in the futwa the specific crime considered to be established against every convicted prisoner, that your law officers will be careful to use the proper term which has been appropriated in the Mahomedan law, or by usage, to designate the offence of which the prisoner is convicted.

Explanation of the powers of judges of circuit in cases of theft.

THE Court of Nizamut Adawlut having observed that the courts of circuit in frequent instances, adjudge prisoners convicted of theft to receive a certain number of stripes and to be confined seven years, and the Court understanding that such sentences are considered to be authorized by the seventh Clause of Section II., Regulation LIII., 1803, I am directed to point out to you that the above-mentioned clause is expressly applicable to cases in which the crime of which "a prisoner is convicted, and for which he is declared liable to discretionary punishment, shall neither have been specifically provided for by any Regulation, nor by any stated penalty in the Mahomedan law."

2. The crime of theft, when legally established, and the stolen property amounts to ten dirms, being within the provisions of Hudd, under the Mahomedan law, and subjecting the offender to the amputation of a limb, (commutable under the Regulations to imprisonment for seven years,) the Court observe that this offence, when not attended with burglary, (so as to bring it within Sections II., III. and IV., Regulation I. 1811*,) is provided for by the third, fourth, and fifth Clauses of Section II., Regulation LIII. 1803, supposing the prisoner declared liable to discretionary punishment, or by Section V. of that Regulation, when the prisoner may be declared subject to a sentence of Hudd.

3. In either case, therefore, (viz. when a prisoner, convicted of theft only, may be declared liable to a sentence of Hudd, or of discretionary punishment,) the Court are of opinion that, under the existing Regulations, he cannot be sentenced to a heavier punishment than seven years' imprisonment without stripes, and consequently that when the judge of circuit, in discretionary cases, may deem it expedient to adjudge stripes, the period of imprisonment in addition should in no instance exceed six years, nor should it, the Court observe, be for so long a period, wher the futwa of the law officer (as noticed in the fifth Clause of Section II., Regulation LIII. 1803) may declare the penalty of Hudd to be "remitted or mitigated by the provisions of the Mahomedan law, in consideration of circumstances which alter the nature, and diminish the criminality, of the offence."

TO THE COURTS OF CIRCUIT.

April 2, 1812. No. 111.

A judge of circuit taking further evidence in a postponed trial, to complete the same by passing sentence.

A judge directing such postponement, to record his reason for doing so, and the specific points on which further evidence is required.

A DOUBT has been entertained whether, in a trial postponed by a judge of circuit at a monthly, quarterly, or half-yearly session of jail delivery, for further evidence to be taken at a subsequent session, the judge taking the further evidence on such trial, should complete the same by passing sentence, or whether, after taking the further evidence required, he should transmit the record of the trial in question, with the additional proceedings held on it, to the judge directing the postponement, to enable the latter to pass sentence.

2. That a uniform rule of practice may be observed in such cases, the Court direct me to communicate to you their opinion that it is the duty of the judge taking the further evidence on a postponed trial, to complete the same by passing sentence.

3. But the Court are at the same time of opinion that it is incumbent on the judge, who may postpone passing sentence for further evidence, to be taken at a subsequent session, to record his reasons at large for directing the postponement, with the specific points on which further evidence is required, and any observations upon the credit of the witnesses already examined, or other remarks upon the evidence already taken, which may appear requisite for the information of the judge and law officer at the ensuing session.

Transmitting letter of the Secretary to Government, enjoining caution in addressing publications of a general nature to the inhabitants of the provinces.

THE Court of Nizamut Adawlut direct me to to transmit for your information and guidance, the accompanying copy of a letter from the Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department, dated the 25th ultimo, together with copy of the letter to the late acting magistrate of zillah Behar, therein referred to.

To the Register of the Nizamut Adawlut, April 25, 1812.

I am directed to desire, that you will lay before the Nizamut Adawlut, the accompanying copy of a letter this day written to Mr. T. Sisson, the late acting magistrate of Behar, and acquaint the Court, that the Right Honorable the Governor General in Council desires that they will communicate generally the sentiments expressed in it to the courts of circuit and to the magistrates, for their information and guidance.

To Mr. T. Sisson,

SIR, April 25, 1812.

Judicial Department.

I am directed by the Right Honorable the Governor General in Council to acknowledge the receipt of a letter from you, dated the 22nd instant.

2. The Governor General in Council does not deem it necessary to suspend his orders regarding the publication to which your letter refers, until further inquiries can be made for the purpose of ascertaining the precise number of Pindarees, who are computed in it to have invaded the British territories. It is sufficient to remark on that point that whether the estimated number was 10,000, 12,000, or 15,000, it was in either case vastly exaggerated.

3. The Governor General in Council doubts not that you were actuated by the properest motives in issuing the publication in question. His Lordship in Council is at the same time of opinion that the terms of it, instead of being calculated to infuse among the people a confidence in their own strength and exertions, and to excite a spirit of resistance to the plunderers, agreeable to your laudable intention in issuing it, had, on the contrary, a tendency to create only discouragement and alarm.

4. It is intimated in your letter that none of the zemindars would have ventured to have entertained armed men for the purpose of repelling the Pindarees without the authority of the magistrate; but supposing such authority to have been requisite, and the circumstances of the moment to have rendered it advisable to grant it, the Governor General in Council would have supposed that you could have experienced little difficulty in furnishing them with the required authority, in a form and in terms free from the objections to which the publication in question (as already noticed) is subject.

5. The Governor General in Council takes this occasion to inculcate the propriety of great caution and reserve in addressing publications of a general nature to the inhabitants of the provinces, and his Lordship in Council considers it extremely desirable that the magistrates should refrain from such measures without the sanction of Government, when such sanction can be obtained without material public inconvenience, or at least, without the knowledge and concurrence of the nearest local authority to which they are subject, viz. the courts of circuit, or the political agents of the Governor General, in cases suited to such a reference. The Governor General in Council is sensible that emergencies may arise which may render even the delay of a reference to the court of circuit inconvenient and objectionable, but in all practicable cases he desires that such reference may be made, and that when the time will admit of it, the case may be invariably submitted for the decision of Government itself.

6. A copy of this letter will be transmitted to the Nizamut Adawlut, in order that the sentiments expressed in it may be communicated generally to the courts of circuit and to the magistrates.

No. 115.

Law officers of courts of circuit to be instructed to specify in their futwas convicting persons of receiving stolen property, that such persons knew the property to be stolen.

The same specification to be inserted in the abstract statements of the judges of circuit.

IN several cases, included in the abstract statements of prisoners punished by the judges of circuit, at the half-yearly, quarterly, and monthly, jail deliveries, without reference to the Nizamut Adawlut, the Court have been under the necessity of calling for the futwa of the law officer, and information from the judge of circuit presiding at the trial, respecting prisoners stated to have been convicted of receiving and purchasing stolen or plundered property, with a view to ascertain, whether the sentences passed in such cases, have been founded on a conviction of the prisoners having received or purchased such property, "knowing the same to have been stolen or procured by robbery," so as to render the prisoners punishable for the offences in question under the provisions of Regulation I. 1811.

2. The explanations received, as well as the futwas of the law officers of the court of circuit, in answer to such references, having in several instances not been sufficiently satisfactory and conclusive on a point so essential to a due conviction of the prisoner, the Court judge it necessary to desire that you will be particularly careful in future to require your law officers to state specifically in their futwas declaring any persons to be convicted of receiving or purchasing stolen or plundered property, that such persons are convicted of having received or purchased such property "knowing the same to have been stolen or procured by robbery."

3. You are further desired to insert the same specification in your abstract statements, respecting all persons convicted of the offences stated, and sentenced to punishment under the provisions of Regulation I. 1811.

NOTE.—See Nos. 124 and 215, Vol. I.

Discretion left with magistrates in all cases where no specific orders have been issued by the Nizamut Adawlut, or court of circuit respecting the use of fetters in the confinement of convicts.

THE Court of Nizamut Adawlut having reason to believe that several of the magistrates consider themselves required to confine all convicted prisoners indiscriminately in fetters, without reference to the nature of the offence of which the prisoner may have been convicted, or to his former condition in life, direct me to acquaint you, that in all cases wherein no specific orders may have been issued, either by the Nizamut Adawlut or court of circuit, for the confinement of a prisoner with or without irons, you are at liberty to exercise your own discretion, and to direct the prisoner to be confined in fetters or not, according as the same shall appear to you proper or necessary for his safe custody, from the nature and circumstances of the case, considered with the prisoner's rank and former condition in life.

NOTE.—See paras. 7 and 8, No. 217, Vol. I.

No. 124. August 12, 1813.

Distinction to be observed in the cases of persons convicted of having stolen property in their possession, between

SEVERAL cases in the abstract statements of the sentences passed by the judges of the courts of circuit, without reference to the Nizamut Adawlut, leading the Court to apprehend that the provisions contained in Sections VII. and VIII., Regulation I. 1811, may in some instances have been applied to persons convicted of having in their possession property obtained by theft or robbery, afterwards knowing the same to have been so obtained, although ignorant of it at the time when the property came into their possession; I am directed by the Court to acquaint you, for your information and guidance, that the said provisions are only applicable to cases wherein it shall appear that the person convicted knew that the property was obtained by theft or robbery, at the time of receiving or purchasing the same. You are accordingly desired to observe the distinction above noticed between the two offences in question, and to specify the same in your future abstract statements.

those who, at the time of receiving such property, knew that it had been obtained by theft or robbery, and those who are convicted of having such property in their possession, knowing the same to have been stolen at a time subsequent to their receiving or purchasing it.

3. The Court direct me to add that a prisoner convicted of the offence of having possession of property obtained by theft or robbery, knowing the same to have been so obtained, at a period of time subsequently to the property coming into his possession, is of course punishable by the Mahomedan law and the existing Regulations.

Judges of circuit not to hold more than one trial at the same time.

THE serious attention of the Nizamut Adawlut has recently been drawn to the highly objectionable practice resorted to by a judge of circuit, of holding more than one trial at the same time.

2. The Court are fully persuaded that this practice, so wholly unauthorized by the Regulations, has not frequently occurred; but as more than one instance has come to the knowledge of the Court, they deem it incumbent on them expressly to prohibit the practice in future.

Rules respecting the mode of procuring the attendance of prosecutors and witnesses.

I AM directed by the Nizamut Adawlut to transmit to you the enclosed extract of a letter from the superintendent of police for the lower provinces, received with a letter from the Chief Secretary to Government, dated the 13th ultimo.

2. The practice noticed by the superintendent of seizing and placing under restraint the persons of witnesses for the purpose of securing their due attendance, being wholly unauthorized, the Court desire that you will take the necessary steps for preventing it in future; enjoining the several police officers under your authority, to a strict observance of the rule prescribed in Section XV., Regulation IX. 1807, which requires them merely to take mochulkas from prosecutors and witnesses, binding them to appear before the magistrate on a specific day, under penalty of paying such fine to Government as the magistrate shall judge proper to impose on their non-attendance.

3. In cases wherein the Regulations do not specifically direct a mochulka to be taken from a witness summoned to appear before the magistrate, the Court are not aware of any objection to the requisition of a written acknowledgment from the party, of the receipt of the summons served upon him, and they desire that you will adopt it in future.

Extract of a Letter from the Superintendent of Police in the Lower Provinces, dated the 30th March, 1814.

PARA. 85. The mode of process at present in use in most of the districts in these provinces, for causing the attendance of witnesses in the criminal courts, is not only illegal, but a serious hardship to persons summoned, and is one of the chief causes of the great unwillingness manifested by all ranks to attend our courts for the purpose of giving evidence; I allude to the practice of seizing witnesses, and securing their persons at the thannas, and forwarding them into the court under charge of peons and burkundazes.

86. I have had experience that this mode of procedure is not necessary, and I am satisfied that it might be generally discontinued without impeding the business of the courts.

87. The present judge and magistrate of the 24-Pergunnahs, during the time he was in charge of the district of Nuddea, caused the provisions of Section XV., Regulation IX. 1807, to be duly promulgated and enforced, and instructed the police officers, on the occasion of serving a summons, to take a recognizance from the person subpœnaed, and to deliver into his hands a chullan or despatch addressed to the magistrate, with which the witness was required to proceed to the sudder station unaccompanied by any peon or burkundaz.

88. During two years, in which time many thousand witnesses attended the court, I cannot call to my recollection an instance of any proceeding having been obstructed by this practice, either before the court of circuit or the magistrate.

89. It is natural that the witness should consider himself responsible for the safe delivery of a paper addressed to the magistrate and confided to his charge by a police officer, and a few examples made, by enforcing the obligation of the recognizance against witnesses neglecting to appear under such circumstances, would effectually ensure a ready attendance.

Form of report to be furnished daily by the native doctor to the magistrate.

I AM directed by the Nizamut Adawlut to transmit to you the accompanying copy of a letter from the superintendent of police for the lower provinces, dated the 26th instant, with copies of the forms therein mentioned.

2. The forms in question having been found useful, the Court desire that you will adopt them in substance, with any modifications that may be suggested by experience.

To the Register of the Nizamut Adawlut.

Chinsurah, June 26, 1814.

I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of a circular letter from you, dated the 26th ultimo, prescribing rules for bringing at regular periods the sickness prevalent in different jails and hospitals, under the consideration of the Medical Board.

2. The above subject has brought to my recollection two forms introduced by the magistrate of Rajshahye, which I consider well calculated for aiding the object proposed by the Circular Orders of the Court of Nizamut Adawlut, and likewise for bringing daily under the observation of the magistrates, the actual state of their jails.

3. It is customary in most districts, for the jailor, the native doctor, and the officer commanding the jail guard, to attend the magistrate in the morning, and to furnish a verbal report regarding their respective departments.

4. The accompanying forms, which are in English, may be filled up daily by an English writer without delay or trouble, from a similar statement to be kept in the native languages by the jailor and native doctor, who should be required to present the English report to the magistrate every morning on the opening of the court.

5. These statements are adapted to afford a distinct view of the jail and hospital, to check abuses, and at the same time to form a useful record of office; I venture therefore to submit them to the superior court, with a recommendation, that they may be prescribed for general observance.

Periodical reports furnished by Magistrates to the Nizamut Adawlut, to be transmitted through the courts of circuit.

It having been suggested to the Nizamut Adawlut by one of the judges of the Calcutta court of circuit that the whole of the monthly and other periodical reports transmitted by the magistrates to the Nizamut Adawlut, shall be sent through the channel of the courts of circuit, with the view of enabling the latter to add any observations which they may consider necessary, and the Court of Nizamut Adawlut not being aware of any objection to the adoption of this measure, provided the reports are forwarded to them without delay, I am directed to desire that you will issue the requisite instructions to the several magistrates in your division, for transmitting the reports in question at the prescribed periods to your court, and that you will be careful to forward the same to the Nizamut Adawlut as soon as possible after the receipt of them, with any remarks which you may judge necessary.

TO THE COURTS OF CIRCUIT.

August 3, 1814. No. 137.

Magistrates and judges of circuit how to proceed in cases of persons exhibiting symptoms of insanity.

Mode of procedure in the case of a prisoner being both deaf and dumb.

INSTANCES having occurred of persons committed for trial before the court of circuit, either standing mute, or exhibiting symptoms of mental derangement, on their trial before the court of circuit, I am directed by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to desire that you will instruct the several magistrates within your division, in any instances which may be brought before them in which a prisoner committed for trial before the court of circuit may, previously to his trial, show any symptom of being deranged in mind, to cause the prisoner to be occasionally examined by the surgeon of the station, with directions to make such inquiries respecting the prisoner as may be necessary to enable him to form an opinion on the state of the prisoner's mind; and in case of the prisoner's being mute, whether he is mute from obstinacy, or from any real impediment of speech, or affection of mind.

2. The Court further desire that in all such cases the judge of circuit by whom the prisoner may be tried, will take the deposition of the surgeon of the station on oath, on the points abovementioned; at the same time requiring him to state the grounds of the opinion delivered by him, and recording the deposition, with a Persian translation of it, upon the proceedings held on the trial.

3. You will also instruct the several magistrates within your division, in cases of the above nature, in which a prisoner may be brought to trial before the court of circuit, to have in attendance on the court of circuit, a sufficient number of any other witnesses besides the surgeon, who may be able to depose to the prisoner's previous state of mind, or, with respect to dumbness, its previous existence, or otherwise, in order that their evidence may be taken by the judge of circuit.

I am further directed to transmit to you, for your information and guidance, the enclosed copy of the Court's orders, dated the 22nd July 1813, in answer to a reference from the third judge of the Dacca court of circuit, respecting a prisoner stated to be both deaf and dumb. In instances, however, in which a prisoner may appear to be dumb but not deaf, and apparently in a sane state of mind, (a case of which nature has been recently before the Court,) the judge of circuit before whom the trial may be held, will be generally able, from the signs and tokens of the prisoner, in answer to questions put to him, to complete the trial in a regular and satisfactory manner.

To the Dacca Court of Circuit, July 22, 1813.

I am directed by the Nizamut Adawlut to acknowledge the receipt of a letter from your third judge, dated the 10th instant, respecting the trial of a prisoner who is stated to be both deaf and dumb.

2. Presuming the fact of the prisoner's entire disability to hear or speak to have been well established, the Court are of opinion that inquiry should be made among the relations and friends of the prisoner with a view to ascertain whether any of them have been in the habit of communicating with him by means of signs and tokens; and should it appear that any person is able so to interpret between him and the court, it will be proper to employ such person as an interpreter, previously swearing him to interpret truly between the prisoner and the court.

3. But at all events the Court are of opinion that the prisoner should be brought to trial for the offence with which he stands charged, and, if it should be found impracticable by any means to convey intelligence to him, it will be incumbent on the judge, before whom the trial is held, to inquire for, and take, all evidence which the circumstances of the case may indicate for the prisoner's defence, and carefully ascertain and record every point which may make in his favor.

4. You are requested to communicate a copy of this letter to your third judge, for his information and guidance.

Magistrates to give the assistance of the writers on their establishments to the surgeons, to enable them to prepare their periodical reports on the health of the prisoners.

I AM directed by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to transmit to you, for your information and guidance, the accompanying copy of a letter, addressed by order of the Court to the chief secretary to Government, on the 27th ultimo, and copy of a letter from the chief secretary in reply, dated the 2nd instant.

To the Chief Secretary to Government, July 27, 1814.

I am directed by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to request you will lay before the Honorable the Vice-President in Council, the accompanying copy of a letter from the senior judge of the court of circuit for the division of Dacca, dated the 14th instant, with copies of its enclosures.

2. The reports which the zillah and city surgeons are required to make on the state of the hospitals and jails, do not appear to the Court to require the exclusive occupation of a native officer to assist them in the performance of that duty ; and the Court conceive that in general the establishments of the judges and magistrates would be found sufficient to admit of one of their mohurrirs or writers performing any duties of the nature mentioned in Mr. Todd's letter.

3. The Court therefore beg to suggest, instead of allowing a writer or mohurrir for the surgeon of each station, the expediency of orders being issued to the several magistrates, directing them to give the assistance of the writers and mohurrirs on their establishment, as far as may be necessary, to enable the surgeons to prepare the periodical reports required of them, applying in the usual course, if any addition to their fixed establishment should at any time be requisite on this account.

To the Register of the Nizamut Adawlut, August 2, 1814.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of a letter from you, dated the 27th ultimo, with its enclosures, and to desire, that you will acquaint the Court that, on the ground stated in the 2nd paragragh of your letter, the Honorable the Vice-President in Council desires that they will issue the necessary orders to the several magistrates, directing them to give the assistance of the writers and mohurrirs on their establishment to the surgeons, to enable them to prepare the periodical reports required of them, on the state of the hospitals and jails.

Construction of Regulation X. 1811.

I AM directed by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to transmit to you the enclosed copy of a letter from the superintendent of police for the western provinces, dated the 19th July last, together with copy of a letter addressed by order of the Court to the late acting magistrate of zillah Agra, under date the 23rd April 1812, containing the construction given by them to the provisions of Regulation X. 1811, and to desire that you will communicate the same to the several magistrates in your division, for their information and future guidance.

To the Register of the Nizamut Adawlut, July 19, 1814.

Instances having frequently occurred within the division of the western provinces, of persons having been apprehended by the police darogahs and subjected to punishment for the imputed offence of having sold or purchased a slave or slaves, and it appearing that many of the local magistrates, and, I believe, all the police thannadars, as well as the inhabitants generally of these provinces, consider such sale or purchase to be prohibited by Regulation X. 1811, under any circumstances whatever, I beg leave to submit for the consideration and decision of the Court of the Nizamut Adawlut, whether such construction be just and conformable to the letter or spirit of the Regulation, or whether the enactment alluded to has not exclusively reference to slaves imported from foreign countries.

2. Conceiving that the object of the Regulation in question was exclusively the prevention of the importation of slaves, by sea or by land, from foreign states or countries for the purpose of traffic, and that it was by no means intended by that enactment to supersede the operation of the Mahomedan law, and to prohibit or to interfere with the purchase or sale of any slave or slaves within the limits of the Company's territories, who may not have been so imported, I submit, for the consideration of the Court, the expediency of this point being explained, should the above construction be correct, for the information and future guidance of the magistrates and their police officers, not only in order to obviate the recurrence of instances of the illegal apprehension and punishment of individuals for this supposed offence, but more particularly with a view to the preservation of the lives of the infants and children of the poorer classes of the inhabitants in these provinces, which, in seasons of scarcity similar to the last, in which their parents may be unable to support them, must fall a sacrifice by famine to a mistaken principle of humanity, when those lives might not only have been preserved, but in all probability the future condition and happiness of the individual bettered and advanced under a state of bondage, differing so widely as that state is well known to do in Asia from all other countries; and I believe the district of Agra furnished a dreadful example, in the last year, of the effects of the prohibition alluded to, in the spectacle it presented of thousands of starving children abandoned by their parents, or expiring in their arms from hunger, whose lives might have been saved had their parents been suffered to dispose of them to the wealthier part of the community.

To the Acting Magistrate of Zillah Agra, April 23, 1812.

I am directed by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to acknowledge the receipt of a letter from you, dated the 3rd instant, requesting the Court's instructions relative to the operation of the provisions of Regulation X. 1811.

2. The Court, adverting to the title and preamble of the regulation in question, and to the bond required by Section V., understand the provisions in it to be applicable only to the importation of slaves, for the purpose of being sold, given away, or otherwise disposed of.

3. The cases stated in the 1st and 2nd paragraphs of your letter, do not, therefore, appear to be within the provisions of the Regulation, nor (the Court observe) is any part of the Regulation applicable to the sale of slaves not imported into the British territories.

Modification of the rule which requires all prisoners to be locked up in the wards of the jail during the night.

It having been lately represented to the Nizamut Adawlut that serious inconvenience has, in some instances, been found to result from the strict observance of the rule, that all prisoners confined in the public jails shall be locked up during the night in the several wards, I am directed to communicate to you, and to desire that you will circulate, for the information and guidance of the several magistrates within your division, the following rule, in modification of the rules already in force, for the management of the jails, and guarding the prisoners.

2. Whenever, from the heat of the weather, and the crowded state of the jails, it may appear to the magistrates seriously objectionable to adhere strictly to the rule of locking up all the prisoners in the several wards, they shall use their discretion in permitting to sleep outside the wards in the yard of the jail, such of the prisoners as have been charged with, or convicted of, or are held to security for, the less serious offences. In using this discretion, the magistrate shall adopt such precautions as may ensure the primary object of the safe custody of the prisoners.

Advising the zillah and city magistrates against committing persons for trial before the courts of circuit, solely on the ground of the accusation of confessing prisoners.

SEVERAL instances having come under the notice of the Nizamut Adawlut in which magistrates have committed persons for trial before the courts of circuit, solely on the ground of the accusation of confessing prisoners, that such persons were their accomplices or concerned in the offence charged, and a vague uncorroborated accusation of such a nature being insufficient to warrant a sentence of any punishment upon a person so accused, or even to hold him to security, unless accompanied with evidence to general bad character, I am directed by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to desire that you will acquaint the several magistrates within your division, that the Court are of opinion they ought not to commit for trial before the court of circuit, or hold to security any person on the sole ground abovementioned; at the same time acquainting them that it is not intended by the present orders to restrict them from making any further inquiry, or holding any further proceedings they may consider to be necessary, regarding persons in the above predicament, or from acting according to the result.

AN instance having recently occurred of a prisoner committing suicide without any inquest being held on the body, or other inquiry made, with the view of ascertaining the cause which may have urged the prisoner to the commission of the act, and the Court of Nizamut Adawlut being of opinion that inquiry should invariably be made in all cases of this nature, I am directed to desire that you will instruct the several magistrates in your division accordingly.

The practice of some magistrates of sentencing vagrants and offenders to banishment from a city or zillah, or from the British territories, declared illegal, and prohibited.

IT having been represented to the Court of Nizamut Adawlut that some of the magistrates are in the practice of sentencing vagrants, and persons convicted of specific offences, to banishment from the city or district in which they were apprehended, and even to expulsion from the British territories, I am directed to advise you that such sentences are wholly unwarranted by the Regulations in force, and to caution you against passing any future sentence or order of this nature.

2. I am, at the same time, directed to inform you that the Court do not mean to prohibit what they also understand to be an occasional practice, viz., the discharge from custody of a vagrant, or other person, not being a fixed inhabitant of a particular city or district, who may have been apprehended under any circumstances of suspicion, and may not be able to find security for his good behaviour, on his voluntary offer or consent to quit the jurisdiction in which he was taken into custody.

3. The Court observe, however, that this measure should, for obvious reasons, be adopted with circumspection, lest persons of bad character, released without security in one city or zillah, be left at liberty to commit acts of criminality in another jurisdiction.

I AM directed by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to transmit to you, for your information and guidance, the enclosed extract of a letter (Para. 69) from the Court of Directors, dated the 19th May, 1815, received with a letter from the Secretary to the Government in the judicial department, dated 29th December last.

Extract of a letter from the Honorable the Court of Directors, dated 19th May, 1815, in the Judicial Department.

69. It is stated by Mr. Rees that he invariably makes it a rule to pass sentence upon the prisoners in the most public manner, and to explain to them the enormity of their crimes, and that he had hopes, from the attention paid by the by-standers, that it had a good effect. It is a practice which cannot be too generally observed; and we strongly recommend that the judges do, in passing sentence on criminals, take the opportunities thus presented to them in crowded courts, of explaining the provisions of such penal enactments as may have been recently passed by the Government, and are but imperfectly known or understood by the community.

No. 161.

Transmitting a copy of a circular letter addressed to the several magistrates by order of the Nizamut Adawlut, and of its enclosure, regarding the security of convicts while proceeding by water from one place or station to another.

I AM directed by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to transmit to you, for your information, the accompanying copy of a circular letter written by order of the Court to the several magistrates on this date.

Copy of a letter written by order of the Nizamut Adawlut to the several magistrates, on the 24th February, 1816.

I am directed by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to transmit to you the enclosed extracts (Paras. 2 and 7) of a letter from the magistrate of Nuddea, received with a letter from the register to the Calcutta court of circuit, dated the 20th instant.

2. Instead of the proposition contained in the 7th paragraph of the magistrate's letter, the Calcutta court of circuit have suggested the propriety, either of confining convicts of dangerous character, on their passage by water from one station to another, entirely to the boat, or, if it be necessary that they should be occasionally removed on shore, that they may be permitted to land in small numbers only at a time.

3. The general use of hand-cuffs and neck-chains, would, the Court think, be objectionable, as endangering the lives of the convicts in case of accident to the boat by fire or otherwise: but in special instances they may be indispensable; and the Court do not, therefore, think fit to prohibit the practice, concluding that it is not resorted to, except in cases of emergency.

4. Nor does it appear expedient to prescribe any general rules in regard to the custody of convicts on their removal from one district to another, as the precaution for security in each instance should be adapted to the number and character of the prisoners.

5. But as frequent instances have lately occurred of attempts made by prisoners to overpower their guard, the Court have thought it proper to call your attention to the subject, that you may, by particular instructions to the guard, or otherwise, take such measures of precaution as may appear necessary for preventing similar attempts, without subjecting the prisoners to more restraint than may be requisite for their safe custody.

Extract of a Letter from the magistrate of Nuddea to the Register of the Calcutta Court of Circuit.

2. A party of the 30th regiment of native infantry consisting of one havildar, one naick, and twelve sepoys, were escorting in a boat 14 convicts, (under transportation for life, forwarded from the magistrate of Benares to the Twenty-four Pergunnahs,) and on the 14th instant, were passing down the Matahbanga river, in this district. In the evening they brought to, and the convicts were allowed, as usual, to go on shore for a few minutes, when, it seems, in returning to the boat, several of them rushed forward, and seized a spear, and musket, and a sword, with which they immediately attacked the sepoys, and a scuffle ensued, in which the havildar received a slight cut from the sword, and one of the convicts was wounded in the thigh by a musket shot from one of the sepoys, seven of whom fired on the prisoners. Seeing no prospect of success, all of the convicts, with the exception of three men, who remained in the boat, threw themselves into the river and attempted to escape; the sepoys then surrounded the spot on both sides of the river, and apprehended the prisoners as they came to the shore. Six of them were secured in this manner; but there is reason to apprehend that the remaining five convicts were drowned.

7. In conclusion, I beg leave to submit my opinion that all convicts of desperate and dangerous character, sent in boats, ought to be neck-chained, or hand-cuffed.

Communicating the establishment of insane hospitals at the principal station of each provincial division, and directing the removal of insane persons thither, with certain exceptions.

By a Circular Order of the Nizamut Adawlut under date the 6th* January, 1801, the several magistrates were directed to instruct their police officers to secure, and send to the sudder station of each district, all insane persons from whose insanity they might have reason to apprehend any fatal effects, unless their friends should enter into engagements to take such care of them as to prevent the possibility of their doing any mischief.

2. The same order contained instructions for the confinement of the insane persons referred to, with proper attendance, in a separate ward of the jail.

3. Insane hospitals having been established, since the date of this order, at the principal station of each provincial division, for the reception and care of insane natives sent from the different districts, the Court are of opinion that such persons should in general be removed to the hospital of the local division as soon as circumstances may admit.

4. The Court desire that you will instruct the several magistrates in your division accordingly; leaving it, however, to the discretion of the magistrates to detain under their charge any individuals confined on account of insanity, whose removal to the division hospital may appear to them objectionable.

5. Much unnecessary correspondence has been occasioned by the non-observance of this rule, and serious consequences have, in some instances, been experienced from a want of proper attention on the part of the magistrates to the crowded state of their jails.

6. You are desired to attend to this point in examining the future half-yearly reports of your division, and to require an immediate explanation from any of the magistrates who may not conform to the present orders; requiring them at the same time to supply the omission.

A person once tried upon any charge, and acquitted, not to be committed, or held to bail, for a second trial on the same charge.

AN instance having occurred of a magistrate's committing a person for trial before a court of circuit upon a charge for which he had previously been tried and acquitted by that court, and the Court of Nizamut Adawlut being of opinion that this practice, although sanctioned by the Mahomedan law, is inconsistent with established principles of justice, they desire, with the view of preventing any similar occurrence in future, that you will instruct the several magistrates in your division, not to commit or hold to bail for a second trial before the court of circuit, any person already tried and acquitted on the same charge by a competent tribunal, whether the court of circuit or Nizamut Adawlut.

2. This order, however, is not intended to preclude the magistrates from committing for trial before the court of circuit, in cases cognizable by that court, persons who may have been before apprehended and discharged by a magistrate from want of evidence, if further evidence in support of the charge, should appear to warrant the measure.

3. The Court will include a provision to the above effect in some future Regulation, and will, at the same time, propose an extension of it to the courts of circuit, (who are now required to regulate their proceedings by the opinions of their law officers on all points of law,) so as to restrict them from proceeding on the trial of persons already tried and acquitted by a competent tribunal, if a second commitment in any such case should be hereafter made by a magistrate.

Police darogahs violating the provisions of Regulation XIV., 1810, Section V., Clause 3, by holding out encouragement to persons apprehended on criminal charges to confess the same, noticed to the courts of circuit towards a prevention of the same for the future.

REPEATED instances having been brought to the notice of the Nizamut Adawlut of police darogahs acting in violation of the positive prohibition contained in the third clause of Section V., Regulation XIV., 1810, by holding out encouragement to persons apprehended on criminal charges to confess the same in expectation of obtaining a pardon or remission of punishment, the Court desire that you will instruct the magistrates in your division to issue perwannahs to the several police officers, within their respective jurisdictions, reminding them of the rule above cited, and enjoining their strict attention thereto, with an intimation that the Nizamut Adawlut, in any future instance which may come before them of a police darogah acting in opposition to the rule, will order the person so offending to be immediately dismissed from office.

2. The Court at the same time trust that your court, as well as the several magistrates, will exercise a vigilant control over the conduct of police officers as opportunities may offer, with the view of effectually checking an unwarrantable assumption of authority liable to the most serious objections.

Instructions of the Nizamut Adawlut, to the courts of circuit, regarding the mode and place of executing criminals sentenced to death.

BY the Circular Orders of the Nizamut Adawlut, under date the 5th March, 1810, a discretion was vested in the magistrates to execute criminals under sentence of death, at such place within their respective jurisdictions as might appear to them most expedient, causing the body to be afterwards exposed upon a gibbet, as near to the spot where the crime had been committed as circumstances should admit.

2. It was at the same time directed, that the necessary alteration should be made in the warrants issued by the courts of circuit. But on inspection of several returned warrants transmitted to the Nizamut Adawlut, after execution of the sentence, due attention does not appear to have been paid to this part of the order cited.

3. The Court have, therefore, caused the requisite alterations to be made in the printed form of warrant for sentences of death; and I am directed to send you the accompanying fifty copies, with instructions to return whatever number of copies of the old form you may at present have in store.

4. It being impossible to render the form of warrant applicable to every case, of male and female convicts; the Court rely on your particular attention to make such alterations as may be necessary, according to the terms of the sentence, in each instance, to which the warrant should of course conform as exactly as possible.

Transmitting to the courts of circuit, additional rules for the management of jails, and treatment of prisoners employed on the public roads, (passed agreeably to Regulation XIV., 1816, Sections II. and III.,) including a prohibition against the use of stocks.

I AM directed by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to transmit, for your information, the enclosed copy of some additional rules for the management of jails and treatment of prisoners, which have been circulated to the several magistrates on this date, in conformity with Sections II. and III., Regulation XIV., 1816.

Additional rules for the management of public jails, and treatment of prisoners employed on the public roads, proposed by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to be circulated, with the sanction of Government, for the guidance of the zillah and city magistrates, in pursuance of Sections II. and III., Regulation XIV., 1816, and approved by the Governor General in Council, on the 18*th April*, 1817.

First.—The construction of substantial public jails in each zillah and city jurisdiction, having rendered it unnecessary for the safe custody of prisoners in such jails, that they should be confined in stocks, except in special cases of exigency, the ordinary use of stocks in the public jails is hereby strictly prohibited. If at any time a magistrate, under special circumstances, shall consider the temporary use of stocks to be indispensably requisite for the custody of any of the prisoners under his charge, he is authorised to direct the same, but shall immediately transmit a full report of the case for the information and orders of the court of circuit of the division.

Second.—In addition to the seventh clause of Section III. of the rules passed by the Governor General in Council, on the 8th† February, 1811, and circulated to the several magistrates by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut, on the 14th March, 1811, it is hereby directed, with a view to guard against the possibility of fire, when convicts are employed on the roads and confined at night in a hut or tent, that no more than ten, or at the utmost twenty, convicts shall be secured with the same chain passing through the ring of their fetters. The chain to be made light, and put through the fetters whilst the prisoners are standing, in such manner as not to prevent their moving together with facility on an alarm of fire. The hut or tent in which the prisoners are confined at night, should also have a convenient number of doors for their speedy removal in the event of fire; and every precaution should be taken to prevent so serious an accident, especially by using lantherns to enclose any lamps that may be kept burning, or occasionally lighted during the night.

Third.—It appearing to be expedient for the health and cleanliness of convicts subject to hard labour, as well as for the convenience of the guards who have charge of them, that when circumstances may admit of it, they should be exempted from labour during one day in each week, the magistrates are required to observe as a general rule what is now the established practice in many districts, that, except on urgent occasions, when the labour of the convicts engaged in execution of any particular work cannot be dispensed with, they shall not be employed on Sundays, and at all events a part of every Sunday shall invariably be allowed to them, and to their guards, for purposes of cleanliness. The magistrates shall, at the same time, be careful that this indulgence is not abused by any misbehaviour, and shall adopt such measures as may appear best calculated to secure the due attainment of the object intended by it.

Fourth.—It shall also be at the discretion of the magistrates to authorise an intermission of labour at the principal Mussulman and Hindu festivals, as far as may appear indispensably necessary to enable the convicts of either persuasion to perform their religious ceremonies respectively; but not to any further extent than may be requisite for this purpose.

Copies of futwas of the law officers of the courts of circuit and of the Nizamut Adawlut, in criminal trials, to be furnished to such magistrates as may be concerned in them, to enable them to perform certain duties.

It has occurred to the Nizamut Adawlut that it will be useful to furnish the zillah and city magistrates with copies of the futwas of your law officers in all cases of sentences passed by the court of circuit, without reference to the Nizamut Adawlut, and with copies of the futwas of the law officers of the Nizamut Adawlut when the final sentence may be passed by this Court, as well to enable the magistrates to explain to each prisoner the grounds of the sentence passed upon him, as to assist them in the discharge of prisoners, in giving the certificate or roobukary prescribed in the Circular Order of 21st August, 1812.*

2. You are accordingly desired, in all instances of sentences hereafter passed by your Court without reference to the Nizamut Adawlut, to transmit with your warrant to the magistrate, a copy of the futwas delivered in the case by your law officer, and in like manner to forward to the proper magistrate, copies of the futwas of the law officers of the Nizamut Adawlut, (which are always sent to you with the sentences of the Court, in pursuance of their resolution under date the 5th September, 1811†,) whenever you may issue your warrants for the execution of sentences passed by the Nizamut Adawlut.

3. You are further desired to transmit a copy of this letter to the several magistrates within your division, for their information.

Communicating to the courts of circuit the observations of the Nizamut Adawlut, on the competency of those courts to admit

The Court of Nizamut Adawlut having had under their consideration a question referred to them on the competency of a court of circuit to admit a razeenamah, or compromise, in a criminal prosecution after commitment for trial by the magistrate, I am directed to communicate the following observations on the subject, for your information and guidance.

2. The only provision in the Regulations now in force which authorises the admission of a private compromise on criminal prosecutions, is that contained in a razeenamah between the parties in a criminal case, after commitment for trial by a magistrate.

* Omitted. For reasons, see Appendix.

† See No. 101, Vol. I. ‡ Calcutta excepted.

the latter part of Section VIII., Regulation IX., 1807, which directs that "excepting the trivial cases noticed in the section, no razeenamah shall be received without the special sanction of the magistrate; nor shall any private compromise be admitted by the magistrate, in crimes of a heinous nature, such as on conviction may require exemplary punishment for the ends of public justice."

3. The Court of Nizamut Adawlut are of opinion that the principle of the prohibition contained in the above clause, is applicable to, and obligatory upon, the whole of the criminal courts.

4. It follows that no court of circuit would be justified in admitting a compromise in crimes of a serious nature, such as require exemplary punishment for the ends of justice; especially crimes of this description which have been recognized as such in the Regulations, and when it may have been expressly directed that the offenders shall be brought to trial before the criminal courts.

5. The Court are further of opinion that a formal razeenamah, or compromise, ought not to be admitted by a judge of circuit to bar the trial of any commitment made by a magistrate, both as there is no provision for such in the existing Regulations, and as the established practice of discharging the prisoner on a futwa of acquittal, when evidence may not be adduced for his conviction, and the ends of public justice may not require a postponement of the trial for further evidence, appears preferable to the admission of a compromise, which might perhaps leave the prisoner exposed to a future prosecution.

Transmitting to the several magistrates the instructions of the Nizamut Adawlut, to guard against the frequent loss of lives by persons falling into uncovered wells.

THE frequent loss of lives by persons falling into uncovered wells, especially in the province of Behar, and some parts of the western provinces, having been brought to the notice of Government, I am directed by the Nizamut Adawlut, in pursuance of a desire expressed by the Honorable the Vice-President in Council, to communicate to you the following instructions, with a view to guard against such fatal accidents, as far as circumstances admit.

2. It is apprehended that casualties of this nature are, for the most part, beyond the reach of any legislative remedy which could be applied with propriety, and that any direct interference of the police officers would be not only ineffectual, but also occasion dissatisfaction.

3. But it is supposed that the influence and authority of the local magistrates might frequently be exerted with advantage, in inducing the proprietors of wells to adopt such measures as are calculated to prevent the occurrence of such accidents, or the recurrence of them when a loss of life may have actually taken place, in any instance, from the want of a parapet-wall round the well, or other proper and usual precaution.

4. You are accordingly desired to take every suitable occasion of advising and enjoining the proprietors of wells within your jurisdiction, to render them as secure as possible against accidents to travellers, or to persons who may be in the habit of using them; and whenever an instance may occur of accidental death, from the want of any due precaution on the part of the proprietor of a well, you will admonish and require him to adopt such measures as may appear proper and necessary to prevent any recurrence of a similar accident.

5. In the event of there being any public wells without proprietors, you will direct the local police officers to ascertain the state of them from time to time, and report to you whenever they may be insecure from the want of a parapet-wall, or otherwise, with a statement of the expense required to make them secure. If the expense so stated be inconsiderable, and appear, on inquiry, to be necessary for the purpose of securing a public well, you are authorised to defray it, and to charge the amount in your monthly contingent bill, with the usual explanation. But if the stated expense be, in any instance, more than fifty rupees, you will transmit the police officer's report, with your sentiments upon it, to the superintendent of police, in conformity with the rule prescribed for similar cases by Section XVII., Regulation XVII. 1816.

You are further desired to take every proper occasion, especially when the case of a child's being murdered to obtain its jewels or ornaments may come officially before you, to impress upon the minds of parents and other persons who may be present in court, the danger to which children are exposed by the practice of allowing them to go abroad with jewels and ornaments, unless attended by persons able to protect them, and the consequent imprudence and impropriety of their perseverance in a practice so often attended with effects as lamentable to themselves as fatal to the lives of their children.

Draft of a Proclamation to be published in the Persian, Bengallee, and Hindoostanee Languages.

It having come to the knowledge of Government through various channels of information, and particularly from the reports of the zillah and city magistrates, the courts of circuit, and superintendents of police, that frequent instances still occur in many parts of the territory subject to this presidency, especially in the western provinces, of the murder of children for the purpose of obtaining their gold and silver ornaments, and the Honorable the Vice-President in Council, being desirous of preventing as far as possible this atrocious and lamentable crime, so distressful to the parents and other relatives of the numerous children thus murdered from year to year, without having recourse to measures of a prohibitory and penal nature, which might interfere with established usages, and occasion loss of property or personal inconvenience, it is hereby notified by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut, with the sanction of Government, to all parents, guardians, and others, having the charge of young children, whether of the Hindu or Musulman religion, that whereas experience has shown the great danger of robbery and murder to which children are exposed by being allowed to go abroad from the house of their parents or other persons, having the care of them, with gold or silver ornaments, especially when not attended by trust-worthy persons capable of protecting them, it is the obvious duty of all parents and others entrusted with the care of children, to guard against such danger by removing the cause of temptation, and by not permitting any child under their charge to go from home with any gold or silver ornament, except in company with themselves or with other persons on whom they can depend, to guard against the possibility of any calamitous consequence which they must be well aware has too often ensued from a neglect of such precaution. The judges of circuit and the zillah and city magistrates have been further instructed to take every proper occasion of impressing upon the minds of parents and other persons who may be present at criminal trials in cases of child murder, the danger to which children are exposed by the imprudent practice of allowing them to go abroad with jewels and ornaments; and it is hoped that the respectable inhabitants of the country, as well from feelings of natural affection, as from a sense of moral duty, will be induced to show a strict and ready attention to such communications, as well as to the admonition contained in this notification, which can have no other object than to preserve the lives of many helpless children, and to prevent the distress of their relations from the loss of them. All parents and others having the care of children, are accordingly hereby expected and enjoined to maintain by their example and influence, a careful observance of the precaution recommended to them in this proclamation, which it may be confidently expected will effectually check the prevalent crime adverted to, and thereby preclude the necessity of adopting any other remedy. Dated ——— ; and published by order of the Court of Nizamut Adawlut, with the sanction of the Honorable the Vice-President in Council.

Doubts relative to the compensation to be made to a police darogah, while officiating for a suspended darogah of an adjoining thanna removed.

IN the resolution of Government, under date the 28th April, 1809, circulated to the several magistrates on the 10th May following,* it was directed, that whenever a police darogah should be suspended from office during the trial of a charge against him, and it be found necessary to appoint an acting darogah, the latter should receive the full salary of the office whilst he is so employed.

2. A question having occurred, whether in the event of a darogah being suspended, and his thanna placed during his suspension under the management of a darogah of an adjoining thanna, the latter under the orders above quoted is to receive the whole of the salary attached to both offices, and if not, what portion of the suspended darogah's salary is to be paid to him as compensation for his additional trouble, I am directed to communicate the following instructions for your guidance.

3. The Circular Order referred to does not appear strictly applicable to a person holding the office of a police darogah, and receiving his salary as such during his temporary appointment to the charge of another contiguous thanna; but if any additional allowance appear proper in consideration of the additional duty, in such a case the Court are of opinion it should in the first instance be paid out of the salary of the suspended darogah, subject to the provision already made for cases of ultimate acquittal.

4. The Court are further of opinon that the magistrate appointing the officiating darogah in such cases should regulate the amount of the allowance to be received by him, according to the extent of the trust, and the additional duty to be performed.

Observations and instructions on the inconvenience experienced by prosecutors and witnesses from the postponement of trials from one sessions to another.

THE Court are not aware of any rule or order which requires that in cases of the non-attendance of prosecutors before the courts of circuit, the trial must be postponed for two successive sessions, and the prisoner not discharged until the prosecutor shall fail to attend at a third session.

2. The Court observe that the provisions of Section XLIX., Regulation IX. 1793, (and of Section XVII., Regulation VII. 1803,) are expressly applicable to witnesses only; and with regard to them a discretion is vested in the judge of circuit to postpone the trial or not, according as the judge and law officer may be of opinion that the evidence of the absent witnesses is necessary or otherwise.

3. With regard to the case of absent prosecutors, for which there is no express rule in the Regulations, the Court are of opinion that a discretion should be exercised by the judge of circuit according to the nature and circumstances of each case; and that if both prosecutor and witnesses be absent from any cause which is not likely to prevent their attendance at a future period, the trial should be postponed, and the prisoner be admitted to bail, or kept in custody, as the judge of circuit, under the discretion vested in him by Clause 2, Section IX., Regulation IX. 1807, may deem it proper to direct.

4. On the other hand, when there may be no prospect of the future attendance of either prosecutor or witnesses in support of the prosecution, the prisoner should be discharged. If, however, the prosecutor only be absent, and his witnesses in attendance before the court of circuit, it has been a frequent practice to instruct the magistrate to appoint some person on the part of Government, to conduct the prosecution; and an adherence to this practice, especially when the charge may be such as to call for exemplary punishment on conviction, appears unexceptionable, and conducive to the ends of public justice, as well as more convenient for the witnesses in attendance, than a postponement of the trial to a future period.

5. The expedient suggested of removing the trial with the prisoner, prosecutor, and witnesses, to the next station of jail delivery on the circuit, might be adopted in particular cases, when the judge of circuit may see urgent and special grounds for authorizing and directing this mode of procedure; but the Court are of opinion that it cannot be adopted as an ordinary measure, applicable to all cases in which prosecutors and witnesses may neglect to attend the courts of circuit at the stated time, without risk of great inconvenience and hardship to parties and witnesses.

6. The sentiments of the Court of Nizamut Adawlut on the above points having received the full concurrence of the Honorable the Vice-President in Council, they are now communicated to your court, for your information and guidance.

Magistrates required to certify to the court of circuit, whenever they detain a prisoner for security for good behaviour, after he has been tried and discharged by the court of circuit

IT having been represented to the Nizamut Adawlut that prisoners tried and acquitted by the courts of circuit, are sometimes detained in custody by the magistrates and joint magistrates, notwithstanding such acquittal, under requisition of security for good behaviour, and it appearing proper that the courts of circuit should be duly informed of the grounds on which prisoners acquitted by them are detained in such cases, the Court of Nizamut Adawlut, with the concurrence of the Honorable the Vice-President in Council, desire you will communicate the following instructions to the several magistrates and joint magistrates within your division.

2. Whenever a magistrate or joint magistrate may see grounds for detaining in confinement a prisoner acquitted and ordered to be discharged by a court of circuit, he is required immediately to certify the same, together with a copy of his proceedings, for the information of the judge of circuit by whom the discharge of the prisoner may have been directed.

Prisoners once apprehended and discharged, but committed afresh for trial before the courts of circuit, the cause and result of the former apprehension to be stated on the proceedings of the second commitment,

IT having been represented to the Court of Nizamut Adawlut that when prisoners formerly apprehended and discharged, may stand committed to take their trial before the courts of circuit, on the charge of another offence, it would be useful to annex a report of the cause of their former apprehension, and of the result, to the magistrate's proceedings in the new trial, the Court desire that you will instruct the several magistrates within your division, whenever they may have occasion to commit for trial a prisoner who has been formerly apprehended, to attach to their proceedings a report from their principal native officer in the Foujdarry department, countersigned by themselves, stating concisely the date and ground of the former apprehension of each prisoner, and the issue of the case.

for the guidance of the courts of circuit.

2. The Court observe that the adoption of this measure may sometimes be attended with benefit to a prisoner, by showing that his former apprehension was on inadequate grounds, and that he was acquitted and released unconditionally.

3. On the other hand should the evidence against the prisoner on the new trial, be not sufficient for his conviction, but enough to warrant suspicion of his general character and livelihood, the report in question will enable the courts of circuit to refer more readily to the former proceedings, and to determine upon the propriety or otherwise of directing that the prisoner be required to give security for his future good behaviour.

I AM directed to transmit for your information and guidance, the accompanying copy of a letter addressed on the 23rd ultimo, by the acting chief secretary to Government, to the magistrate of Zillah Purnea.

(COPY.)

I am directed by the Honorable the Vice-President in Council to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 10th instant, forwarding copies of a correspondence which has taken place between you and Mr. Davidson, the surgeon attached to the civil station of Purnea.

2. On a full consideration of the questions discussed in that correspondence, the Vice-President in Council is of opinion that it would be objectionable to require the surgeons attached to civil stations, personally to perform the duty of inspecting previously to their removal, the bodies of all prisoners reported to have died in the jail: it appears to the Vice-President in Council to be sufficient that the orders issued on this head, on the 29th June, 1801,* be regularly adhered to; that the native doctors be selected with due attention to their qualifications; that the surgeons furnish to the native doctors such precautionary instructions as may be calculated to guard against the future occurrence of an accident of the same nature as that which led to the present correspondence; and that in any case in which there may appear to the native doctor or other officers associated with him, to be the slightest doubt with regard to the actual death of a prisoner, the body be not removed until it shall have been examined by the surgeon himself.

No. 209.

Transmitting copy of a letter from Government, authorising the magistrates to furnish to all indigent prisoners, the quantity and description of clothing, as is now, or may hereafter be, furnished to convicts; and specially authorising the magistrates within the divisions of Benares and Bareilly, to furnish annually an additional blanket beyond the articles now allowed to prisoners under their charge.

I AM directed by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to transmit to you, for the information and guidance of the several magistrates (or joint magistrates) subject to your authority, the accompanying copy of a letter from the secretary to Government in the judicial department, under date the 16th instant.

It is requisite that this should be circulated without delay.

Copy of a Letter from the Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department, dated the 16th October, 1818, to the Acting Register of the Nizamut Adawlut.

I am directed by His Excellency the Most Noble the Governor General in Council, to acknowledge the receipt of a letter from you, dated the 17th ultimo, with its enclosures.

2. Under the circumstances mentioned by the Court, the Governor General in Council is pleased to authorise the several magistrates throughout the lower and western provinces, to furnish to prisoners under examination, or committed for trial, and generally to all other prisoners, who may from indigence be unable to supply themselves, the same quantity and description of clothing, as is at present, or may hereafter be authorised, for those prisoners who are strictly denominated convicts.

3. The magistrates will exercise their discretion in furnishing such articles for the prisoners above alluded to, with reference to their real wants and necessities, whether at the time at which the prisoners may first be brought in, or at any other periods during their confinement.

4. The Governor General in Council entirely concurs with the Nizamut Adawlut, in the suggestion contained in the 6th paragraph of your letter; and he is accordingly pleased to authorise the magistrates of the several stations within the divisions of Benares and Bareilly, to furnish annually an additional blanket to the prisoners under their charge, beyond the articles at present allowed.

5. The Court are requested to communicate the purport of this letter through the courts of circuit, for the information and guidance of the several magistrates.

6. A copy of the correspondence will be sent to the civil auditor from this office, for his information and guidance.

7. I have the honor to return the accompanying original documents, which are not required for record in this office.

TO THE SEVERAL MAGISTRATES (AND JOINT MAGISTRATES)*

No. 210. November 19, 1818.

Directing the magistrates to exercise their discretion in placing prisoners charged with burglary in fetters, or not, according to the nature of the offence, and the character and circumstances of each prisoner, but having in view his safe custody.

It has appeared to the Nizamut Adawlut advisable to reconsider the Circular Order issued to the several magistrates, under date the 23rd July last, on the subject of confining in irons all prisoners committed for trial on charges of burglary. With reference to some new rules soon to be enacted for modifying the punishment of burglary, and to the trivial quality of the offence in some instances, which are nevertheless unavoidably classed under a description importing serious guilt, it appears expedient that you should exercise your discretion as to confining prisoners charged with burglary in fetters, or not, according to the nature of the offence charged, and the character and circumstances of the individual prisoner, having in view merely to ensure the prisoner's safe custody.

TO THE COURTS OF CIRCUIT.

No. 215. January 25, 1819.

Calling the attention of the courts of circuit to a circular letter, dated 12th August, 1813, on the subject of being in possession of property obtained by theft or robbery, as distinguished from the offence of knowingly receiving such property; and transmitting the further observations of the Nizamut Adawlut on such cases.

The Court of Nizamut Adawlut direct me to call your attention to a circular letter written by their order to the several courts of circuit, under date the 12th August, 1813, on the subject of being in possession of property obtained by theft or robbery, as distinguished from the offence of knowingly receiving property so obtained.

2. Against this offence of knowingly receiving property obtained by theft or robbery, the penalties of Sections VII. and VIII., Regulation I. 1811, (now superseded by the provisions contained in Section V., Regulation XII. 1818,) were particularly directed.

3. With respect to the act of having possession of property obtained by theft or robbery, without having received it with the knowledge that it was so obtained, such knowledge having only subsequently arisen, it was mentioned in the last paragraph of the circular letter above alluded to, that this act was "of course punishable under the Mahomedan law and the Regulations;" but by this it was not intended to declare that it was in every instance punishable, as it must obviously depend on the circumstances of each particular case whether the act in question is, or is not, a criminal offence.

4. Where it is determined, on the circumstances, to be an offence, and is left punishable by the futwa at discretion (as the act is evidently of a very different complexion from that of being a criminal receiver of stolen goods, and thereby a principal encourager of goods being stolen,)

* A copy of this letter was, on the same date, sent to the several courts of circuit.

it is the opinion of the Nizamut Adawlut that it should be punished as a misdemeanor not of a very serious nature, and that the sentence should by no means be made the same with that hitherto appointed for the offence of knowingly receiving stolen property, namely, seven years' imprisonment with stripes, which, however, has been observed in some of the abstract statements of prisoners punished without reference, lately transmitted.

5. In instances which may hereafter come before the courts of circuit, and in which the fact of possessing or keeping possession of property acquired as above stated, may be determined, on the circumstances, to be a criminal offence, it appears to the Nizamut Adawlut that, viewing it as a common misdemeanor, a sentence equal to that to which the magistrates are limited by the new Regulation XII. of 1818, is sufficient in most cases, as a maximum of punishment: accordingly, in any instance where a higher penalty may have been adjudged, the Nizamut Adawlut desire that a particular statement of the grounds of such sentence may be inserted in the abstract statement of prisoners punished without reference.

6. From the remarks contained in the foregoing paragraphs, it will be seen how essential it is, in the trial of charges for receiving stolen property, or property acquired by robbery, not only that the evidence to ground a conviction, should go to the mode and circumstances of the receipt, and not to the mere fact of possession, but also that the law officer, where it is intended by him to convict of the criminal receipt, should specify the same clearly and precisely in the terms made use of in the futwa.

7. By the fourth clause of Section IV., Regulation XII. of 1818, it is provided, under the circumstances there stated, that the fact of having possession of property acquired by theft or robbery, the knowledge that it was so acquired having only arisen since the receipt of it by the possessor, may be punished by the magistrate with a period of imprisonment not exceeding two years, and corporal punishment not exceeding thirty rattans. Under the discretion which this rule allows to the magistrate, and the construction of it which the Court of Nizamut Adawlut have adopted, the magistrate is considered to have a discretion not to punish at all, in cases in which no criminal act shall appear to be fairly imputable to the bonâ fide purchaser or possessor of property acquired by robbery or theft.

8. You are requested to circulate a copy of this letter for the information of the several magistrates within your division.

No. 224.

Restricting the magistrates in the western provinces, from passing sentence, imposing fetters on offenders convicted of misdemeanors, except in cases of special necessity.

WITH reference to certain instances which have lately come under the notice of the Nizamut Adawlut, of persons sentenced by the magistrates in cases of misdemeanor, having been worked on the roads, and put into fetters, when such exposure was not necessary or proper, with reference to the offence committed, and the class or profession of the offender; I am directed to communicate, for the information and guidance of the magistrates in your division, the enclosed extracts (paragraphs 7 and 8) from a circular letter,* under date the 20th April last, addressed by order of the Nizamut Adawlut to the courts of circuit in the lower provinces.

2. I am further directed to communicate that the Court have now resolved, that the magistrates shall be restricted generally from passing a sentence, in cases of misdemeanor, for fetters being placed on the offender; and that fetters shall not be used in such cases, except in the event of special necessity arising out of bad conduct of the offender during his imprisonment, which may make such restraint indispensable for his security. The magistrates, therefore, in placing fetters under this restriction, on any person convicted of misdemeanor, will record on their proceedings the grounds of the measure in each case.

Desiring the courts of circuit to observe an uniform practice as herein described, in obtaining the exposition of the law from the presiding law officer, in trials for murder.

THE Court observing that in trials for murder an uniform practice is not observed by the several courts of circuit, in obtaining the exposition of the law from the law officer presiding at the trial,—that in some of the courts an additional question is put to the law officer whether the crime of wilful murder is proved against the prisoner or prisoners, or any of them, to which the law officer subscribes a distinct concise answer, that it is proved, or that it is not proved, after which the law officer is called on for his general futwa in the case, but that, in other courts, this course is not regularly pursued, and the Court deeming the practice above described to be best calculated to remove all doubts regarding the intention of the law officer, I am directed to desire that it may be uniformly pursued hereafter throughout the several courts of circuit.

Transmitting an extract of a letter from the chief secretary to Government, and authorising the admission into the public jails, of the armed attendants of a judge of circuit when accompanying him on his visits to those jails at the periodical sessions.

I AM directed by the Nizamut Adawlut to transmit, for your information and guidance, and that of the several magistrates in your division, the enclosed extract (paragraph 2) from a letter to my address from the chief secretary to Government, under date the 31st ultimo, occasioned by a reference from Mr. Courtney Smith, and connected with the visits of the judge of circuit to the jails of the different stations at the periodical sessions.

You are requested to instruct the several magistrates accordingly.

Extract of a Letter from the Chief Secretary to Government, under date the 31st December, 1819.

PARA. 2. No practical inconvenience is likely to result from the armed attendants of a judge of circuit accompanying their master on the occasion of his visiting the jails, and it will be sufficient that the magistrates be instructed to apprise the European or native officers commanding the guards stationed at the jails, that the rule precluding the admission of armed men into the jails, is not intended to apply to persons whom the judge of circuit may take with him on his visits to the jails. To prevent the chance of any mistake, however, the magistrates may be conveniently directed to repeat this notification on the arrival of the judge of circuit at the station, or at the commencement of each sessions of jail delivery.

TO THE COURTS OF CIRCUIT IN THE WESTERN AND LOWER PROVINCES.

September 1, 1820. No. 239.

The courts of circuit required to state, in the abstract statements of sentences passed without reference, at present furnished to the Nizamut Adawlut, the circumstances which induced the magistrates to commit to the courts of circuit, cases of theft, burglary, or receipt of stolen property, instead of disposing of such cases themselves; and requesting that the magistrates be also instructed hereafter to record such information in their roobukarees of commitment.

THE Nizamut Adawlut direct me to request, that hereafter, in the abstract statements of sentences passed without reference, the judge of circuit will make it a rule to state, with regard to convictions for theft, burglary, or receipt of stolen property, what were the circumstances which induced commitment to the court of circuit, and took the cases out of the magistrate's competence to pass sentence.

2. There are many cases in which the abstract statements, as now made out, necessarily show this; but there are also many in which the Nizamut Adawlut have no means of seeing why the cases were committed, or whether the commitments were proper.

3. With a view to facilitate a compliance with this order, the courts of circuit are desired to instruct the several magistrates within their division, to make a point of recording on their roobukarees of commitment, the express circumstance or circumstances of aggravation, which may have led them to commit the case, instead of disposing of it themselves, under Regulation XII. of 1818.

Transmitting an extract of a letter from the chief secretary to Government, relative to the exercise of the authority vested in the magistrates for securing the aid and influence of the proprietors and local managers or agents of estates, in the performance of the police duties imposed upon them.

I AM directed by the Nizamut Adawlut to transmit to you, with a view to its being communicated to the several magistrates and joint magistrates in your division, for their information and guidance, the enclosed extract of a letter (paragraphs 4, 5 and 6,) from the chief secretary to Government, under date the 13th ultimo.

When you have made the required communication, you are requested to report the same to the Nizamut Adawlut.

Extract of a Letter from the Chief Secretary to Government, to the Register of the Sudder Dewanny Adawlut, under date the 13th October, 1820.

PARA. 4. His Lordship in Council cannot but apprehend that much of the reluctance felt by the proprietors and managers of estates to give their ready and active assistance in matters of police, is not unfrequently to be ascribed to an injudicious and intemperate use of the authority vested in the magistrates to enforce certain police duties from the zemindars.

5. The discharge of those duties by the proprietors and managers of estates, or their agents, is undoubtedly essential to an efficient police; but a harassing, vexatious, and indiscriminate interposition of the magistrate's authority, in cases of trifling importance, is not calculated to secure their useful co-operation. If the proprietors of estates are compelled to attend at the magistrate's cutcherry, to answer for every petty inattention or supposed irregularity in the discharge of the duties entrusted to them, they will naturally be led to avoid residing on their estates, and to thwart rather than to forward the views of the magistrates. The powers vested in the magistrates are abundantly sufficient to enable them to visit with severity any frequent disregard or violent breach of the police duties intrusted to zemindars; but their willing and cordial, and really useful aid, is to be obtained only by a temperate and conciliatory, though firm, exercise of those powers; by a liberal consideration of trivial errors or defects; by an uniform acknowledgment of useful services; and by the willing distribution of praise and reward when merited.

6. Under this impression, His Lordship in Council is of opinion that the Court of Sudder Dewanny Adawlut and Nizamut Adawlut might conveniently take the present opportunity to circulate to the magistrates and joint magistrates generally, such observations as might appear calculated effectually to discourage a harsh and intemperate exercise of the authority vested in the magistrates for securing the performance of the police duties imposed upon the proprietors and local managers or agents of estates, and might lead to the general observance of a cautious, discreet, and conciliatory line of conduct, in securing the invaluable aid and influence of the persons above alluded to in matters of police, which can never be obtained by unnecessary harshness and indiscriminate severity.

THE Court having lately had occasion to observe that many irregularities are committed by the police officers in conducting the search for stolen or plundered property, which they are authorised to make under the rules contained in Section XVI., Regulation XX., 1817, I am directed to desire that you will instruct the magistrates and joint magistrates in your division, to conform strictly to the rules prescribed for the purpose in the section above quoted, and to be particular in the transmission of the chullan, or dispatch, of stolen or suspected property obtained during a search, in the form No. 3 prescribed by that Regulation.

Transmitting an extract from the resolutions of Government, for the information and guidance of the magistrates in the lower provinces, requiring the public officer to whose department the work may belong, to report to Government delays in the execution of repairs and alterations of public buildings.

THE Court of Nizamut Adawlut direct me to forward to you, for your information and guidance, the subjoined extract (paragraph 6) from the resolutions of Government in the judicial department, received with Mr. Secretary Prinsep's letter to my address of the 15th ultimo.

2. You are requested to make the necessary communication to the several magistrates subject to your authority.

Extract from the Resolutions of Government in the Judicial Department, dated the 15th April, 1822.

PARA. 6. His Lordship in Council has, on more than one occasion, had to remark upon the delays, which, for one cause or another, have retarded the execution of repairs and alterations of public buildings in the Dacca division, after they have been sanctioned by Government, and ordered to be effected through the superintendent of civil buildings, and, in the lower provinces, his subordinate officers. The great extent of country allotted to each of these officers, and the variety of works in hand, together with their distance from each other, are doubtless some of the principal causes of these delays. His Lordship in Council, however, in order to obviate as much as possible the serious inconveniences resulting therefrom, resolves, that henceforward the superintendent of civil buildings be on every occasion desired to state the particular arrangement made to put the work in train of execution, and the date on which it will be commenced and finished. In case the assistants in that department should be otherwise employed, so as to render it impossible for them to commence the work at the time; or if, for any other reason, no progress shall have been made on the date indicated to Government, it will be the duty of the magistrate, or other public officers, to whose department the work may belong, to report the circumstances to Government, in order that measures suitable to the exigency of the case may be taken.

Communicating, for the information and guidance of the magistrates, the resolution recorded by Government, that any expenses occasioned by neglect of a superior court's order, directing the restoration of a native officer to office, shall be made good by the person guilty of such inattention.

I AM desired by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to acquaint you that an instance has lately been brought to the notice of Government, in which a magistrate omitted to restore a native officer to office, whose restoration was directed by the Nizamut Adawlut, under Clause 7, Section VII., Regulation XVII. 1816, and large arrears of salary having become due to such officer, the question arose from what funds the arrears were to be discharged, his salary pending his exclusion from office having been paid to his substitute. In the particular instance alluded to, the amount was defrayed by Government; but his Lordship in Council has at the same time recorded a resolution that as Government ought not to be responsible for any expenses occasioned by such inattention, he will be prepared, on the recurrence of any similar instance, to direct such part of the extra charge as may have arisen from non-compliance with orders, to be retrenched from the allowances of the person by whose fault the restoration to office may have been delayed, after receipt of orders to that effect from a superior court.

Transmitting extracts from the report of the superintendent of police in the western provinces for 1820, and of the register's letter to Government thereon; and directing the magistrates to be cautious in issuing circulars, and to furnish the superintendents with copies of them; those authorities recommending to the provincial courts the reversal of any they may deem objectionable, and communicating any difference of opinion between them and the provincial courts, to the Nizamut Adawlut.

I AM desired to forward to you the accompanying extracts (paragraphs 275 to 280) from the report of the superintendent of police in the western provinces, for the year 1820, and an extract (paragraph 4) from a letter this day written to the officiating secretary to Government, in the judicial department, by order of the Court.

2. You are requested to furnish the several magistrates within your division, with a copy of these extracts, for their information and guidance.

Extracts from the Report of the Superintendent of Police in the Western Provinces, for the year 1820.

PARA. 275. I shall now beg the attention of His Lordship in Council to a practice which I have reason to think prevails throughout the country. I allude to the issue of circular orders by the magistrates for the guidance of the police officers and zemindars.

276. Although Regulation XX., 1817, apparently defines very particularly all the duties to be performed by the police officers, there will always be some minute forms of proceeding in which the magistrates are fully justified in issuing instructions, although not actually enjoined by the above quoted or any other Regulation; but as these circular orders are intended to have, and ought to have, all the effects of laws, it appears to me absolutely necessary that the magistrates should not be allowed to issue them without the previous sanction of the Government, unless they should be for the purpose of publishing a Regulation or rule of a superior Court.

277. A Circular Order of the Nizamut Adawlut, dated May 7th, 1812,† communicated to the magistrates the desire of Government that they should refrain from issuing publications of a general nature to the inhabitants of the provinces; but I do not think that these orders have been much attended to, for very numerous Circular Orders have been issued by the magistrates in these provinces since that date, without any previous reference, and many of them are addressed to the inhabitants generally, as well as to the police officers.

* Gibbeting bodies is prohibited. Vide No. 140, Vol. II.
† See No. 112, Vol. I.

278. There is a rule which I think every magistrate ought to impose upon himself, that of never issuing an order which he cannot enforce, or of threatening what he has not power to execute. A strict observance of this law will teach the magistrate to weigh carefully every order he gives, and prove to the inhabitants of his jurisdiction that his word is always law, and that implicit obedience is the best policy. It will be at once seen how dangerous this uncontrolled license to legislate must frequently prove, when not checked by sound judgment and discretion. The magistrate perceives what he conceives to be wrong, and a great inconvenience to the people themselves ; he immediately reforms it by a Circular Order, to which he cannot enforce obedience, even if he can ascertain that it is disregarded, which he frequently cannot. Such an order is one to the following effect, issued by a magistrate in the upper provinces in March 1820 :—"It appearing that various descriptions of weights and measures are used in the district, and it being proper that they should be reduced to one standard, it is ordered that the seer shall consist of 96 sicca weight, and the yard (guz) of two hauths, and that these weights and measures be sealed with the seal of the court, and that any one using others shall be punished." This order is calculated to have no other effect than that of lowering the magistrate in the opinion of the people, for they will not obey it, and he cannot enforce it. The following is a greater stretch of power, and in my opinion not only altogether illegal, but in many parts highly objectionable :—"The putwarees are directed to keep a descriptive list of the cattle in their respective villages : no sale of cattle to take place on a road or plain : cow-keepers to inform when stray cattle come among their flocks : when a sale of cattle takes place, the putwaree shall grant to the purchaser a certificate descriptive of the cattle, and containing the name of the seller : he shall also enter all this in a book, kept for the purpose, and receive a fee of two pice on every sale. When newly-purchased cattle shall be brought to his village, the putwaree shall enter their description in his book, and receive one pie. If any person brings an ox or cow to the village, without a certificate, the putwaree shall inform the darogah. The putwaree shall also make a list of the people residing in his village, men, women, and children, and of their cattle."

279. Now, the magistrate has certainly no authority which allows him to invest the putwarees with police powers, and to demand fees ; nor could he punish any one for disobeying his order, which seems to me calculated to harass and annoy the people much more than the offence which it was intended to prevent. Another magistrate, not satisfied with directing the general appointment of village chowkeedars, issued an order, that they should be dressed in a particular uniform, to distinguish them from the other inhabitants.

280. I submit the above as specimens of Circular Orders, and if they are not sufficiently demonstrative of the expediency of checking the practice of issuing them, I could produce many more equally objectionable. But on general grounds that the magistrates should not impose laws without the sanction of the Government, I beg leave to recommend that it be ordered, that every Circular Order which the magistrates may think it necessary to issue, shall be submitted through this office, for the approval either of the Governor General in Council, or of the Nizamut Adawlut, and that the order be not published until sanctioned by one of those authorities.

Extract of a letter from the Acting Register of the Nizamut Adawlut, to the Acting Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department, dated 16th August, 1822.

PARA. 4. The Court beg leave to express their concurrence generally in the opinion entertained by Mr. Ewer, as to the impropriety of circular instructions being issued by the magistrates; and, with the view of checking the prevalence of so objectionable a practice, the Court have resolved to circulate to the several magistrates, through the courts of circuit, those paragraphs of Mr. Ewer's letter which have relation to the subject; to enjoin them, at the same time, to be particularly cautious in the promulgation of general or Circular Orders, and to furnish the superintendents of police, immediately on their promulgation, with a copy of all orders, of the description, which they may deem it necessary to issue. The superintendents of police will also be requested to communicate to the provincial courts of the several divisions, with a view to their reversal, any orders of a general or circular nature, issued by the magistrates, which they may consider objectionable; and in the event of any difference of opinion between those authorities as to the tendency of such orders, to refer the point to this Court for final adjustment.

I am desired to request, that you will instruct the several magistrates and joint magistrates, subject to your jurisdiction, that in all complaints preferred to them for offences which are clearly bailable, and in which there

The magistrates should further certify on the record, the offer (and the terms of it) of the liberation on bail, taking particular care, at the same time, that the amount demanded be not excessive, or in any way disproportionate to the nature of the offence, or the circumstances in life of the accused party.

THE Court of Nizamut Adawlut having experienced much inconvenience in the consideration of evidence in trials wherein articles of stolen or plundered property have been produced without due precaution having been taken before the court of circuit, in numbering and describing each article separately, I am instructed to communicate the following orders for the future guidance of your court and of the magistrates subject to your authority.

2. In all trials, wherein property may be produced in court as evidence against persons accused, the judge of circuit presiding at the trial, will be careful to describe in his proceedings, and to quote the number of each article of property produced before the court of circuit, and adverted to in the examinations of parties and witnesses on the trial, according to the description and number affixed to such article in the chullan or despatch, which the police darogah is required to transmit to the magistrate, by clause 2, Section XVI., Regulation XX. 1817.

3. The magistrates will require their police darogahs to pay strict attention to the rule above quoted, and, in their proceedings on Transmitting extract of a letter from Government, and requiring the magistrates and joint magistrates to adopt the mode of proceeding therein pointed out, on any occasion of the number of prisoners being greater than can be conveniently accommodated in the proper jail.

I AM desired by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to transmit to you the accompanying extract (paragraphs 3 and 4) of a letter from the chief secretary to Government, under date the 4th instant, and to require that you will in future adopt the mode of proceeding therein pointed out, on any occasion of the number of prisoners being greater than can be conveniently accommodated in the proper jail.

Extract of a letter from the Chief Secretary to Government to the Register of the Nizamut Adawlut, under date the 4th March, 1824.

PARA. 3. The circumstances stated in the correspondence which accompanied your letter, as well as on former occasions of a similar nature, render it expedient, in the judgment of Government, that a Circular Order should be issued by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut, to all the magistrates and joint magistrates, authorising and enjoining them, whenever the number of prisoners may be greater than can be conveniently accommodated in the proper jail, to hire, without previous application to Government, any suitable buildings which may be procurable, or to accommodate a portion of the prisoners in tents or boats, or to incur such expense as may be necessary to provide, in any other manner, for the temporary shelter and safe custody of the prisoners.

4. On such occasions the magistrates should forthwith report the arrangements they may adopt for the information of the Nizamut Adawlut and of Government, explaining, at the same time, the cause of any sudden augmentation in the number of prisoners, which may have rendered such temporary arrangements necessary.

Transmitting an extract from the Court's resolutions on the subject of referring to them all trials, in which the prisoners may be convicted of administering poisonous drugs to persons, with a view to robbing them when in a state of insensibility, whether death may ensue, or otherwise.

I AM directed by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to transmit, for your information and future guidance, an extract (paragraph 6) from the resolutions of the Court of this date, relative to the crime of administering poisonous drugs to persons, with a view to robbing them when in a state of insensibility.

2. I am further directed by the Court to observe that, under their construction of clause 4, Section VIII., Regulation XVII. 1817, as applicable to such cases, it will be necessary to refer, for the final sentence of the Nizamut Adawlut, all trials in which the prisoner or prisoners may be convicted of the offence in question, whether death may ensue or otherwise.

PARA. 6. The Court regret to observe that the crime of administering poisonous drugs to travellers and other persons, with a view of robbing them when in a state of insensibility, appears to be increasing both in the lower and western provinces. They do not however consider that any further enactment is necessary for the punishment of persons guilty of this atrocious crime, as, in the event of death ensuing, the offender would on conviction be liable to the punishment of wilful murder, and when death may not ensue, as life is endangered by administering poisonous drugs in order to cause insensibility, such cases appear to come within the provisions of clause 4, Section VIII., Regulation XVII. 1817, relative to cases of robbery and theft, or the attempt to commit such, when accompanied with an

The Court of Nizamut Adawlut have had before them your fourth judge's letter, dated the 19th ultimo, in reply to the orders of this Court, under date the 7th of March last.

2. I am desired to communicate to you, for the information and guidance of your fourth judge, that the explanation furnished by him, regarding the punishment of stripes inflicted upon the prisoner Sohrye, is by no means satisfactory, and that, in the opinion of the Court, Section VII., Regulation XVII. 1817, was merely intended (as is manifest from the wording of the doubt which the enactment was made to explain) to limit the term of imprisonment, in commutation of deyut, to seven years, and not to authorise the infliction of stripes, which punishment, the Court conceive, can hardly be applicable with propriety to any case of culpable homicide.

3. The Court therefore desire that in future your fourth judge will refrain from awarding the infliction of corporal punishment in similar cases.

Transmitting extracts from the report of the superintendent of police in the lower provinces for 1822, and from the resolutions of Government

I AM desired by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to transmit to you the accompanying extract (paragraphs 60 to 64, both inclusive) from the report of the superintendent of police in the lower provinces, for the year 1822, together with a copy of the statement marked D in the appendix to the report, and copy of paragraphs 55 and 56 of the resolutions of Government on the said report, with directions that you will adopt the statement in question in future, and transmit it with your circuit reports.

Extract from the Report of the Superintendent of Police in the Lower Provinces for the year 1822, under date the 15*th October*, 1823.

thereon, and desiring the transmission to the Nizamut Adawlut in future, by the judges of circuit, of the statement proposed by Mr. Shakespear.

PARA. 60. The foregoing details will, I imagine, sufficiently point out the extreme inconvenience, (as far as regards the duty imposed on me of comparing the statements submitted to my office by the magistrates with those furnished by the judges of circuit to the Nizamut Adawlut,) which arises from the judges of circuit submitting statements of the number of crimes committed in a district, which neither correspond in form with any statements in use in the magistrate's office, nor with those transmitted by the courts of circuit generally.

61. There surely can be no difficulty in making these statements so complete as to contain all the information which they profess to give, in one uniform shape, so that a reference may be made to any particular description of crime, without the confusion and perplexity which must attend any attempt to reconcile them in their present form.

62. The abstract in English forwarded quarterly to my office, showing the description and number of crimes committed in the past three months, the number of persons supposed to be concerned in them or apprehended, the amount of property robbed or stolen, and the amount recovered, does not include some crimes for which commitments are sometimes made and persons punished by the courts of circuit, the omission of which is made up by other statements received by me, drawn out in the Persian language: it is desirable, however, for the information of the courts of circuit, that they should comprise every kind of crime usually brought before these courts, and I accordingly take the liberty of submitting a form of statement (vide appendix D) which, without being unnecessarily prolix, will, it appears to me, be the means of saving an infinity of trouble to those whose duty it may be to refer to them.

63. I have entered in the statement every class of crimes on which the Government require particular information from my office, and have added such as are usually found in those required from the magistrates by the courts of circuit: should any judge of circuit have occasion to add any crimes not specified, the addition may easily be made in continuation of the list, and any remarks as to the incorrectness of the statement might be noticed at the foot of it, or explanation required from the magistrate before it is transmitted to the superior Court.

64. I beg to recommend that the Nizamut Adawlut may be requested to direct the courts of circuit to adopt this form of statement in future.

PARA. 55. The Superintendent, from paragraphs 46 to 64 of his report, has dwelt with considerable length on the difficulty at present experienced in reconciling the statements of crimes furnished by the magistrates to his office, with those submitted to the Nizamut Adawlut by the judges of circuit, and has suggested a specific form to be adopted in the preparation of those statements in future. That form appears well calculated to obviate the inconvenience now felt in comparing the statements; and its adoption will tend to facilitate the detection and explanation of any discrepancy or incorrectness in the information thus afforded to Government.

56. With reference to the paragraphs above referred to, the Nizamut Adawlut will be requested to issue instructions to the several courts of circuit in the western as well as lower provinces, directing them to adopt the statement in future in their reports to that Court. It will of course be the duty of the judges of circuit, at the same time to notice any omission which they may discover in the statement, either from particular cases brought before them, or from any other satisfactory source of information obtained during their visits at the several stations of their respective divisions. The superintendents of police, both in the lower and the western provinces, will likewise be directed to communicate these remarks, with copy of the form, to the several magistrates, for their careful observance.

Authorising the judges of circuit to exercise their discretion in concluding the trial of the prisoners whose cases may be completed, and passing sentence on them;

I AM desired by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to transmit, for your information and guidance, the accompanying extract from the report of the fourth judge of the Calcutta court of circuit, on the conclusion of the first sessions of the present year in that division, and from the remarks and resolutions of the Nizamut Adawlut thereon, bearing this date.

2. You will accordingly consider yourselves competent to adopt the course of proceeding alluded to, under the circumstances therein specified.

postponing a final decision on that part of the trial only, which affects the prisoners for whom further evidence may be required.

Extract of a Report from Mr. R. Walpole, fourth Judge of the Calcutta Court of Circuit, on the conclusion of the first sessions of 1824 of the division, under date the 18*th October,* 1824.

PARA. 67. It sometimes happens that trials in which more than one prisoner are arraigned, cannot be concluded during the sessions at which they are commenced, from the absence of witnesses summoned on the part of a few of the prisoners, after the case for the prosecution, the defence of the accused, and all the evidence indicated by the majority of them, have been gone through; and the customary practice on such occasions appears to be to postpone the conclusion of the trial in toto, without making any distinction between the prisoners whose cases may have been brought to a close, and those on whose part further evidence may be required.

68. This mode of proceeding appears to me objectionable, inasmuch as in some instances it is attended with hardship and injustice to those prisoners, whose innocence may have been established, or against whom there may not be satisfactory presumption of guilt. The power vested in a judge holding the sessions, of admitting prisoners to bail, is not, in my opinion, sufficient to meet the evil. Bail is not easily obtainable by many persons in such situation

69. In cases such as above described, I think a judge on circuit should be declared competent to exercise his discretion in concluding the trial of prisoners, whose cases may be completed, by calling for a futwa, and passing sentence on them; postponing a final decision on that part of the trial only, which affects the prisoners for whom further evidence may be required.

PARA. 20. The Court are not aware of any objection to the adoption of the measure suggested by the judge of circuit, in cases where there may be several prisoners, and the evidence respecting part of them may be completed; but it may be necessary to postpone the trial to a future sessions for further evidence respecting some of the prisoners; viz., that in such cases "the judge of circuit should be declared competent to exercise his discretion, in concluding the trial of the prisoners whose cases may be completed, and passing sentence on them; postponing a final decision on that part of the trial only, which affects the prisoners for whom further evidence may be required."

Transmitting, for the information of the magistrates and joint magistrates, and for the future guidance of their police officers, copies of a letter from the acting register of the Nizamut Adawlut, to the acting magistrate of Cuttack, relative to cases of forgery and abortion.

I AM directed by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to forward to you for your information, and for the future guidance of your police officers, the accompanying copy of the answer that was given by the Nizamut Adawlut, on the 10th December, 1819, to a letter from the acting magistrate of Cuttack, soliciting their instructions whether the darogahs of police and other police officers shall or shall not be allowed to investigate charges of forgery, and of abortion, or of causing the commission of these crimes.

Copy of a Letter to the Acting Magistrate of Zillah Cuttack, addressed by the Acting Register of the Nizamut Adawlut, under date the 10*th December*, 1819.

I am directed by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to acknowledge the receipt of a letter from you, dated the 9th ultimo, soliciting the instructions of the Court, whether the darogahs of police and other police officers shall or shall not be allowed to investigate charges of forgery, and of abortion, or of causing the commission of these crimes.

2. With respect to forgery or procuring the commission of it, the Court are of opinion that as these offences come clearly within the general description of heinous offences, not excepted by clause 1, Section XIII., Regulation XX. 1817, from the cognizance of the police darogahs on charges or information on oath to that effect before a police darogah, (or other officer of police authorised by the above-mentioned Regulation to exercise in his absence the powers vested in him,) he is bound to proceed to the investigation of such charge in conformity with the general rules prescribed for his guidance.

3. In regard to abortion or procuring it, the Court do not consider these offences to be of a heinous description, unless death ensue; and where this is not the case, they are of opinion that such charges partake of the nature of those specified in clause 1, Section XII., Regulation XX. 1817, and should not therefore be investigated by the darogahs of police or other police officers without the special orders of the magistrate.

4. The Court consider that to allow the darogahs of police indiscriminately to take cognizance of charges of this description, would be liable to much abuse, and they are further of opinion that in general the investigation of them should be conducted by the magistrate rather than by the officers of police.

5. Rules for the management and control of the native insane hospitals, passed by the Governor General in Council, and printed and circulated by order of Government on the 23rd October, 1818.

will of course be subject to the rules for the management of those hospitals passed by the Governor General in Council, on the 23rd October, 1818, or if detained by the magistrates or joint magistrates for any special reasons, under the discretion given by the Circular Order of the 12th June, 1816, will be included in the explanations in the half-yearly reports of prisoners to be transmitted, through the courts of circuit, to the Nizamut Adawlut, as directed in the order last mentioned. No further instructions, therefore, appear to be required concerning this description of insanes, except that the judges of circuit holding the periodical jail deliveries of the several zillahs and cities, should be careful to ascertain, by inquiry from the surgeon or otherwise, the actual condition and state of mind of all such persons who may be detained by a magistrate or joint magistrate, and issue any orders that may appear requisite and proper, consistently with the object for which they are kept in custody.

3. When persons brought before a magistrate or joint magistrate in a state of alleged insanity, may be charged with having committed any criminal act of a serious nature, such as supposing them not to be insane, would render them on conviction liable to punishment, he should, in the first instance, make a full inquiry to ascertain the fact of their real insanity, and if it be proved to his satisfaction that the person charged is really insane, he should close his proceedings with a statement of his opinion to that effect, and submit them to the court of circuit at the next sessions. On the other hand, if the insanity of the prisoner be not established to the satisfaction of the magistrate or joint magistrate, he should proceed, as in other cases of criminal charges, under the Regulations in force.

4. The judge of circuit to whom the proceedings of a magistrate or joint magistrate may be submitted, in conformity with the above paragraph, after inspecting them and seeing the prisoner or prisoners to whom they refer, will pass such orders as may appear proper in each case, and, if satisfied of the actual insanity of the prisoner, will instruct the magistrate or joint magistrate to keep him in further custody, till restored to a sane state of mind, or send him to the insane hospital of the division, to remain there until his sanity is restored. But in all the cases here referred to, when the prisoner may be charged with the commission of a serious criminal offence, and cannot be immediately brought to trial on account of his insane state of mind, he should, on his discharge from the insane hospital, or on his being pronounced sane by the surgeon of the station at which he may have been kept in custody, be again brought before the magistrate or joint magistrate by whom the charge against him may be properly cognizable, that he may be regularly put upon his trial, and the proceedings on the charge against him be completed by acquittal or conviction before the proper tribunal, whether that of the magistrate or joint magistrate, or of the court of circuit, or Nizamut Adawlut, according to the nature and circumstances of the case.

5. The above instructions suppose the prisoner charged with a criminal offence to be in a state of insanity at the time of his being brought before the magistrate or joint magistrate receiving the charge, so that he cannot be put upon his trial. A similar course of proceeding, the Court observe, would be proper in the event of his having been committed by the magistrate for trial before the court of circuit, and found insane by that court at the time of trying the commitment; in which case the trial must necessarily be postponed until the prisoner be in a state of mind sufficiently sane to admit of his plea and defence.

TO THE SEVERAL COURTS OF CIRCUIT, EXCEPT MOORSHEDABAD, AND COMMISSIONERS OF CUTTACK AND RUNGPORE.

No. 320. December 29, 1826.

Transmitting copy of the remarks of the civil surgeon of Moorshedabad on the cure and prevention of cholera morbus.

I AM desired by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to forward to you the accompanying copy of the remarks of the civil surgeon of city Moorshedabad, relating to the cure and prevention of cholera morbus, with extract (paragraph 3) of a letter written by order of the Court to the secretary to Government in the judicial department on this date.

2. You are requested to forward copies of the above documents to the several magistrates and joint magistrates within your division, for their information and guidance.

Remarks of the Civil Surgeon of the City of Moorshedabad, dated 7th April, 1826.

In consequence of the so numerous, sudden, and fatal attacks of the cholera in December, the whole twelve having been carried off in the space of eight days, and after a very few hours' illness each, and the disease not appearing to me to be at all under the control of any medicine, which either my assistant, Doctor Burt, or myself could think of, I wrote an official letter to the magistrate, strongly recommending, as the only measure in my opinion which could be adopted, at all likely, under existing circumstances, to prove beneficial, that the whole of the patients should immediately be removed from the hospital, which was instantly agreed to; and on the 18th December one-half of the patients were removed to an apartment in the jail, which was kindly given up by the magistrate on the occasion, the site of which is not more than 5 or 600 yards from the insane hospital, and the other half to the Moidapare native hospital, the distance of which is not more than one-third of a mile, and such, I am happy to say, was the salutary effect of the change, that not a single case of cholera afterwards occurred, from the day of their removal, until their return, a period of two months and ten days; and since their return only one case has occurred, and that only a few days ago, and which patient has since recovered, and who, I ought to mention, was one of those few patients who escaped from a similar attack he had in December. The above is, in my opinion, perhaps one of the strongest proofs of the very circumscribed and limited extent of the infectious nature of the disease; and the benefit experienced on the occasion was fortunately such, that nothing in my opinion ought to prevent its being adopted in all similar cases.

Extract of a Letter from the Register of the Nizamut Adawlut, to the Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department, dated the 29th December, 1826.

PARA. 3. The fact alluded to in this paragraph is of so very singular a nature, and its being so desirable an object, that every circumstance relative to the cure and prevention of that formidable disease, the cholera morbus, should be generally known, the Court propose to circulate the remarks of the surgeon on that subject which accompany this report.

Forwarding extracts from a letter of the second judge of the Dacca court of circuit and of the register of the Nizamut Adawlut to the secretary to Government in the judicial department, relative to the alleged custom of the inhabitants of villages entertaining the darogah and his followers, whenever he may proceed into the interior.

I AM desired by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to forward to you the accompanying extracts (paragraph 46) of a letter from the second judge of the Dacca court of circuit, under date the 19th of October last, and (paragraph 26) of a letter written by order of the Court to the Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department on this date, relative to the alleged prevailing custom of the inhabitants of a village entertaining the darogah and his followers on their proceeding into the interior.

Extract of a Letter from the second Judge of the Dacca Court of Circuit to the Register of the Nizamut Adawlut, dated the 19th October, 1826.

PARA. 46. In conclusion, I beg to add, I fully concur in the sentiments expressed by Mr. Morrieson of the benefit that would ensue to the inhabitants of the country from the total abolition of the system of muzkooree peadas; but I should apprehend, that in this case an increase of the regular burkundauzes at every thanna in this division would be absolutely necessary for carrying on with effect the duties of the police. And if measures could be adopted for putting a stop to the prevailing custom of the inhabitants of a village entertaining the darogah and his numerous followers, whenever he may find it necessary to proceed into the interior, a visit from the police would not be so much dreaded as is the case at present, and to avoid which leads to the concealment of many petty offences. Of these, several instances came before me at the Backergunge session, in cases of simple burglaries, where the prosecutors acknowledged, that to avoid the expense and vexation attending the coming of the police, they had immediately repaired the nuccubs without giving information of the robbery.

Extract of a Letter from the Register of the Nizamut Adawlut to the Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department, dated the 29th December, 1826.

PARA. 26. The attention of the several magistrates, will, however, be directed, by a Circular Order, to the subject noticed in the latter part of the former paragraph ; and they will be instructed to adopt such measures as may seem best calculated to effect the abolition of the usage therein adverted to.

Enjoining that, whenever it may be deemed expedient to bring a prisoner to trial at a station different from that at which he was committed, a representation of the circumstance shall be made to Government, or to the Nizamut Adawlut; and when authority is received, to specify the same in the proceedings.

AN instance having recently occurred, in which a judge of circuit proceeded to try certain cases committed by a joint magistrate at a station different from that at which the joint magistrate resides, in opposition to the provisions of Regulation XVII. 1825, without having obtained the previous sanction of Government or of the Nizamut Adawlut to that effect, as required by Section III., Regulation VIII. 1822, and the whole of the proceedings being vitiated by this irregularity, I am directed, with a view to prevent the possibility of the recurrence of such an irregularity, involving inconveniences of so serious a nature, to request your attention to the provisions of the enactments above cited, and to desire that on every occasion on which you may deem it expedient that a prisoner committed at one station should be brought to trial at another, you will in the first instance represent the circumstance for the consideration and orders of Government, or of the Nizamut Adawlut, and in all cases, where authority for deviating from the usual course of circuit may have been obtained, you will certify the same on the records of your proceedings.

THE Court of Nizamut Adawlut direct me to forward to you the accompanying copy of an extract (paragraph 8) of a letter to my address from the Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department, and to request that you will circulate the same to the several magistrates in your division, with instructions that they conform to the mode of proceeding therein pointed out, with regard to the employment of muzkooree peons.

Extract of a Letter from the Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department, to the Register of the Nizamut Adawlut, under date the 30th of August, 1827.

PARA. 8. The Vice-President in Council concurs with the Court that it would not be expedient to issue any general prohibitory orders against the use of muzkooree peons; at the same time, with a view to check as much as possible their employment in cases not strictly provided for in the Regulations, His Lordship in Council conceives that it would be desirable to instruct the magistrates to require the darogahs to report, whenever they may employ persons of that description; stating their reasons for so doing, and by whom their tulubana or diet allowance (which should in no case exceed the rate specified in Clause 7, Section XXVII., Regulation XX. 1817,) may have been defrayed.

Prohibiting the interference of the police officers in petty offences, except according to the provisions of Regulation XX. of 1817, or other Regulation determining their duties.

THE Court of Nizamut Adawlut having reason to apprehend that much unnecessary and vexatious interference is exercised in the mofussil by police officers, and considering it highly desirable that the interference of those officers should be limited to cases in which it may be necessary for the protection of the public interests, I am directed to request that you will instruct the several magistrates within your jurisdiction to prohibit their police officers from interfering with petty offences in any way which is not positively required by Regulation XX. of 1817, or other Regulation enacted for their guidance.

VOL. II.

TO THE SEVERAL COURTS OF CIRCUIT, AND THE COMMISSIONER OF CUTTACK.

February 1, 1828.

No. 1.

Forwarding instructions in addition to those communicated on 23rd January, 1810, on the subject of taking evidence without oath.

I AM desired by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to forward to you the accompanying copy of instructions, in addition to those communicated to you on the 23rd of January, 1810,* on the subject of taking evidence without oath.

2. You will be pleased to forward a copy of the above instructions to the several magistrates within your division, for their information and guidance.

COPY.

I. By the Circular Order of the Nizamut Adawlut, dated 23rd January, 1810, the judges of circuit and magistrates were instructed to take the depositions of persons examined, however young, on oath or a solemn declaration, provided they appear to understand the nature of an oath.

II. The order does not proceed to say whether a person young in years, not appearing to have a sufficient sense of the nature of an oath, is to be examined without oath or solemn declaration, or not to be examined at all.

III. The Court of Nizamut Adawlut are of opinion that as by the constitution of the criminal courts and the rules prescribed for their guidance, an oath or solemn declaration is indispensable to evidence, no child who has not capacity to be sworn, or to make the solemn declaration allowed, in certain cases, to be substituted for an oath, should be examined in a criminal trial at all.

IV. They direct, therefore, that, in trials before the courts of circuit and the foujdaree courts, where any person young in years may appear not to have a sufficient sense of the nature and obligation of an oath, such person shall not be examined at all; but that, in all such cases, the alleged and apparent age of the person, and the queries and answers which may have led to the conclusion that the person in question is not of capacity to be sworn, shall be fully and exactly recorded upon the proceedings.

V. These instructions are not meant to extend to preliminary inquiries before the police, or to investigations made by magistrates in cases of a nature and magnitude which it may not be within their competence finally to determine. On such occasions the Court is aware of no objection to the examinations of the young persons above described being taken without oath, and placed among the records of the office in which they may be taken, not as evidence in themselves, but to be used as a clue to evidence.

I AM desired by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut, to transmit to you the accompanying extract (paragraph 7) of a letter from the Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department, under date the 26th ultimo, and to request you will strictly conform to the instructions therein contained, and furnish circuit judges with all such official correspondence as they may deem it necessary to require for their information.

PARA. 7. For the reasons assigned by Mr. Lowther, in the 33rd paragraph of his letter, the Governor General in Council is inclined to think that the magistrates should be instructed to comply with any application from the judges of circuit to inspect the English correspondence of their offices, whether with reference to any particular foujdaree case pending before them, or for the general purpose of acquainting themselves with all official matters connected with the welfare and management of the district; and should the Court of Nizamut Adawlut see no material objection, the Governor General in Council would wish the magistrates and courts of circuit to be informed accordingly.

Transmitting extracts from Mr. Gorton's Report of the half-yearly sessions for the Benares division, and from a letter from the Court to the Judicial Secretary to Government, and directing special care to be taken to prevent police officers from abusing their powers.

I AM desired by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to transmit to you, for your information and guidance, the accompanying extracts, paragraph 43, of Mr. Gorton's Report on the conclusion of the 1st half-yearly sessions of 1828 for the districts comprising the Benares division, and paragraph 14, of a letter written to the Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department, by order of the Court, on this date; and to request you will strictly caution your police officers, with a view to prevent any abuse, on their part, of the discretion with which they are vested.

Extract of a Letter from Mr. Gorton, late 2nd Judge of the Benares Court of Circuit, to the Register of the Nizamut Adawlut, dated the 31*st December*, 1828.

43. It appears to me desirable, and my object in bringing the subject forward, is to prevent the evil (and it is one of no ordinary nature, for a man, on whose daily labour his family, perhaps, look for support, to be taken up and thrown into jail on bare suspicion, or on the oath of a person, perhaps, inimical to him,) which an indiscriminate exercise of authority by the thannadars in apprehending persons charged with or suspected of crimes, may occasion. The attention of the magistrates of those districts, at least where the disproportion of acquittals is great, should be directed to the subject. I cannot suppose that it is intended as an undeviating principle, that persons are to be apprehended and thrown into jail on the bare oath or suspicion of a prosecutor, or because the thannadar suspects them, or that the magistrates are not vested with the power to control and restrict the thannadars in this respect; or if the Regulations do not allow the magistrates such, I think they should be invested with it. I am, however, of opinion, that nothing further is necessary than that the magistrate should point out to the thannadars all instances where they should not have sent the suspected persons to the sudder station, but should have admitted them to bail (if necessary), and have awaited their instructions. I do not mean to say that thannadars do not sometimes adopt this measure, or that the magistrates do not notice instances of persons being apprehended and sent in on insufficient grounds; still I cannot but help thinking that much good may be effected, and the subject is of sufficient importance, if the attention of the magistrates be specially directed to it.

Extract of a Letter from the Register of the Nizamut Adawlut, to the Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department, dated the 13th of March, 1829.

14. The Court fully recognize the expediency of requiring from the police officers the greatest caution in the exercise of their authority to apprehend persons on suspicion of crime, as noticed in the 43rd paragraph of the judge's communication. The great disproportion of convictions to acquittals, observable in all the districts comprised in the present report, but more particularly in Azimghur and Jaunpore, strongly proves the necessity of a diligent supervision on the part of the magistrates, with a view to prevent any abuse of the discretion with which their police officers are vested. A copy of this paragraph of Mr. Gorton's letter will be circulated to the several magistrates, for their information and guidance.

No. 19. April 3, 1829.

Transmitting extract from a letter from the Judicial Secretary requesting a strict adherence to the rule therein quoted from Regulation III. 1812.

I AM desired by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to transmit to you the accompanying extract, paragraphs 4, 5 and 6, of a letter from the Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department, under date the 10th ultimo, and to request your strict adherence to the rule cited in the 4th paragraph, with a view to prevent the indiscriminate summons or apprehension of persons charged with petty offences.

Extract of a Letter from the Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department, to the Register of the Nizamut Adawlut, dated the 10th of March, 1829.

4. The practice adopted by the magistrate of Tipperah, as stated in his letter, of summoning only one defendant in the first instance, and postponing the summons of others until he has taken the evidence for the prosecution, is not strictly conformable to the Regulations; nor is it, in the judgment of the Vice-President in Council, so well calculated to secure the object intended, as an adherence to the rule prescribed in Clause 6, Section II., Regulation III. 1812, which directs, that "With the view of further restraining the institution of prosecutions for adultery, fornication, calumny, abusive language, "trespasses, and assault, which ordinarily prove to be unfounded, "misrepresented, or greatly exaggerated, the magistrates are hereby "strictly prohibited from issuing any process on these, as well as "charges for more heinous offences, without previously examining the "prosecutor as to the specific facts of the case, and satisfying themselves that adequate grounds exist for proceeding against the accused party. In cases, likewise, in which the magistrate shall see grounds to distrust the truth of a charge, he shall, previously to issuing process against the accused, summon the witnesses named by the prosecutor, or as many of them as he may judge proper, and examine them as to their knowledge of the facts and circumstances which are the subject of the complaint."

5. It appears, indeed, to the Vice-President in Council, extremely desirable that the attention of the magistrates and joint magistrates should be specially directed to an observance of that rule; and I am desired to request that the Court of Nizamut Adawlut will issue a Circular Order on the subject, with a view to prevent, as far as practicable, the indiscriminate summons or apprehension of persons charged with petty offences.

6. The Vice-President in Council trusts that a due attention on the part of the magistrates and joint magistrates, to that rule, and a proper exercise of the authority vested in them, for the punishment of unfounded and vexatious complaints, will, in a great measure, obviate the evils pointed out by Mr. Ross, in your letter before noticed.

Transmitting extract of a letter from the late third judge of the Bareilly court of circuit, and interdicting the practice of transacting public business in private residences.

I AM desired, by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to forward to you the accompanying copy of an extract (paragraph 33,) from a letter to my address, from the late third Judge of the Bareilly court of circuit, dated the 27th of February last, and to desire that you will refrain from the objectionable practice therein adverted to, and strictly interdict it on the part of those subject to your authority.

Extract of a Letter from the Third Judge of the Bareilly Court of Circuit, to the Register of the Nizamut Adawlut, dated the 27th of February, 1829.

33. I beg leave to mention a practice which appears to me to be highly objectionable, and which is but too prevalent among the public officers, judicial and revenue, namely, that of transacting their public business in their private residences, and not attending regularly the public cutcherries. It is quite needless for me to dwell on the numerous evils which result from this practice: a magistrate or collector can never be as accessible to the natives in his own house as in the public cutcherry ; and unless there are fixed hours for transacting business in the public cutcherries, petitioners, &c. &c., will be either deterred from attending, or constantly subject to much inconvenience and expense. It would, perhaps, be useless to fix any certain number of hours, (as, I believe, was done many years ago,) during which magistrates and collectors should attend, as the time must, of course, depend on the quantity of business to be transacted ; but the attention of the commissioners of revenue and circuit might be directed to the subject.

Directing that in all cases of acquittal, the commissioner of circuit state whether the commitment have been made on sufficient grounds, or otherwise.

THE Court of Nizamut Adawlut deeming it desirable that they should be made acquainted with every instance in which a magistrate may have evinced want of judgment in making over prisoners to take their trial before your court, I am directed to request your attention, in future, to the following rule.

In all cases of acquittal you are in future required to specify in that column of the statement of cases of acquittal appropriated to remarks, whether you deem the commitment to have been made on sufficient grounds and after due inquiry into the case by the magistrate, or whether you consider the commitment to have been erroneous or defective ; and you will, at the same time, forward a copy of the magistrate's order of commitment for the consideration and orders of this Court.

No. 26. May 15, 1829.

Transmitting extracts of letters from the Register of the Nizamut Adawlut to the Judicial Secretary, dated respectively Sept. 26th last, and May 15th,

I AM desired by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to forward to you, for your information and guidance, the accompanying extract (paragraph 28,) from a letter written by me, by order of the Court of Nizamut Adawlut, to the Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department, under date the 26th September last, and of paragraph 5 of a letter this day addressed by me to the same authority, connected with the report furnished by the late 3rd judge of the Patna court of circuit, on the conclusion of the 1st sessions of that division for the year 1827, together with an extract from a letter written to the late Benares court of circuit, on the 31st August of that year, containing the construction given by the Court of Regulation VIII. of 1818.

1829, together with extract from a letter to the late Benares court of circuit, under date the 31st August, 1827, containing the Court's Construction of Regulation VIII. of 1818, and desiring that the magistrates be instructed to conform thereto.

2. You are requested to furnish the several magistrates in your division with a copy of the former extract, and to require them to conform thereto.

Extract from a Letter from the Register of the Nizamut Adawlut, to the Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department, dated the 26th of September, 1828.

28. The laws which regulate the demands of security from persons of suspicious character are susceptible of considerable modification and improvement, and there is too much reason to believe that Mr. Elliott's report presents no exaggerated picture of the evils experienced from the present system of procedure in such cases. The confinement of an individual in jail, on a requisition of security for good conduct, without proof of recent circumstances warranting the imputation of dishonest livelihood at the time of apprehension, is a manifest act of injustice. Regulation VIII. 1818, could never had been intended to authorise a practice of this nature; and the magistrates will be accordingly directed to abstain from so erroneous a construction of the enactment, while the court of circuit will be particularly required to report any deviation from these orders to the Nizamut Adawlut, with a view to its being brought to the serious notice of Government. The attention of His Lordship in Council will, no doubt, be directed to the proposition of the circuit judge for restricting the powers of the magistrates to the requisition of security from persons of dangerous character alone, whose restraint is necessary for the public welfare. It must, however, be observed, that by Clause 2, Section VIII., Regulation VIII., 1818, a circuit judge is empowered, on the prisoner's petitioning, to call for the proceedings, and annul, modify, or confirm the order of the magistrate, according to the circumstances of the case.

Extract from a Letter from the Register of the Nizamut Adawlut, to the Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department, dated the 15th of May, 1829.

5. On the subject noticed in the 33rd paragraph of your letter, I am directed to state the opinion of the Court, that the period for which the magistrates are now authorised to detain persons in default of giving security, is not too long, supposing due control to be exercised over their proceedings; but the Court are, at the same time, of opinion that the orders of the magistrate, in such cases, should be at all times open to revision. A construction to this effect was given by the Nizamut Adawlut on the 31st of August, 1827, with reference to the powers, in this respect, possessed by the courts of circuit at the sudder station. This construction will be circulated to the several commissioners of circuit, with an intimation that they are equally competent to exercise the same powers.

Extract from a Letter from the Register of the Nizamut Adawlut, to the Benares Court of Circuit, dated the 31st of August, 1827.

FIFTHLY.—Section IV., Regulation IV., 1825, should not be construed to preclude an individual in confinement for security, under the provisions of that rule, from preferring an appeal to the court of circuit at the sudder station, when no order may have been passed on his case by the judge of circuit at the sessions of jail delivery preceding; and the judges of the court of the sudder station are competent to pass such orders thereon, under the general regulations relative to appeals, as may appear in their judgment to be just and equitable.

No. 28. June 5, 1829.

Transmitting copy of a circular letter to the several magistrates and joint magistrates, with regard to a discrepancy in the English and Persian version of Clause 9, Section XIX., Regulation XX., 1827.

I AM desired by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to forward to you, for your information, the accompanying copy of a circular letter, written by their order, on this date, to the several magistrates and joint magistrates, on the subject of a discrepancy in the English and Persian version of Clause 9, Section XIX., Regulation XX., 1827, relative to the use of handcuffs.

Copy of a Circular Letter to the Several Magistrates and Joint Magistrates, dated the 5th June, 1829.

I am desired by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to forward to you the accompanying extract (paragraph 37) from Mr. Patton's report on the conclusion of the 2nd sessions of 1828 for the Moorshedabad division, and paragraph 17 of a letter this day written to Government by order of the Court, in order that you may adopt the necessary measures to correct the error therein noticed.

Extract from a Letter from the late 4th Judge of the Moorshedabad Court of Circuit, to the Register of the Nizamut Adawlut, dated the 10th of April, 1829.

37. In the course of the trial of a thanna mohurir for mal-treatment of a European British subject, who had been falsely charged with murder, I had occasion to refer to the Persian translation of Regulation XX., 1817, when an important error in the translation of Clause 9, Section XIX., appeared. In the English version, the darogah is declared to be competent to use handcuffs for the purpose of forwarding heinous criminals with safety to the magistrate's court; whereas in the translation the words lazim khahudbood are used, which makes it incumbent on him to do so with respect to any person he may be pleased to consider a heinous criminal; thus affording a pretext for severity and an opportunity for abuse and extortion on the part of a native police officer, of which he is glad at all times to avail himself. I beg leave to suggest that the error should be corrected.

Extract from a Letter from the Register of the Nizamut Adawlut, to the Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department, dated the 5th of June, 1829.

17. With reference to the discrepancy in the English and Persian version of Clause 9, Section XIX., Regulation XX., 1817, relative to the use of handcuffs, I am desired to state that the magistrates will be instructed by a Circular Order to rectify the error in the thanna and other copies of the Persian Regulations, and to take care that the discretion vested in the police darogahs is not abused.

TO THE SEVERAL COMMISSIONERS OF CIRCUIT.

July 24, 1829. No. 30.

Transmitting copy of a letter from the Court to the commissioner of circuit for the 13th division, with regard to the provisions of Clauses 2 and 3, Section III., Regulation III., 1821; and desiring that the purport may be communicated to the several magistrates.

THE Court of Nizamut Adawlut having reason to believe that much misconception exists on the subject of the provisions contained in Clauses 2 and 3, Section III., Regulation III., 1821, I am desired to forward to you the accompanying copy of a letter relating thereto, this day written by order of the Court to the commissioner of circuit for the 13th Division, and to request that you will communicate the purport of the same to the several magistrates within your jurisdiction.

Copy of a Letter from the Register of the Nizamut Adawlut, to the Commissioner of Circuit, 13th Division.

The Court of Nizamut Adawlut have had before them your letter, dated the 22nd May last, with its enclosure from the magistrate of zillah Rungpore, explanatory of his reasons for employing the law officer attached to his court in the manner alluded to in your letter of the 30th of April.

In reply, I am desired to communicate to you the following remarks, for the information and guidance of Mr. Smith, to whom you are requested to furnish a copy of the same.

Independently of the inexpediency of referring every description of criminal cases to the law officers for investigation and report, as unnecessarily occupying valuable time, which would be much more profitably employed in the transaction of civil business, the Court observe that the practice is illegal, and not warranted by the rules contained in Clauses 2 and 3, Section III., Regulation III., 1821.

The latter clause declares the law officers to be authorised to exercise the same powers as those vested in the assistants to the magistrates by Section XX., Regulation IX. 1807, and those powers, as declared in the concluding part of the same clause, are confined to the trial and decision of trivial cases, and cannot be construed as conveying to such law officers authority to investigate and report upon any description of cases which they are not ultimately competent to decide.

Were this practice generally adopted, the Court further observe that it might be the occasion of much obvious impropriety, and that the same law officer, who investigated and reported upon a case, might frequently be called upon to furnish a futwa as to the guilt or innocence of the prisoner on his trial before the court of circuit.

It may of course occasionally (though the Court would suppose rarely) happen that a case apparently trivial may, on investigation, turn out to be of a serious nature, in which event it would be necessary for the law officer to whom the case had been sent for trial and decision, to return it to the magistrate, unaccompanied, however, by any opinion as to the merits of the case ; and the Court are, upon the whole, clearly of opinion, that Mr. Smith's view of the existing rules on this subject is erroneous, and that the magistrates are authorised to refer such cases only to their law officers as are of a trivial nature, and admit of their being finally disposed of by those officers.

No. 32.

Transmitting extract from a letter of the register of the Court to the Judicial Secretary to Government, enjoining the magistrates to record their reasons for putting prisoners in irons before trial, whenever they resort to this measure.

I AM desired by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to forward to you herewith the accompanying extract (para. 2) from a letter this day written by their order to the Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department, submitting Mr. Newnham's report on the termination of the first sessions of 1829 for Mynpooree, including the joint magistracy of Etawa ; and to request that you will furnish the several magistrates and joint magistrates in your division with a copy of the same for their information and future guidance.

Extract from a Letter from the Register of the Nizamut Adawlut, to the Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department, dated the 24th of July, 1829.

PARA. 2. It will be observed that in the fourth and fifth paragraphs of his letter of the first-mentioned date, Mr. Newnham charges the late officiating joint magistrate with having unnecessarily subjected the prisoners committed by him to the indignity of being heavily ironed. On inspecting the calendar, however, the charges adduced appear to have been, with one exception, of a very serious character; and though they were not proved on trial, it by no means follows that the officiating joint magistrate had not ample grounds for presuming the prisoners to be guilty, or that he did not consider the imposition of fetters to be necessary to their safe custody. The Court, however, being of opinion that this measure of severity should never be resorted to except in extreme cases or where the prisoner is of a character so dangerous as to render the imposition of fetters absolutely necessary to his safe custody, the several magistrates will be enjoined, through the commissioners of circuit, to record on their proceedings of commitment their reasons for resorting to this measure, whenever they may deem it necessary to place fetters on a prisoner previous to his trial.

Forwarding copy of a letter to the magistrate of Nuddea, and directing that the magistrates depute an officer of their own courts to receive charge of any individual apprehended in Calcutta at their request.

I AM desired by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to forward, for your information and guidance, the accompanying copy of a letter this day written by order of the Court to the magistrate of Nuddea, and to request your particular attention to the concluding paragraph of that communication.

Copy of a Letter from the Register of the of Nizamut Adawlut to the Magistrate of Nuddea, dated the 9th of October, 1829.

It having been represented to the Nizamut Adawlut that an individual named W. H. Tydd, who has a suit in this court, and whose release from arrest under civil process was lately ordered by virtue of a writ of Habeas Corpus, (the civil arrest under such circumstances being deemed illegal,) has been since apprehended by the magistrate of the town of Calcutta previously to his actual liberation, and detained in custody on your application on a charge of a criminal nature, and the Court considering his detention in custody at the presidency on account of any act which he may have committed in your district, to be highly irregular and unwarrantable, direct that you will immediately adopt such measures as you may deem best calculated to insure his speedy removal to your district for the purpose of defending himself from any accusation which may have been there preferred against him; and the Court further direct that in the event of your not being able to adopt any measure calculated to effect this purpose, you will without loss of time recall your application for the arrest of the individual in question, requesting the magistrates of the town of Calcutta to restore him to the place in which he was found prior to his apprehension.

I am also directed to instruct you, whenever you may have occasion to solicit the interference of the Calcutta magistrate in aid of your own process, invariably to depute an officer of your own court for the purpose of receiving charge of the individual apprehended, and of undertaking the responsibility of securing his appearance at your station, without exposing such individual to the hardship of unnecessary detention at the presidency.

No. 41.

Transmitting a letter from the magistrate of Sylhet, and the reply of the register of the Court, with regard to the discrepancy between the English and Persian versions of Clause 9, Section XIX., Regulation XX, 1817.

IN continuation of my letter to your address under date the 5th June last*, I am now desired by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to forward to you, for your information and guidance, the accompanying copy of a letter to my address from the magistrate of Sylhet, dated the 9th ultimo, together with copy of a letter this day written in reply by order of the Court.

Copy of a Letter from the Magistrate of Zillah Sylhet to the Register of the Court of Nizamut Adawlut, under date the 9th September, 1829.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, under date the 5th of June last, forwarding an extract from a letter from the late fourth judge of the Moorshedabad court of circuit, dated the 10th September, 1829, and calling on me to correct the discrepancy between the English and Persian versions of part of Regulation XX. 1817. The fourth judge states, in the English version the darogah is declared to be competent to use handcuffs for the purpose of forwarding heinous criminals with safety to the magistrate's court; whereas in the translation, the words "lazim khahud bood" are used, which makes it incumbent on him to do so, with respect to any person he may be pleased to consider a heinous criminal.

The judges of your Court have not ordered what Persian words are to be inserted instead of "lazim khahud bood" in the Regulation; and it being left to the magistrate to use his own discretion in the translation, I consider it objectionable, as there may be in each zillah a different word inserted to explain the intent and spirit of the

* Vide No. 28, Vol. II.

Regulation. I shall, therefore, be obliged by your submitting to the Court my desire that I be supplied with the Persian words required to be substituted for "lazim khahud bood," that there may be uniformity in each district of the wording of the intent of the Regulation. Literally, I should say the words ikhtiaree darogah ast would be the proper translation for competent; but then this would be extremely objectionable when an improper feeling existed, and would give the same power as the words lazim khahud bood, as being left entirely to his own discretion.

Copy of a letter from the Register of the Nizamut Adawlut to the Magistrate of Sylhet, under date 9th October, 1829.

The Court of Nizamut Adawlut have had before them your letter dated the 9th ultimo, regarding the correction of the discrepancy between the English and Persian versions of Clause 9, Section XIX., Regulation XX. 1817, which are noticed in the Court's circular letter, dated the 5th of June last.

In reply, I am desired to acquaint you that the Court see no objection to your suggested version of the passage alluded to.

The Court desire that you will, in communicating this to your police officers, take particular care to call their attention at the same time to the clause succeeding that granting the permission to use handcuffs in cases of necessity, which clause declares that they shall be held strictly accountable for any severity further than what may be essentially requisite for securing the persons of prisoners.

Forwarding copies of special instructions in the native languages, for the guidance of the police officers in cases of Suttee, with English translations thereof.

REGULATION XVII. of 1829, declaring the practice of burning or burying alive the widows of Hindus illegal and punishable by the criminal courts, having been enacted by the Governor General in Council, I am directed by the Nizamut Adawlut to transmit to you a copy of special instructions in the Persian and Bengallee languages,* with a translation thereof in English, prepared by the desire of, and since approved by, Government, for the guidance of your police officers.

2. You are accordingly desired to furnish a copy of the Regulation in the native languages, and of the special instructions above referred to, to the whole of the police officers under your authority

3. In the event of any personal interference on your part on the occasion of any Suttee, you will be guided by the same rules established for the guidance of your police officers.

* Hindustanee for Bareilly, Benares, and Patna.

4. You are desired to take an early opportunity of impressing personally on your police officers the propriety of circumspection in using any forcible means to prevent any Suttee, more particularly during the early period of its suppression, when great allowance is to be made for the feelings and prejudices of the people.

5. With the exception of aggravated cases, in which recourse may have been had to stupefaction or violence, you are enjoined to abstain from using irons, handcuffs, or other unnecessary duress, towards any persons apprehended under these rules; and in any case deemed not bailable, the prisoners shall be invariably confined in the civil jail, and never in the criminal jail.

6. You are desired, as a temporary measure, on the occasion of any Suttee having been prevented, or of its having taken place subsequent to the receipt of these orders, to make a short report thereof to the Court.

7. You are directed to consider the Circular Orders under dates the 29th of April, 1813, 4th of January, 1815, and any others on the same subject that may have issued, * as cancelled from this date, and you will adopt immediate measures for withdrawing them from all the thannas within your jurisdiction.

8. Translations of the instructions to the police officers will be prepared as soon as practicable, and sent to you by a future opportunity.

Draft of Instructions to be issued by Magistrates to the Police Darogahs.

Whereas Regulation XVII. of 1829, for the purpose of abolishing the practice of burning or burying alive the widows of Hindus, declaring such practice illegal and punishable by the criminal courts, has been enacted by the Right Honorable the Governor General in Council, copies of the same in the Persian and Hindustanee languages are accordingly transmitted for your information.

In giving effect to the rules of that Regulation, you will be guided by the following instructions.

1. The third Section of the Regulation declaring all zemindars, talookdars, or other proprietors of land, whether malgoozaree or lakhiraj, all sudder farmers and under-renters of land of every description, all dependant talookdars, all naibs and other local agents, all native officers employed in the collection of the revenue and rents of lands on the part of Government, or the court of wards, and all munduls and head-men of villages,—responsible for the immediate communication to the officers of the nearest police station of any intended sacrifice of the nature above described, you are consequently directed to report to the magistrate any omission, or unnecessary delay on their part, in furnishing you with the promptest information on the subject.

2. On the receipt of information of an intended Suttee, you will proceed to the spot without delay, unless there be special cause to prevent your going personally; in which event you will immediately depute your mohurir or jemadar. You will also immediately report to the magistrate the cause which may have prevented your going in person; and in any instance in which the sacrifice may have commenced, or have been completed, prior to the arrival of the police, a minute report of the circumstances which may have operated to prevent their early arrival, must be submitted to the magistrate.

3. In giving effect to the second clause of the third Section, you are directed to employ every means of dissuasion and remonstrance, to endeavour to associate with yourself any respectable Hindus in persuading the parties concerned to desist from the sacrifice, and you will use all patience and forbearance in the exercise of the duty prescribed.

4. You are required to use all care and discretion in giving effect to these orders, and you will in each case be held bound to show that every means of mildness was resorted to, before recourse was had to any exercise of authority.

5. You will in no case use any duress towards any persons apprehended under these rules, but will treat them with every indulgence, and, in sending them in to the magistrate, will allow them every facility not inconsistent with their safe custody.

Prohibiting sudder ameens from taking the examination of any prisoner in any case which he may not be competent finally to decide, and which may not have been sent to him for decision, without reference to any superior authority.

An instance having come to the knowledge of the Court in which a sudder ameen who took the examination of a prisoner, subsequently, in his capacity of law officer, delivered a futwa in the case of the same prisoner, and the Court deeming it highly objectionable that these incompatible duties should be performed by the same individual, I am directed to desire that you will peremptorily prohibit the Moulvee, sudder ameen, and all other sudder ameens attached to your court, from taking the deposition of a prisoner in any case which he may not be competent finally to dispose of, and which may not have been sent to him for decision, without reference to any superior authority.

Prohibiting the confinement of prisoners in the house of the nazir, until they furnish security.

I AM desired by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut, to forward to you the accompanying extract (paragraph 93) from a letter dated the 15th of December last, from Mr. C. Smith, reporting the conclusion of the 1st Sessions of 1828 for the zillahs comprised within the then existing limits of the division.

2. You are directed to be particularly cautious to avoid the objectionable practice alluded to in the extract in question.

Extract of a Letter from the late fourth Judge of the Dacca Court of Circuit, addressed to the Register of the Nizamut Adawlut, under date the 15th December, 1829.

PARA. 93. I think it necessary to call the attention of the Court to the very objectionable practice prevailing in the zillahs and city of keeping prisoners in the nazir's house for many days, nay, in some instances, for months, until security be furnished; as I am not aware that it is recognised by any rule or order, and finding the judges on each circuit prohibiting the same, either by letter or roobukaree to the magistrate, without much attention being paid thereto, I submit the propriety of a general order being issued to those officers, requiring them to adhere strictly to any injunctions they may receive on that subject. I am perfectly aware that those persons who are sent in with a chelan, or despatch, from the thannas, are necessarily put under the nazir until orders are passed upon the report which usually accompanies; but this is a business which does not occupy more than the following morning, or at most a day or two.

Forwarding the Court's construction of Section V., Regulation IX. 1793, and Section V., Regulation VI. 1803,

I AM desired by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to forward to you, for your information and guidance, the accompanying extract (paragraph 7) of a letter written by their order, on this date, to the Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department, containing their construction of Section V., Regulation IX. 1793, and Section V., Regulation VI. 1803.

Extract of a Letter from the Register of the Court of Nizamut Adawlut, to the Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department, dated 26th February, 1830.

relating to the commitment of persons charged with crimes and misdemeanors.

PARA. 7. In Section V., Regulation IX. 1793, and Section V., Regulation VI. 1803, it is declared, "if it appears to a magistrate that the crime charged was actually committed, and that there are grounds for suspecting the prisoner to have been concerned in the perpetration of it," the magistrate shall commit for trial. The wording of the enactment admits of some latitude of construction, and is calculated to produce considerable inconvenience, by leaving undefined the degree of evidence sufficient to put the prisoner on his trial. Instead of the words, "and that there are grounds for suspecting the prisoner to have been concerned, &c.," the following might, in the Court's opinion, with advantage have been substituted; "and that there are probable grounds of convicting the prisoner of having been concerned, &c." But the Court do not deem it necessary that any new legislative provision should be enacted, as they consider a liberal construction of the existing rules to be sufficient. A circular letter will, this day, be issued for the information and guidance of the several commissioners of circuit and magistrates, containing the Court's construction of the rule in question, and other instructions, a copy of which will be submitted, in due course, for the information of Government. The Court agree in the opinion expressed by Mr. Jackson, that the testimony of a single witness, if there be no apparent reason to discredit it, is sufficient for commitment. But, at the same time, it is incumbent on a magistrate, previous to putting a prisoner on trial, on solitary testimony of this description, to satisfy his own mind as to the credibility of the witness, by taking evidence to any points, calculated to establish or disprove his testimony, by whomsoever such evidence may be indicated. With reference to the cases adverted to by Mr. Jackson in the latter part of the 13th paragraph of his letter, in which the prisoners released had been committed on the testimony of a single witness, the Court presume that the witness was not considered entitled to credit, and on this supposition the acquittal of the prisoners may be satisfactorily accounted for.*

Forwarding copy of a letter from the Judicial Secretary, dated the 30th March, 1830, and desiring them to report the cases of any decrepid prisoners confined in the criminal jails, whose release they may think would not be dangerous to society.

I AM desired by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to forward to you the accompanying copy of a letter from the Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department, to my address, under date the 30th ultimo.

2. In conformity with the wish therein expressed, you are desired to furnish your sentiments on the points specified to the Court of Nizamut Adawlut. The reports of decrepid prisoners whom you recommend for liberation, must be accompanied with medical certificates from the surgeon of the station, and must contain a specification of the nature of the offence for which they are in confinement, as well as the period during which they have been, and still are to be, imprisoned.

Copy of a Letter from the Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department, to the Register of the Nizamut Adawlut, under date the 30th March, 1830.

The Governor General in Council having, during his late tour, observed in the jails in the districts visited by him, that in some instances prisoners appeared to be detained in confinement though suffering under blindness and decrepitude, such as to incapacitate them, if released, from the further commission of crime, I am directed by the Right Honorable the Governor General in Council to request that the Court of Nizamut Adawlut will ascertain, through the commissioners of circuit, whether in the jails of their respective divisions there be any convicts labouring under incurable infirmities, whose liberation would not be attended with mischief or danger, and that the Court will submit the reports of the commissioners with their own sentiments as to the propriety or otherwise of the clemency of Government being extended to such convicts.

2. The Governor General in Council would also wish the commissioners to include in their reports the cases of any convicts who may have been confined for long periods, especially in cases of affray, either on account of religious disputes, or on account of claims to the possession of land, which, in the judgment of the commissioners, may suggest the propriety of a mitigated sentence or remission of further imprisonment.

3. It is not improbable that the necessity of example, at the time when many offences of the above nature were committed, especially in the western provinces, may have demanded a more severe sentence than the present state of the country requires, and that justice has been sufficiently satisfied by the term of imprisonment which the offenders have already undergone.

Forwarding a sketch of a drop for the execution of malefactors, and prohibiting the practice of ham-stringing the criminals.

I AM directed by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to forward to you the accompanying sketch of a drop for the execution of malefactors.

2. You are requested to order one to be constructed after this pattern, with as little delay as possible, and to be careful that it be in future employed on the occasion of every execution that may take place within your jurisdiction. Its construction and use must be clearly explained to the officers of the criminal court, lest any misapprehension should be the cause of unnecessary and protracted suffering.

3. The Court of Nizamut Adawlut are further desirous to impress you with the necessity of most strictly prohibiting the practice of ham-stringing the criminals, whether before or after execution, which practice seems to have prevailed in many parts of the country: you will be careful that any other practices be abstained from, which may tend to diminish the solemnity of the proceeding, and the awe which it is the primary object of the punishment to create in the minds of all who may witness it.

July 16, 1830. No. 54.

Rules for preserving uniformity in the proceedings of commissioners, magistrates, and joint magistrates, in points of form and practice.

THE Court of Nizamut Adawlut having had occasion to observe that much difference prevails in the mode of conducting criminal investigations, both as regards the proceedings of the commissioners, and those of the magistrates, and deeming it highly desirable that the greatest possible uniformity should obtain in points of form and practice, direct me to communicate to you, for your information and guidance, the following remarks and orders, and to request that you will forward a copy thereof to the several magistrates and joint magistrates in your division, with instructions to conform to such parts as relate to their own proceedings.*

2. The proceedings on all criminal trials to be written in a clear legible hand, on paper of the same dimensions as the accompanying sheet,† or as nearly that size as may be procurable; a numerical list of the papers, corresponding with the marginal notes of the record, to be prefixed, and the whole closed, by adding an extract from the magistrate's Persian calendar relating to the case. nected by a string or tape, passed through the papers on the right, hand side towards the top, the ends thereof to be united with wax and the seal of the court to be impressed thereon.

3. The papers forming the record of trial to be entered thereon, in the same order as the proceedings are held ; a marginal note being made on each separate paper, descriptive of its nature, and corresponding with the numerical list above-mentioned. The record to be headed,* mutatis mutandis, as set forth in the enclosed form, including a transcript in English and Persian of the charge on which the accused may be put on his trial, as directed in the final order of commitment.

4. In cases of murder, wounding, or other personal injury, a description of the weapon, or other instrument, said to have been used in the perpetration of the act, should be here recorded ; including, where such particulars may be at all available, to fix the intent of the prisoner, the length of the instrument, its general form if not one in common use, its thickness, and weight.

5. In cases of robbery, or theft, a description should be entered of any articles laid before the court, as forming part of the plundered or stolen property ; specifying the number attached to each article, and where, and under what circumstances, it may have been found.

6. Then will follow, the prosecutor's deposition, the prisoner's plea of "guilty" or "not guilty" to the charge,† (which should always be explicitly stated to him in the words prefixed to the record,) and then the evidence on the part of the prosecution, in the course of which, if any papers borne on the magistrate's proceedings should form part of the proof, as written confessions, inquests, declaration of a dying person, and the like ; such papers should be entered on the record of trial in original,‡ and evidence taken thereto ; attested copies of them being substituted in their stead on the magistrate's proceedings. Translations in Persian should also be made and annexed to the originals, where the latter may be in any other language.§

7. In cases of murder, or wounding, endangering life, when the body, or wound, may have been inspected by the civil surgeon, (as it should be in all practicable cases,) the deposition of the surgeon should be invariably taken on oath, instead of merely requiring, as is too frequently the practice at present, a written report, addressed to the magistrate or judge holding the trial :‖ and it may be here observed, generally, that no report or paper should be placed on the Futwa, Kissas, Seasut, as the case may be.

11. The body of the letter of reference should contain a brief recapitulation of the circumstances stated by the prosecutor, of the evidence adduced in support of the charge, and of the defence. The letter should conclude by stating the commissioner's concurrence with, or dissent from, the futwa; together with a distinct expression of the commissioner's opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the prisoner; and if the former, the specific crime which, in his judgment, has been established against the prisoner.‡

12. The Court deem it scarcely necessary to add, as an important part of your duty in holding a criminal trial, that you should carefuly notice and record on your proceedings, any contradiction in the testimony of the witnesses, either in their evidence on the trial, or as compared with their former depositions before the magistrate. You will also consider it your duty to bring to the notice of the Court, any irregularities which may have marked the conduct of the proceedings, in the preliminary investigation, whether of the magistrate or his police officers.

13. With regard to the magistrate's proceedings, the Court desire me to communicate to you their opinion as to the proper construction

* See No. 129, Vol. III.

† See No. 135, Vol. II., paras. 3 and 4, also No. 148, Ibid.

‡ The sessions judges in the Lower Provinces are also to state what punishment they consider adequate to the offence. See Nos. 28, 41 and 130, Vol. III. In the Western Provinces this is dispensed with, see Nos. 153 and 181, Vol. III.

which should be put upon Section V., Regulation IX. 1793, and the corresponding enactments.* The rule in question should be understood, as empowering the magistrate to exercise a sound discretion, and not as intending to require commitment on bare suspicion, where the evidence does not afford probable ground for conviction on trial. If conviction appear improbable, the Court observe, the commitment would not only be useless, and unnecessarily harassing to the accused and the witnesses in the case, but objectionable, as precluding conviction and punishment on evidence which might be subsequently obtained.†

14. Entertaining this view, the Court desire that you will instruct the magistrates within your division, that they should consider it their duty to summon and examine, before commitment, every witness whose evidence may be indicated as material to elucidate the true facts of the case, and not confine themselves, as is frequently the practice at present, to taking such evidence only as they may think legally sufficient to form ground for commitment.

15. The Court have, in many instances, found reason to be dissatisfied with the loose manner in which the magistrates prepare their charges in cases committed for trial; so much so, that it has been sometimes difficult to ascertain with precision the offence for which the prisoner has been put on his trial.‡

16. With a view to remedy this evil, the Court desire that the magistrates will carefully record, at the conclusion of the roobukaree containing the order of commitment, the precise charge on which they commit the prisoner; and that such charge be entered in English and Persian, on a separate paper annexed to the said roobukaree, bearing the magistrate's official signature at full length, and the date of commitment. The magistrate should be directed to take especial care that the proper Persian word is used to designate the offence charged. Thus, in a charge of murder, the Persian term used should be "Kutl-umd;" and in a charge of manslaughter, the term "Kutl-shibeh-umd:" and where there is any doubt as to whether the accused is guilty of a higher or lower grade of an offence of the same character, the commitment should be made for the higher grade. Thus, if it be doubtful, from the evidence before a magistrate, whether the offence amounts to murder, or only to culpable homicide, the commitment should be for murder. On the other hand, where a doubt exists as to whether a commitment should be made for knowingly receiving plundered property,

* Section V., Regulation IX. 1793, was extended to Benares by Section IV., Regulation XVI. 1795. The corresponding rules for the Ceded Provinces are contained in Section V., Regulation V. 1803, and were extended to the Conquered Provinces by Section X., Regulation VIII. 1805.

† See Regulation VIII. 1830.

‡ The special attention of commissioners and sessions judges has been directed to this and the two following paras., and how they were to proceed defined. See No. 135, Vol. II.

or for the actual robbery, the prisoner should be committed on both counts.*

17. The reason of this caution, I am desired to add, is, that, in the former case, a conviction of a minor offence may be had on a commitment for a graver offence of the same character, but that the converse of the proposition does not hold good. In the latter case you will observe that the acts for which the prisoner is to be tried, are distinct, and of a separate character.

18. In the event of a commitment being made under special instructions of the commissioner, either of his own authority, as in cases of perjury, or in modification of the original order of commitment by the magistrate ;† or in cases of commitment for forgery and perjury by order of a zillah judge, or other authority empowered to commit in such cases, the same should be noticed on the proceedings.

19. The Court direct me to add, with reference to the power vested in the commissioners of circuit of annulling a magistrate's commitment, that such power should be exercised with great caution, and a report thereof be submitted in each instance for the information of this Court.‡

20. The Court having also had many late occasions to observe, that their Circular Orders specially requiring that the examinations of all prisoners be made in the presence of the magistrate, are not sufficiently attended to, I am directed to desire that you will call on the magistrates in your division to conform themselves strictly to those orders ; and in no case to certify,§ or otherwise to authenticate any paper purporting to be a confession, which may not have been made on a personal examination by the magistrate himself. And more effectually to provide against the objectionable course which has frequently obtained of late of allowing the examination of prisoners to be taken in the serishta in the magistrate's absence, you are desired to instruct the magistrates, in all cases of confessions before them, to certify the same in the following words, "I hereby "certify that this confession of ———— was made by the said "————, and taken down in writing, and attested by the sub- "scribing witnesses, before me, and in my presence, on the ———, "between the hours of ———— ; that, to the best of my belief, the "confession was voluntary, and that no interference, directly or "indirectly, on the part of any person likely to influence or intimi- "date the prisoner, was permitted."

* In all cases where stolen or plundered property may have been found, a second count is to be inserted charging the prisoner with knowingly receiving plundered or stolen property (as the case may be). See No. 98, Vol II.

† A session judge cannot direct a magistrate when he has committed a prisoner for a minor offence, to alter the same to a graver.

‡ See No. 111, Vol. II.

§ For how magistrates are to certify examinations and deposition, see No. 220, Vol. II., paragraph 6.

21. The Court further desire that the magistrates be instructed to direct their police officers to certify confessions made before them in the same manner.

22. On all trials held by you, you are desired, in examining subscribing witnesses to confessions, to be particular in ascertaining from them that there has been no deviation from these rules, and in case of omission by a police officer, that you take suitable notice thereof, and that you report any transgressions in this respect on the part of a magistrate to the Nizamut Adawlut.

23. I am also directed to desire that in all cases of trials held in any way out of the ordinary course of law, you will record on the proceedings of the trial the original documents authorising the course adopted, (substituting attested copies in their place in the magistrate's nuthee, if they should have been taken therefrom,) and that you will invariably notice the same in your letter accompanying the proceedings on the trial, if referred to the Nizamut Adawlut.

24. I am, in conclusion, directed to observe that many delays have lately been experienced in the transmission of trials under reference to this Court; that no valid excuse can possibly exist for the unnecessary procrastination of their dispatch; and that the Court expect that you will so regulate your own time, and that of your officers, that no cause of dissatisfaction on this score occur hereafter.

25. You will be pleased to report to the Court the date on which you may receive these instructions, and will require a similar report from the several magistrates and joint magistrates in your division.

TO THE MAGISTRATES AND JOINT MAGISTRATES.

No. 55. July 23, 1830.

Calling attention to the rules prescribed in Section XVI., Regulation XX. 1817, for search of plundered property.

THE Court of Nizamut Adawlut having reason to believe that the rules prescribed in Section XVI., Regulation XX. of 1817, for the search of plundered property, are not sufficiently attended to by the police officers, direct me to call your particular attention to the subject, and to desire that you will take proper notice of any instances in which the police darogahs and other officers shall deviate from the rules laid down for their guidance, in the above-mentioned section.

TO THE SEVERAL COMMISSIONERS OF CIRCUIT, MAGISTRATES, AND JOINT MAGISTRATES.

No. 57. September 3, 1830.

Forwarding Advocate General's opinion of the power of a magistrate to take cognizance of complaints against European British subjects.

I AM desired by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to forward to you, for your information, the accompanying copy of a letter written by their order on this date to the commissioner of the 15th division, together with a copy of the communication therein alluded to, from Mr. Advocate General Pearson, containing his opinion respecting the power of a magistrate to take cognizance of complaints against European British subjects.

Copy of a Letter from the Officiating Register of the Nizamut Adawlut, to the Commissioner of Circuit for the 15th Division, under date the 3rd September, 1830.

I am directed by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 21st June last, requesting information—1st, as to the power of a magistrate, under the provisions of Section CV., Statute 53, George III., to take cognizance of complaints preferred by a native against an European British subject, not amounting to felony, and on conviction, to punish by fine to the extent of 500 rupees, whether the magistrate has, or has not, taken the oath of qualification as a justice of peace; and 2ndly, whether, in the event of his having such powers, his proceedings in such cases are open to revision by a commissioner of circuit, or whether the party wishing to prefer an appeal must be referred to the Supreme Court.

2. In reply, I am directed by the Court to transmit to you, for your information and guidance, the accompanying copy of a letter from Mr. Advocate General Pearson, under date 26th ultimo, received in reply to my letter of the 30th July last, with which a copy of your letter, herein acknowledged, was submitted for his opinion.

Copy of a Letter from the Advocate General to the Officiating Register of the Nizamut Adawlut, under date the 26th August, 1830.

In answer to the letter which you addressed to me by the desire of the Nizamut Adawlut, I beg to state my opinion that a magistrate, who may not have taken the oath of qualification as a justice of the peace, may take cognizance of complaints against European British subjects, to the extent specified in George III., 53, but I do not think that the proceedings in such cases are open to review by the court of the commissioners. No appeal is given by the statute to any court in the mofussil, but only a writ of certiorari to the court of Oyer and Terminer at the presidency; Statute LIII., George III., Clause 155, Section CV.

TO THE COMMISSIONERS OF CIRCUIT, MAGISTRATES AND JOINT MAGISTRATES.

December 10, 1830. No. 66.

Transmitting an extract from the Court's proceedings, declaratory of the right of zemindars to establish hauts on their own lands.

I AM directed by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to transmit to you, for your information and guidance, the accompanying extract from the proceedings of the Court, of this date, declaratory of the right of Zemindars, and other proprietors of land, to establish hauts or fairs on their own lands.

Extract from the Proceedings of the Nizamut Adawlut, dated 10th December, 1830.

The Court decided on an appeal from an order of the commissioner of circuit of the 15th Division, that zemindars and other proprietors of land have a right to establish hauts or fairs on their own lands, and to hold them on any day that they think proper; and that it is not competent to the magistrates to prohibit the establishment of a haut or fair, or to fix the day on which it may be held, on the plea of its interfering with the right of a neighbouring haut-holder, or on any other ground.

TO THE COMMISSIONERS OF CIRCUIT.

No. 67. December 17, 1830.

Directing the commissioners of circuit to insert in their warrants, the period of imprisonment in words, as well as in figures.

I AM directed by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to transmit to you the accompanying extract, paragraph 40, from a letter of the Honorable the Court of Directors, dated the 14th April last, and to desire that you will invariably insert in the warrants you may hereafter issue, the period of imprisonment to which the prisoners thereby affected may be sentenced, in words, as well as in figures; at the same time noticing, on the margin of the warrant, the prisoner's name, and the period of imprisonment in figures.

Extract from a Letter from the Hon'ble the Court of Directors, dated the 14th April, 1830.

PARA. 40. We regret that you have not informed us of the result of the inquiry ordered by the Nizamut Adawlut, with a view to ascertain whether any blame attached to the magistrates of Benares, or to the jailor, on the occasion referred to. This is not the first instance we have seen of carelessness in your magistrates, or their native officers, in detaining men in prison beyond the term of their sentence. But the chief blame is to be laid to the Nizamut Adawlut, whose duty it is to take care that such arrangements should be made as to render a mistake of this sort very unlikely to occur. When they stated to you that, considering all things, it was a matter of surprise that these occurrences did not happen more frequently, rather than that they happened at all, you should have pointed out to them that it was their duty to adopt proper measures to prevent them. We remark that that most obvious precaution of writing the period of the sentence in words, as well as in figures, and noticing the time in figures, with the name of the prisoner, in the margin of the warrant, was unaccountably neglected. We are happy to learn that you paid the man who was illegally detained in prison 100 rupees by way of compensation.

TO THE MAGISTRATES AND JOINT MAGISTRATES.

December 17, 1830. No 68.

Directing the magistrates to submit reports on all occasions when it may be necessary to call for the assistance of the military.

In pursuance of the orders of the Honorable the Court of Directors and of Government, I am directed by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to desire that on all occasions when you may find it necessary to call for the assistance of the military to preserve the peace of your district, you will immediately make a full and distinct report of all the circumstances of the case, for the information of the Court and of Government. This report you will be pleased to submit through the commissioner of circuit, that he may forward it to this Court with his own sentiments in each case.

Transmitting extracts of a letter from the Honorable the Court of Directors, relating to the precautions to be adopted to prevent the jails from being overcrowded.

2. I am further directed to transmit to you, for your information and future guidance, the accompanying extract, paragraphs 41, 42 and 43, from a letter of the Honorable the Court of Directors, dated the 14th April, 1830, on the subject of the precautions to be adopted to prevent the jails from being over-crowded.

Extract of a Letter from the Hon'ble the Court of Directors, dated the 14th April, 1830.

Para. 41. The orders issued by the Nizamut Adawlut on this occasion, appear to us to have been perfectly proper, and we entirely approve the Circular Letter* which you directed to be written to the magistrates, authorising and enjoining them, whenever the number of prisoners may be greater than can be conveniently accommodated in the proper jail, to hire, without previous application to Government, any suitable buildings which may be procurable, or to accommodate a portion of the prisoners in tents or boats, or to incur such expense as may be necessary to provide, in any other manner, for the temporary shelter and safe custody of the prisoners.

42. Other instances, similar to that now before us, having come to our notice, we desire you will apprise the magistrates, through the Nizamut Adawlut, that they have engaged our particular attention.

43. A magistrate cannot be justified in crowding together a greater number of prisoners than the place of confinement will conveniently hold. His duty, in regard to prisoners in his charge, is to detain them in custody according to law, under the sentences of the courts, or (in cases of persons not sentenced) under such discretion as is vested in him by the Regulations. Every pain he inflicts on those persons beyond that which is required by law, is illegal punishment. A magistrate, who, by crowding men together in prisons, till he inflicts diseases and death on them, will not be exculpated by pleading unhealthy seasons, pressure of business, great numbers of prisoners under his charge, delay in correspondence, or any of those excuses which are usually resorted to on such occasions, and perhaps accompanied by assertions of kind feelings for the prisoners, and some testimonial of humanity and attention in the care of the jails.

NOTE.—By Circular Order No. 7, VOL. III. a magistrate calling out the military is to report both to the Sessions Judge and the Superintendent of Police.

Prescribing the manner in which the futwas of conviction and acquittal, which accompany the jail delivery statements, should be transmitted.

I AM directed by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to request that in transmitting to the Court with your jail delivery statements the copies of the futwas of conviction and acquittal, you will cause them to be filed in two separate parcels, in the order in which the prisoners affected by them stand on the statements of prisoners punished without reference and acquitted; and that you will cause to be written on the face of each futwa a memorandum in the Persian language, showing the names of the prisoners, the numbers of the prisoners as they stood in the magistrate's calender, and their number in the respective statements of convictions and acquittals according to the accompanying forms.

2. Should any of the prisoners in a case be convicted and others acquitted you will be pleased to file a copy of the futwa with each parcel.

TO THE MAGISTRATES AND JOINT MAGISTRATES.

May 13, 1831. No. 82.

I AM directed by the Court of Nizamut Adalwut to transmit to you, for your information and future guidance, the accompanying extract (paragraphs 5 and 11) from a letter this day addressed to the Deputy Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department, by their order.

When insane persons are sent by magistrates to the Insane Hospital of the division, they are to be accompanied by duplicate reports of their cases by the surgeon who has attended them.

Hajut Tajweez and Dewanny prisoners to be separately entered in the monthly statements of deaths among the prisoners.

Extract from a Letter from the Register of the Nizamut Adawlut, to the Deputy Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department, under date the 13*th May*, 1831.

PARA. 5. The Court observe, that it is already provided by the rules for the management and control of the native Insane Hospitals, (paragraph 9,) circulated with Mr. Secretary Bayley's letter of the 23rd October, 1818, that "in the event of an insane person sent to "the hospital having been attended by the medical officer attached to "the zillah station, the latter shall furnish a statement of the history and "progress of his derangement, for the information and guidance of "the surgeon in charge of the hospital." They are however of opinion with the commissioner, that this statement should be furnished in duplicate; and they will direct this in future accordingly.

11. The Court approve of the suggestion of the commissioner that the prisoners confined pending the investigation of their cases, and the Dewanny prisoners, should be entered separately in the monthly statements of deaths, and will issue the necessary instructions to the magistrates.

TO THE COMMISSIONERS OF CIRCUIT.

June 3, 1831. No. 84.

Explaining the 6th paragraph of the Court's Circular Order of the 16th July, 1830.

SOME of the commissioners of circuit having misunderstood the 6th paragraph of the Circular Orders of the 16th July, 1830, which was not intended to alter the practice which had before invariably obtained of filing with the record of trials submitted to the Court of Nizamut Adawlut the original confessions of prisoners, the Court deem it necessary to explain that all original confessions and police reports should be annexed, in the first instance, to the original record of the trial; and that in all cases referred to or called for by the Court, the originals should be transferred to the copy of the record submitted, attested copies being retained on the original record.

NOTE.—See Nos. 54 and 191, Vol. II.

Police officers prohibited from making inquiries into cases of accidental fires, unless charges of arson be preferred to them.

THE Court of Nizamut Adawlut having reason to believe that the visits of the police officers in the interior of their jurisdictions, for the purpose of inquiring into the circumstances of accidental fires, are a source of great oppression on the part of the police officers, and a general subject of complaint among the inhabitants of the villages so visited, desire that you will strictly prohibit the police officers of your jurisdiction from making any inquiries into the circumstances of fires, except when charges of arson may be preferred to them.

The levy of the Chowkeedaree tax to be confined to the stations prescribed by Regulation XXII. 1816.

REPEATED complaints having reached the Governor General of exactions practised in the introduction of the chowkeedaree tax, the Court, in pursuance of instructions received from Government, direct me to desire you will prohibit the levy of any tax, either by the magistrates or darogahs, on account of the chowkeedaree establishments, except at the stations, and in the mode prescribed by Regulation XXII. 1816, unless such establishments shall have been introduced and maintained with the free will and consent of the inhabitants, the withdrawal of which might endanger the security of their property.

No. 88.

September 9, 1831.

Authorising the destruction of certain records of the magistrates' courts in the Persian language.

I AM directed by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to transmit to you, for your information and guidance, the accompanying extracts (paragraph 14) from a letter addressed by order of the Court to the Deputy Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department, on the 13th May last, and (paragraph 12) from the Deputy Secretary's reply, dated the 12th July last, sanctioning the destruction of the Persian records of your court of a date prior to the 31st December, 1815, except the proceedings in cases of commitment for trial before the court of circuit.

* Communicated on the same date to the commissioners of circuit.

2. The Court desire that you will exercise the greatest care and caution in making the selection of the papers to be destroyed, and that you will use your discretion in preserving any records, in addition to those excepted by Government, the preservation of which you may think necessary.

3. With regard to the manner in which they are to be destroyed, the Court desire that they be burnt in the presence of yourself or your assistant, and that care be taken that none are taken away, lest improper use be made of the seals and signatures of public officers attached to them.

Extract of a Letter from the Register of the Nizamut Adawlut, to the Deputy Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department, under date the 13th May, 1831.

PARA. 14. Although many of the old records of the courts are quite useless, and might be destroyed without the slightest fear of inconvenience, there would be some danger, unless the strictest caution were observed, that valuable documents and papers might be destroyed with the dewanny records. This however could not happen in those of the criminal courts: and the majority of the Court therefore beg to suggest the expediency of directing the destruction of all the foujdarry records in the Persian language of a date prior to the 31st December, 1815.

Extract of a Letter from the Deputy Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department, to the Register of the Nizamut Adawlut, under date the 12th July, 1831.

PARA. 12. His Honor in Council is of opinion that, in place of directing the destruction of all the foujdarry records in the Persian language of a date prior to 31st December, 1815, it would be more expedient to authorise the magistrates to destroy such of those records as they might think unworthy of preservation, provided that all proceedings in cases of commitment for trial before the circuit judge or commissioner be carefully kept.

Precautions to be adopted to prevent the ulceration of the legs of convicts from the friction of their fetters.

THE frequent ulceration of the legs of convicts confined in the public jails having been brought to the notice of the Nizamut Adawlut, the Court direct me to transmit to you the following observations and orders for your information and future guidance.

2. The ulceration of the legs is attributed to the friction of the fetters, and is said to be more common among prisoners newly admitted, in consequence of the rings of the fetters placed on them being occasionally foul from rust, than among prisoners who have been long in jail, the rings of whose fetters have become in a measure polished, either by friction caused by the motion of the wearers' limbs in exercise, or the care of the convicts in keeping them clean. It has been suggested, as a precautionary measure, that each convict should be made to wear leather gaiters or mozehs, extending a few inches above the ankle, to protect that part of the leg on which the fetter rings are likely to rub.

3. The Court accordingly desire that you will cause every convict in your jail, who is confined in fetters, to wear the mozehs, and that you will enjoin their guards to be careful that they do not take them off while out at their work. You will also be pleased to direct your jailor to take care that the rings of the fetters, placed on newly-admitted convicts, are quite clean, and freed from all asperities arising from dirt or rust, or carelessness in the original construction; and that at the daily inspection of the fetters, required by paragraph 12 of Section IX. of the rules for the management of jails, he enjoin on the convicts the necessity of keeping the rings of them clean, and bring to your notice any instances of their disobeying this order.

4. The substitution of chains for the long iron links now in use, for connecting the rings attached to the legs of the convicts, has been suggested to the Court, as being calculated to allow the prisoners to walk and work with greater ease to themselves than they can do at present, from the inconvenient position they are constrained to adopt in walking and working, and from the continual fretting and friction caused by the oblique position of the straight iron links. It is at the same time doubtful, whether the security of the prisoners might not be diminished by the adoption of chains, as the chains might be sooner cut through, unless the links were made of a thickness which would add materially to their weight. The Court authorise you to use your discretion on this point; and direct me to take this opportunity of calling your attention to the rule contained in paragraph 58, Section IX. of the rules above-mentioned, restricting the weight of fetters, in ordinary cases, to one and a half seer.

TO THE COMMISSIONERS OF CIRCUIT, WESTERN PROVINCES.

Western Provinces, 12th March, 1832. No. 97.

Commissioners of circuit competent to permit the officers subordinate to them to proceed into the interior of their districts.

I AM directed by the Court to forward to you the annexed copy of a letter from the Deputy Secretary to Government, Judicial Department, communicating the sentiments of his Honor the Vice-President in Council regarding that part of the Circular Order of 8th November, 1806,* which directs magistrates to apply to this Court for permission to leave the sudder station of their district.

2. The Court desire me to inform you that they have adopted the suggestion therein contained; and you are requested to forward copies of my present letter, with its enclosure, to the magistrates of your division, for their information and guidance. In the exercise of the power hereby vested in you, it is expected by the Court that care will be taken to avoid interference with the transactions of business in the civil courts, where the offices of judge and magistrate are held by the same individual.

Copy of a Letter from the Deputy Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department, to the Register of the Nizamut Adawlut for the Western Provinces, dated 31*st January,* 1832.

You are requested to bring to the notice of the Nizamut Adawlut the inconvenience which, under existing circumstances, results from a strict observance of that part of their Circular Order of November 8th, 1806, which directs that magistrates should apply to them for permission to visit particular parts of their district.

2. The magistracy being now generally severed from the judgeship and united with the collectorship, the same reasons no longer exist for requiring a reference to the superior court in such instances. At the same time, local officers now exist, who exercise superintendence over the proceedings both of the magistrate and collector, and who are well able to appreciate the motives which render the presence of the European functionary in the interior necessary or expedient.

3. His Honor in Council would therefore suggest to the Court the propriety of annulling that part of the order in question, and of informing the local commissioners that they are now vested with authority to permit any of the officers subordinate to them to proceed into the interior of the district, whenever such a measure may appear conducive to the public interests.

Lower and Western Provinces, 23rd March, 1832.

No. 98.

Commissioners and sessions judges directed to cause commitments not made conformably to Circular Order of 16th July, 1830, to be amended before they proceed with the trial of the prisoners.

THE Court of Nizamut Adawlut having had occasion to observe that prisoners tried before the commissioners of circuit are not unfrequently convicted of receiving or possessing plundered or stolen property, although only committed to be tried for the crime of dacoity, highway robbery, burglary, or theft, direct me to call your attention to the 15th, 16th, 17th, and 18th paragraphs of the circular instructions under date the 16th July, 1830,* and to desire that in future when a prisoner is brought before you for trial, whose commitment has not been made in conformity with the instructions cited, you will cause the magistrate to amend it before proceeding to try the prisoner.

2. For the better attainment of the object in view, the Court further desire that you specially instruct the magistrates and joint magistrates of your division, in all cases wherein stolen or plundered property may have been found in possession of prisoners committed to take their trial for theft or robbery, to insert a second count in the commitment, charging them also with the offenee of knowingly receiving the plundered or stolen property, as the case may be.

Lower and Western Provinces, 13th April, 1832.

No. 100.

Requesting particular attention to the Circular Order of the 16th July 1830, regarding the arrangement of the proceedings in trials referred.

THE Court having several times found occasion to remark the extreme inattention to the Circular Order of the 16th July, 1830,* which is apparent in the references of criminal trials by several of the commissioners of circuit and session judges in the districts within their jurisdiction, such inattention, by rendering it necessary to return the proceedings for revision and amendment, entailing unnecessary delay and great hardship on the prisoners included in them, I am directed, with a view to prevent the future occurrence of such irregularities, to request your particular attention to the Circular Order above cited. The additional degree of labour incident to a more careful arrangement of the papers in each case by the ministerial officers of your courts, is trifling in comparison with the objects contemplated by the Circular Order in question. It may be added that as it is found necessary to return the whole proceeding for amendment on the occurrence of these instances of negligence, the labor of the omlah of the officer making the reference is only increased by their carelessness in the first instance. You are requested to impress this on the officers of your courts, and, at the same time, to examine carefully each case previous to submitting it to this Court, noting and correcting any errors, and supplying any omission which may be observable.

Session judges to report instances of examinations taken by the native officers in the absence of the magistrate or his assistant.

INSTANCES having been brought to the notice of the Court in which witnesses and others in criminal cases have been examined by the native officers of the Magistrates' courts, when neither the magistrate nor his assistant was present, I am directed to inform you that the attention of the magistrates and joint-magistrates has been called to the Circular Order of the Court, under date the 12th December 1809,* and a strict observance of the rules therein contained enjoined; and to request that you will bring to the notice of the Court any deviation therefrom which you may observe in the course of trial held by you.

In writing native names the orthography of the original to be closely adhered to.

TO THE SESSION JUDGES, LOWER AND WESTERN PROVINCES.

No. 108. Lower and Western Provinces, 22nd June, 1832.

Session judges to try cases as soon as possible after the commitments are made, and the cases laid before them by the magistrates.

WITH a view to ensure the more speedy trial of cases committed before the session judges, and uniformity in the manner of designating the trials, I am directed by the Court to communicate the following observations and orders.

2. Some of the session judges appear to imagine that they are required by Regulation VII. 1831, to hold monthly sessions of jail delivery at stated periods. A main object however of that enactment was to relieve the parties and witnesses from the inconvenience of frequent journeys to and from the sudder station, and lengthened detention when there. It is highly desirable therefore that you should proceed upon each trial as soon as practicable after the commitment has been made by the magistrate, who will be directed to give you immediate intimation thereof. Circumstances may occur to prevent you from taking up the case immediately, but the Court desire to impress on your mind the importance they attach to this subject, and to request that you will use your utmost endeavours to prevent unnecessary delay. To enable them to judge whether their instructions on this head are duly observed, you are requested to insert in your monthly statements, Nos. 1 and 2, in the column appropriated to "crime charged," the date on which the case was "committed for trial," and that you will explain the cause of any delay which may occur, in the column of remarks.

Form of distinguishing trials; by the months in which they are held.

3. The Court observe that an uniform practice does not exist with regard to the mode of distinguishing trials, and direct me to inform you that each trial should be distinguished in the heading by the month in which it may be held. The magistrates of the districts to which Regulation VII. of 1831 has been extended, will be* directed to keep separate calendars for each month, entering the trials thereon in regular order. The heading of trials in English and Persian will therefore be as follows:

"COURT OF THE SESSION JUDGE OF ZILLAH ————.

"Trial No. 1 of the sessions for the month of ————, 183—.

"Case No. 3 of the magistrate's calendar for the month of ————, 183—.

* See following Circular.

† In cases tried under Regulation VI. 1832, with the aid of jurors, assessors or punchayts, the names and designations of these persons employed should be entered in lieu of the Mahomedan law officer.

4. The monthly statements connected with sessions should, in like manner, be designated by the month in which the trials entered in them were concluded by sentence, or postponed.

Magistrates immediately to report to the session judges when they commit a prisoner for trial; and to keep separate calendars of commitments for each month.

ONE of the main objects of Regulation VII. 1831, being to prevent the parties and witnesses in criminal trials suffering inconvenience from frequent journeys to and from the sudder station, and lengthened detention when there, the attention of the session judges has* been called to the subject, and they have been directed to proceed on the trial of all cases committed as soon after the commitment as practicable; and I am directed by the Court to request that whenever you may commit a prisoner for trial, you will immediately intimate the same to the session judge, that no unnecessary delay may occur.

2. I am at the same time directed to request that you will keep separate calendars of commitments for each month, and that you will enter the commitments on them in regular order.

MUCH inconvenience having been occasionally experienced by the Court in the revision of proceedings on trials called for on perusal of the statements furnished at the close of sessions, from the want of any record of the grounds upon which sentence has been passed, (the statements having been often forwarded in the mean time to Government,) the Court direct that in future you will annex to the proceedings of each trial submitted under the above circumstances, an extract from the statements, containing whatever information was conveyed in them relative to the case called for. This extract will in fact be a statement in the usual form, including only the particular case which the Court desire to revise. When some prisoners have been punish-

Directing that convicts under sentence of imprisonment for life be kept in strict custody within the zillah jails, until they are removed to the Alipore jail.

AS cases have occurred of the escape of convicts under sentence of perpetual imprisonment, who were employed on labour in the zillahs pending the receipt of the order for their removal to the Alipore jail, and as it seems probable, with reference to the strength and description of the jail guards used in the zillahs, that such escapes will occur, if such convicts continue to be so employed, the Court of Nizamut Adawlut direct that in future convicts under sentence of imprisonment for life in the jail at Alipore shall not be sent to work on the roads while they may remain in the zillahs, but shall be kept in strict custody in the jails of the respective zillahs until they are removed to the place of their ultimate destination.

Transmitting copy of a letter dated 9th instant, from the superintendent of the Government lithographic press, relative to the engrossing lithographic forms without charge.

I AM directed by the Court of Sudder Dewanny and Nizamut Adawlut to transmit for your information, the accompanying copy of a letter received from the superintendent of the Government lithographic press, Calcutta, under date the 9th instant.

Copy of a Letter from the Superintendent of the Government Lithographic Press, Calcutta, to the Register of the Sudder Dewanny and Nizamut Adawlut, Western Provinces, dated the 9th August, 1832.

On indenting for lithographic forms, the judges of the Provincial Court of Bareilly have annexed, as authority for the application, a letter to their address from you, dated 6th July, 1832, wherein the Court were pleased to direct that the Bareilly Court of Appeal should charge for them in their contingent bill.

2. I beg distinctly to state for the information of the Sudder Dewanny and Nizamut Adawlut, and, if the Court should see necessary, for the general information of the judicial officers subject to them, that this is exclusively a Government establishment, organized for the sole purpose of aiding the service in the discharge of official details, and that no charge whatever is made for such forms as are executed here.

3. I have been induced to trouble the Court with this communication from the fact that a private lithographic press at Cawnpore has been, by mistake of the officers of Government in the neighbourhood, resorted to, under the erroneous idea of its being on a footing similar to this press. This however is quite a mistake, and there is no other establishment besides this which is the property of Government.

4. I have thought it would be satisfactory to the Court to know that many estimates, showing the actual expense at which Government execute its own forms, as compared with that incidental to private presses, have been furnished. In that last made it was shewn that the forms printed here are done often at one-tenth, and never at more than one-third, of the rate which private presses charge for the same work.

In continuation of my letter of the 8th June, I am directed by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut for the Western Provinces to inform you, in reply to your letter of the 28th of May last, that the Court, in concurrence with the judges of the Presidency Sudder, have determined as follows with regard to one of the points therein referred.

2. The Courts are of opinion that as the commissioners of circuit in their capacity of judges of circuit, are competent, under Section XVII., Regulation XVI. 1810, and Section XV., Regulation XVII. 1816, to authorise a reward for meritorious services, whenever in the progress of a trial they may consider it proper to do so, the same power must be considered as vested in the judges of sessions under the same circumstances.

3. You will be hereafter informed of the Court's decision on the other question contained in your reference.

Directing the commissioners and session judges to attend

I am directed by the Court to transmit to you the accompanying extract, paragraphs 17 to 21, of a letter from the commissioner of circuit for the 14th division, to the Register of the Presidency Court to the precautions noticed by the commissioner of the 14th division, in the payment of diet-money to indigent prosecutors and witnesses.

of Nizamut Adawlut, under date the 22nd September last, and paragraph 10 of one written on the subject thereof by the order of the Presidency Court on this date, to the Officiating Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department; and to request that you will carefully attend to the precaution noticed by the commissioner, to prevent overcharges and fraudulent practices on the part of native officers in the payment of diet-money allowed to indigent prosecutors and witnesses.

Extract of a Letter from the Commissioner of Circuit for the 14th Division to the Register of the Presidency Nizamut Adawlut, under date the 22nd September, 1832.

PARA. 17. By the Nizamut's Circular Letter of the 6th September, 1810*, the magistrates, in paying the prescribed allowances to indigent prosecutors and witnesses, are directed to be careful to ascertain the actual attendance of the parties on the courts of circuit, and desired to establish such checks as may appear to them most effectual to guard against overcharges by their native officers, and the detailed accounts for diet-money are to be countersigned by the judge of circuit holding the jail delivery

18. I am not aware that the magistrates can establish any effectual check against overcharges by their native officers, on account of diet-money to indigent prosecutors and witnesses attending the sessions. But a complete check may be established by the judge holding the sessions, and with little or no trouble to himself, if, when he commences a trial, he will only ascertain what witnesses mentioned in the calendar are in attendance, and make a mark opposite the names of the absentees; and, on the termination of the trial, if he will demand from the magistrate's nazir a statement of his account for diet-money in that particular case, have the persons stated to have received it brought before him, ascertain from them how much they have received, and direct whatever may be due to them to be paid in his presence.

19. Unless the judge takes some such precaution as above, he certainly, when countersigning the detailed accounts of diet-money after the completion of the sessions, can be as little satisfied as to its correctness as the magistrate.

20. I have been led to make the above observations, in consequence of my detecting the native officer of the magistrate's court of Moorshedabad in cheating both the Government and the witnesses; the Government, by charging for witnesses who were not in attendance, and the witnesses, by giving them less than they were entitled to.

21. The witnesses he cheated by paying them their one anna per diem in cowries, at the rate of 5 puns the anna, instead of 7, which was the bazar price, thereby depriving them of rather more than four annas and half in the rupee.

Extract of a Letter from the Register of the Presidency Nizamut Adawlut to the Officiating Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department, dated the 16th November, 1832.

PARA. 10. With reference to the remarks of the commissioner on the subject of overcharges and frauds on the part of the native officers in the payment of the diet-money allowed to indigent prosecutors and witnesses, I am directed to state that the Court conceive the check suggested in the 18th paragraph to be a salutary one, and the several circuit judges will be directed, on holding a jail delivery, to attend to the precaution therein noticed, with a view of correcting the abuses which are found to exist under the present system.

TO THE CIVIL AND CRIMINAL COURTS, LOWER PROVINCES.

Lower Provinces, 16th November, 1832. No. 126.

In references to the Sudder Dewanny and Nizamut Adawlut, copies should be transmitted instead of original papers.

IN consequence of public officers, when making references to this Court, sending, instead of copies as heretofore, original papers which they request may be returned, much inconvenience has of late been experienced, arising from the delay which the examination of the copies prepared in this office occasions in the dispatch of the regular current business. I am therefore directed by the Court to request that, on such occasions, you will send copies, except when you may think it more proper to send originals; in which case, if you deem it necessary to preserve copies for record in your own office, you will be pleased to have them prepared before submitting the originals.

Transmitting a letter from Government containing forms of address and titles

IN continuation of the Court's Circular Letter, No. 122, (dated in the Western Provinces, the 12th, and in the Lower, the 19th October last) I am directed by the Court to transmit to you for your information the accompanying copy of a letter from the Officiating Secretary to Government, Judicial Department, dated the 27th ultimo, prescrib-

Copy of a Letter from the Officiating Secretary to Government, in the Judicial Department, to the Register of the Sudder Dewanny Adawlut, under date the 27th November, 1832.

With reference to my letter, dated the 2nd ultimo, I am directed to request you will inform the Court of Sudder Dewanny Adawlut that the Vice-President in Council has taken into further consideration the distinction between the forms of address and titles by which the different grades of native judges are to be addressed, and is pleased to resolve that the following forms shall be observed :

2. These will be considered the official titles and forms of address of each of the above grades, and will be used by the covenanted servants of the Government whenever they have occasion to address any written communication to the officers concerned.

3. The Court are requested to circulate these orders for the instruction and guidance of the subordinate authorities.

TO THE COMMISSIONERS OF CIRCUIT AND SESSION JUDGES, WESTERN PROVINCES.

Western Provinces, 19th November, 1832. No. 129.

Requesting the particular attention of commissioners and session judges to the rules laid down in paragraphs 6 and 8 of the Circular Order of 16th July, 1830, for placing prisoners on their trial, and pointing out the inconveniences resulting from a non-observance of those rules.

SEVERAL instances having lately come to the notice of the Court of neglect, on the part of judges holding criminal trials, of the rules for placing prisoners on their trial, laid down in paragraphs 6 and 8 of the Circular Order of 16th July, 1830,* the Court direct me to call your attention to the subject, and to request that you will strictly observe those rules in your future proceedings. The Court observe that after the deposition of the prosecutor, the prisoner should be called on merely to plead "guilty" or "not guilty" to the charge; the nature of the charge having been distinctly explained to him in this stage of proceedings, no further questions should be addressed to the prisoner. After the close of the evidence for the prosecution, the prisoner should be called on for his defence; no questions being addressed to him beyond those necessary to elucidate his meaning, and every thing of the nature of an examination, especially such questions as might lead him to criminate himself, being carefully avoided. I am directed more particularly to impress on you the necessity of a strict attention to regularity on this head, as a neglect of it may often render it necessary that the prisoner be again placed on his trial, and the whole of the evidence heard over again.

TO THE MAGISTRATES AND JOINT MAGISTRATES, LOWER AND WESTERN PROVINCES.

Lower and Western Provinces, 21st December, 1832. No. 130.

Circulating a construction of Regulation II. 1832.

I AM directed by the Court to transmit to you for your information the accompanying extract, paragraphs 2 and 11, from a letter written by order of the Presidency Court on the 7th of September last, to the Deputy Secretary to Government on the general police report for the 13th division for the first six months of 1832, containing a construction of Regulation II. 1832, which has received the sanction of Government.

the provisions of Regulation II. 1832, the Court remark that the provisions of the Regulation in question do not exempt the chowkeedars from the duty of reporting the commission of such offences to the police, who are still bound to report all cases that come to their knowledge to the magistrate: it only prohibits the police from arresting any person, or making local inquiries, without a written application from the party injured. This opinion, with the construction of Regulation II. 1832, contained in the 11th paragraph of this letter, the Court, with the concurrence of Government, propose to issue for the information of the several magistrates and their police officers.

11. With reference to the remark of the commissioner that the police are now prohibited from interfering with robberies unattended with violence, the Court repeat the remark contained in the 2nd paragraph of this letter, that Regulation II. 1832, does not alter the law heretofore in force regarding any heinous crimes except burglaries and theft. As to the concealment of crime by the police, the Court will desire that the magistrate be reminded that he should make use of other sources of information than his police officers to discover crimes, and use his utmost endeavours, by conciliation and kindness, to procure the co-operation of respectable landholders and their agents, in the detection of offenders.*

The warrant of a collector is sufficient authority to a civil jailor to receive and discharge prisoners confined under his orders.

I AM directed by the Court to transmit to you, for your information and guidance, the accompanying copy of a letter this day addressed by their order to the commissioner of revenue and circuit for the 15th division; [and to request that you will communicate the same to the collectors and magistrates of your division, and direct the latter, under whose control the civil jails are now placed, to instruct the civil jailors to obey the collector's warrant for the confinement or release of defaulters.†]

Copy of a Letter from the Register of the Presidency Sudder Dewanny Adawlut to the Commissioner of Revenue and Circuit for the 15th Division, dated the 4th January, 1833.

I am directed by the Court to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 11th ultimo and its enclosure, relating to the necessity of the civil judge's signature to the perwanehs to the dewanny jailors, for the confinement, at the instance of the collector, of persons in summary suits for rent, under Regulation VIII. 1831.

2. In reply, I am directed to inform you that the Court are of opinion that, as collectors are empowered by Section XX., Regulation VIII. 1831, to execute their own awards, their orders for the confinement and release of defaulters need not pass through the civil judges; and that the warrant of the collector is a sufficient authority to the civil jailor to receive or discharge a prisoner. Copies of this letter will be circulated to the civil judges and commissioners of revenue and circuit for general information

Lower and Western Provinces, 18th January, 1833.

No. 132.

Trials not to be postponed by session judges beyond the session next after the sixth month from the date of commitment, except for special reasons to be reported to the Nizamut Adawlut.

THE provisions of Section XLIX., Regulation IX. 1793, (Section XVII., Regulation VII. 1803,) have been ruled to allow a second postponement only of a criminal trial; it being imperative on the judge of circuit, holding the third sessions after the commitment, to dispose of the case on such evidence as may then be before him. The commitments in districts to which Regulation VII. 1831 has been extended are now to be held as soon as possible by the session judge; and it is necessary to provide against the prolonged confinement of prisoners in cases postponed by session judges, and also to afford sufficient time to procure the attendance of the necessary witnesses. The Court therefore direct me to communicate the following rule for your information and future guidance.

2. No criminal trial shall be postponed by a session judge beyond the session of jail delivery which may be held next after the expiration of the period of six months from the date of commitment; except when, for special reasons, the session judge may be of opinion that it should be again postponed; in which case he will report the circumstances under which it has been already postponed, and the grounds on which he has formed his opinion, for the orders of the Court.

No. 133.

Magistrates may refer to principal sudder ameens and sudder ameens, for investigation and report, criminal cases not finally cognizable by them; but to law officers only such cases as are finally cognizable by them, for trial.

I AM directed by the Court to transmit to you, for the information and guidance of the magistrates and joint magistrates of your division, the accompanying extract (paragraphs 2 and 3) from a letter addressed by their order to the Register of the Court of Nizamut Adawlut for the Western Provinces, under date the 7th December last, in regard to the power of magistrates and joint magistrates to refer criminal cases for investigation to law officers, principal sudder ameens, and sudder ameens. This construction of course supersedes that contained in the Circular Order of the 24th July, 1829, (No. 30, volume II.)

Extract (parapraphs 2 and 3) from a Letter from the Presidency Nizamut Adawlut to the Register of the Nizamut Adawlut for the Western Provinces, dated the 7th December, 1832.

PARA. 2. The Court are of opinion that by Section III., Regulation III. 1821, the zillah and city magistrates are empowered to refer petty complaints for trial to the Hindu and Mahomedan law officers, without reference to the circumstance of their being sudder ameens; the powers vested in law officers by Section III., being extended by Section IV. to sudder ameens specially empowered under Section V., Regulation II. 1821, and to sudder ameens appointed to the stations of joint magistrates, whether so empowered or not. They consider the above rules to be still in force, and in no way affected by Clause 6, Section XVIII., Regulation V. 1831, which, while it authorises the reference of any criminal case for investigation to a sudder ameen, or principal sudder ameen, not being a Mahomedan law officer, though not finally cognizable by him, still leaves the Mahomedan law officer, whether a sudder ameen or not, the power of trying cases finally cognizable by him, which may be referred to him. The reason of the exception in regard to the Mahomedan law officer appears to be the obvious impropriety of his investigating a case in the trial of which, if committed to the circuit or session court, he might have to sit as an assessor, and deliver a futwa as to the guilt or innocence of the prisoner.

3. The Court further direct me to observe that they are confirmed in the foregoing opinion by Section III., Regulation II. 1832, which expressly extends the powers of punishment in criminal cases, previously vested in the native law officers by Section III, and in sudder ameens by Section IV., Regulation III. 1821; and that, had those powers been conferred on the law officers, solely in virtue of their holding the office of sudder ameen, it is manifest they would not, in the above first enactment, have been distinctly referred to in the former capacity, now that they are no longer sudder ameens ex-officio.

Death warrants to be forwarded to the Nizamut Adawlut when fully executed.

THE Court having had occasion to observe much inattention to the provisions of Section LXXVIII., Regulation IX. 1793, which direct that warrants for the capital punishment of convicts under sentence of the Nizamut Adawlut shall, after being carried into execution, be transmitted to the court from which the sentence issued, I am directed to request that you will in future conform strictly to that rule, transmitting to this Court all executed death warrants immediately on the receipt of them from the magistrates.

Lower and Western Provinces, 22nd February, 1833.

No. 135.

Calling attention to Circular Order, 16th July, 1830, to prevent the recurrence of certain irregularities noticed in the conduct of criminal trials.

IN reviewing the proceedings held on various trials lately referred to this Court, or called for on a revision of the periodical statements, the Court have had frequent occasion to remark the irregularity which still prevails in the form of putting the prisoners on their trial, as well as great inattention to the rules in force for drawing out the charge or indictment on which the prisoner is tried. These irregularities are not mere deviations from prescribed forms, but in many instances serious omissions, such as vitiate the whole proceedings, and have occasionally rendered it necessary that the case should be re-tried, to the great inconvenience of the witnesses, the delay of justice, and the increase of labour to the judges and ministerial officers of the criminal courts.

2. The Circular Order of the 16th July 1830*, having fully detailed the proper course of proceeding in every stage of criminal trials, it is deemed unnecessary to issue new directions on the subject. Your strict attention, however, is requested to the rules therein laid down, and more especially to paragraphs 15, 16 and 17, regarding the framing of the charge. On first taking up a case committed for trial, the Court are of opinion that the presiding judge should compare carefully the written charge on which the prisoner is committed with the facts of the case as stated in the magistrate's roobukaree of commitment, and that he should, in this stage of the proceedings, cause the magistrate to rectify what may be erroneous, and supply what may have been omitted. This practice would, in the Court's opinion, tend to check in a great measure the irregularities now observable, and in the end be the means of saving the useless expenditure of much time and trouble. In calling on the prisoner to plead, the judge should be careful that the question addressed to him corresponds exactly with the written charge, and where more than one prisoner is included in a case, the question should be addressed, separately and distinctly, to each by the judge himself. There are many other points of less consequence, a greater degree of attention to which is desirable; and it may be observed generally, that even matters of mere form, when connected with a criminal trial, on which the character, liberty, and often the life of an individual depends, assume a degree of importance, which, on a superfical view of the subject, they might not appear to possess. The Circular Order above referred to contains clear and compendious directions on all these points, and a strict adherence to them being deemed essential, the Court confidently rely on your utmost exertions to ensure the attainment of this object.

The names of prisoners to be spelt uniformly, and the names of their fathers to be mentioned when two or more of the same name are included in the same trial.

3. The Court have had occasion to remark that sufficient attention is not paid to correctness and uniformity in the manner of spelling the names of prisoners in the record of evidence. This is a point of great importance, and should meet with your particular attention. Where several prisoners bearing the same or similar names are included in one trial, care should be taken, in recording the evidence given by each witness, to specify the name of the father of the person alluded to, whenever the name of any one of them is mentioned. Very serious inconvenience has resulted from the neglect of this precaution.

Date of perpetration of offence to be noted in the margin of letters of reference.

4. In your future letters of reference, you are requested to note in the margin under the "charge" on which the prisoner is committed, the date on which the offence is supposed to have been perpetrated.

The speedy transmission of the records of trial enjoined. Magistrate's proceedings to be forwarded in

5. Great delay has occasionally taken place between the conclusion of a trial and the receipt of the record of the case in this office. It is needless again to point out the objectionable nature of the practice of deferring the reference of trials, a former Circular Order* having already directed that every means be used to prevent such delay. As however there is reason to believe that it is thought necessary by some session judges to have the whole of the magistrate's proceedings copied previous to the transmission of the orignals with the transcript of the proceedings on trial, I am directed to observe that no such necessity exists; the Presidency Court on a former occasion* directed that the original proceedings of the magistrates should be sent, with a view to avoid the delay, trouble, and expense attending the copying of them. The practice noticed effectually defeats the object of the Court's order, and should be avoided; unless in special cases, where peculiar reasons may exist for adopting it.

The Court having had before them some of the statements (No. 9, required by the Circular Order of the 6th April last), of civil prisoners confined in the several jails on the 30th June last, are of opinion, that a brief explanation of the cause of detention should be given when any prisoner has been in confinement one year.

Copy of a Letter from the Judge of Zillah Dacca, to the Register of the Presidency Sudder Dewanny Adawlut, under date the 5th February, 1834.

I request you will represent to the judges of the Sudder Dewanny Adawlut the great difficulty and hardship that will arise from having all the defendants in cases of execution of decrees sent from Furreedpoor to this place, as intended by Section VII., Regulation VII. 1832. In the rainy season there are three large and dangerous rivers to cross ; and the hardship and injustice of sending civil prisoners to a jail, distant in some cases at least ninety miles from their houses, in the neighbourhood of which alone they can expect to find means of paying their debts, requires no comment from me. The probability of their escaping, the expense of boat-hire, and various other objections arise.

2. I have therefore, for the present, desired the chief sudder ameen and moonsiffs to forward such prisoners to the magistrate at Furreedpore, whom I have requested to accommodate them in the dewanny jail at that place, and to send them over to Dacca by the boat which comes monthly with prisoners and witnesses for the sessions. But I trust the Court will either devise or recommend some plan to Government for the civil prisoners of the Furreedpore division to be detained at Furreedpore, and not transported to Dacca.

Copy of a Letter from the Register of the Presidency Sudder Dewanny Adawlut, to the Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department, under date the 21st February, 1834.

I am directed by the Court to request that you will lay before the Honorable the Vice-Pesident in Council the accompanying copy of a letter from the judge of zillah Dacca, representing the inconvenience and danger attendant on a strict observance of the rule contained in Section VII., Regulation VII. 1832, in the case of persons arrested in execution of decrees under the orders of the principal sudder ameen and moonsiffs of that part of the district which is under the joint-magistrate of Furreedpore.

2. The Court are of opinion that, except in cases in which the debtors might wish to be sent to Dacca, if the principal sudder ameen and moonsiffs were required, on forwarding any person to the joint magistrate at Furreedpore for confinement in the civil jail, at the same time to report the circumstances to the judge at Dacca, who would confirm or cancel the order as might appear just and proper, the form required by the Regulations would be sufficiently observed ; and they propose, should Government see no objection, to instruct the judge of Dacca accordingly.

Copy of a Letter from the Deputy Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department, to the Register of the Sudder Dewanny Adawlut, under date the 10th March, 1834.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, dated the 21st ultimo, with its enclosure from the judge of Dacca, representing the inconvenience and hardship of sending from Furreedpore to Dacca all defendants in cases of execution of decrees passed by the principal sudder ameen and moonsiffs within the Furreedpore limits, in conformity with the rule in Section VII., Regulation VII. 1832.

2. The Vice-President in Council sees no objection to the instructions which the Court propose to issue on this subject.

TO THE COMMISSIONERS OF CIRCUIT AND SESSION JUDGES, LOWER AND WESTERN PROVINCES.

No. 148. Lower and Western Provinces, 8th August, 1834.

In the marginal note of the letter referring trials to the Nizamut Adawlut, the date of the apprehension and commitment of each prisoner, and the date on which the crime is alleged to have been committed, is to be entered.

As it is necessary that the Court shall be aware of the period which elapses between the different stages of proceedings in criminal trials and in the previous investigations before the magistrates, to enable them to frame a satisfactory report to Government on the administration of criminal justice, I am directed to request that in the note annexed to the head of letters of reference in criminal trials, you will state, opposite to the name of each prisoner, the dates of his apprehension and commitment for trial: you will also add under the heading of "Charge," the date on which the crime is alleged to have been committed.

NOTE.—See No. 54, Vol. II.

The Circular Order of 29th June, 1832, declared applicable to criminal trials called for by precept.

WITH reference to the Circular Order of the 29th June, 1832, (No. 110 of this volume) the Court request that you will consider the rule therein laid down applicable to criminal trials, the proceedings in which are submitted for their perusal in obedience to a precept, as well as to trials called for by letter on a perusal of the session statements.

TO THE COMMISSIONERS OF CIRCUIT, LOWER AND WESTERN PROVINCES.

Lower and Western Provinces, 19th September, 1834. No. 150.

Instructions for the destruction of certain criminal records of the courts of circuit.

I AM directed by the Court to transmit to you the accompanying copy of a letter from the register of the Sudder Dewanny and Nizamut Adawlut for the Western Provinces, dated the 24th April last, containing instructions regarding the disposal of certain criminal records of the late Calcutta court of circuit remaining among those of the late provincial court for the division, and to inform you that the Court have been pleased to resolve, with the sanction of Government, that any records similar to those enumerated therein, which may remain in your office, be also destroyed.

Copy of a Letter from the Register of the Nizamut Adawlut Western Provinces, to the Register of the Presidency Court, under date the 24th April, 1834.

With reference to the orders of Government of the 7th instant, directing that the Sudder Courts shall communicate on the subject of the destruction of a portion of the old criminal records of the late provincial courts, I am directed to submit the following proposal for the opinion of the presidency Court.

First.—That all records of trials on charges of murder, or of any other crime accompanied by murder, decided previous to the year 1820, from which it may appear that any of the accused have hitherto escaped apprehension, be preserved.

Second.—That all records of trials decided since that period, with the exception of those in which the period of sentence has expired, be also preserved.

Third.—That the remainder of the criminal records be burnt.

2. The above rule is not intended to prevent the distributing officer from preserving any record, either of trial or other proceedings, which for some special reason he may think it unadvisable to destroy.

3. The records which are not destroyed will be transmitted to the commissioner of the division to which they belong.

NOTE.—See No. 88, Vol. II.

TO THE COMMISSIONERS OF CIRCUT, LOWER AND WESTERN PROVINCES.

No. 151.

Lower and Western Provinces, 25th September, 1834.

Instructions for lightening the duties of magistrates, and for the conduct of those duties.

I AM directed by the Court to transmit for your perusal, a copy of a letter from the Secretary to Government, Judicial Department, under date the 1st instant, pointing out the means to be adopted by magistrates for lightening the duties of their office when they may have become too laborious to be otherwise performed.

2. You are requested to transmit copies of the same to the magistrates of your division, for their information and guidance. You will at the same time prohibit strictly a practice on the part of those officers, of which an instance has been brought to the Court's notice, of holding cutcherry at the same time in the judicial and revenue departments. The Court have no reason to believe this to be a general custom, but it is thought necessary to make the magistrate aware that no press of business will be considered a sufficient excuse for so irregular and objectionable a course of proceeding.

Copy of a Letter from the Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department to the Register of the Nizamut Adawlut Western Provinces, under date the 1st September, 1834.

I am directed by the Honorable the Vice-President in Council to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, dated the 8th ultimo, with its enclosures, and in reply, to communicate the following observations and orders.

2. The commissioner, under a mistaken view of the orders of Government on his police report for 1833, requiring that the magistrates should retain in their own hands the general control of the police, has required Mr. Pidcock to revise the proceedings of the joint-magistrate in all cases committed to the session judge, and all other cases of importance, whereas it would have been quite sufficient if he had left all the business of the office at the sudder station to the joint-magistrate and deputy collector, with the aid of the assistants; reserving to himself the general control of the police, and a general knowledge of the manner in which the business was conducted by his subordinates, to enable him to interfere whenever he might, for any special cause, deem it necessary.

3. Such an arrangement would have afforded to Mr. Pidcock ample time for making settlements during the season for field operations, and to exercise an efficient control over the conduct of his subordinate officers, as well as the police, for both of which objects the information which he might obtain in the interior of the district would afford peculiar advantages; and it is very important that the native establishments, as well as the people, should see that such control is retained in the hands of the magistrate and collector; and that he is equally anxious and concerned in the proper and efficient administration of every part of the duties of his office. This can be effected without difficulty, if the head of the office will limit himself to matters of real importance, and will leave the details, subject to a vigilant and systematic control on his own part, in the hands of his subordinate officers. But if the magistrates and collectors will persist in doing business, which can be efficiently performed by their subordinates, they cannot have time to attend to more important business ; thus they become overwhelmed with details, and they attribute their difficulties to the system, whereas the fault is in themselves, for not working the system judiciously.

4. The Court are requested to communicate these orders to Mr. Pidcock, through the commissioner, and to issue such circular orders as they consider best calculated to give effect to the objects stated in this letter, that the system may be properly worked, and such defects as may be then found to attach to the system, corrected.

5. The Court will of course prohibit in all districts the objectionable practice brought to notice in the correspondence.

TO THE COMMISSIONERS OF CIRCUIT AND SESSION JUDGES, LOWER AND WESTERN PROVINCES.

Lower and Western Provinces, 11th April, 1834. No. 156.

Commissioners and session judges to communicate to the magistrates their remarks on their statements of acquitted prisoners, when they consider the commitment to have been made on inadequate grounds.

WITH a view of checking the practice by magistrates of committing persons for trial on inadequate grounds, the Court, by their Circular Order of the 8th May, 1829, (No. 24 of this volume,) required the commissioners to specify in their remarks on the statements of acquitted prisoners, whether they deemed the commitments to be made on sufficient grounds ; and being of opinion that such remarks should be communicated to the magistrates by the commissioners and session judges, have been pleased to issue the following rule for their guidance.

2. Whenever the commissioners or session judges may have occasion to notice any thing in a commitment calling for the notice of the Court, they will be pleased to specify the same in their remarks on the statements of acquitted prisoners, and to mention the name of the officer to whom the remark may apply.

Lower and Western Provinces, 6*th February*, 1835.

Rules for defining the duties to be performed by assistants and other officers in charge of the office of civil and session judge.

The judge on delivering over charge will certify that he has called the attention of the relieving officer to these rules.

In pursuance of the orders of Government, I am directed by the Court to transmit to you, for record in your office, the accompanying copies of rules for defining the duties to be performed by assistants and other officers in charge of the office of civil and session judge.

2*. Whenever you deliver over charge of your office to an officer not authorised to act as judge, you will be pleased to call his particular attention to these rules, and certify that you have done so in the letter reporting the fact to the Court.

Rules for defining the Duties of Assistants and other Officers in charge of the Office of Civil and Session Judge.

First.—Whenever the charge of the current duties of civil and session judge of any zillah or city may, from death, indisposition or other casualty, devolve to the assistant attached to the court; or whenever the assistant to the commissioner, collector, or magistrate, or any other covenanted European officer may, by the orders of a competent authority, take charge of the current duties of the office of judge or session judge, (not being vested by Government with the full power of judge,) such assistant or other officer shall confine himself to the exercise of such part of the powers of judge as may be indispensably necessary for the immediate execution of processes or orders of the Sudder Dewanny and Nizamut Adawlut, for the issue of warrants under sentences of the Nizamut Adawlut, making returns to such warrants, and the transmission to the Court of the proceedings in criminal trials for the execution of the processes from other zillah or city courts, or for such other cases of emergency as will not admit of delay.

Second.—Such assistant or other officer is also authorised to receive any new civil suits of whatever description, which may be instituted according to the Regulations ; to refer to the subordinate courts such as may be cognizable by them, and to proceed upon suits which are exclusively cognizable by the judge, so far as to issue notice to, or summon the defendant, and receive his answer, as well as any written documents or lists of witnesses which may be offered by the parties or their vakeels, in pursuance of orders passed previously by the judge ; but no further, unless in any instance there shall appear to be urgent reason to take the evidence of any witness or witnesses in such suits, in which case he may take or cause to be taken the depositions of such witnesses under the general rules prescribed for the conduct of the zillah and city judges.

Third.—He is likewise empowered to receive any sums which parties may be desirous of depositing in cases of mortgage, or as vakeels' fees ; and pay to vakeels or other parties sums, for the payment of which the judge may have already given orders. He shall also be empowered to conduct, in conformity to the Regulations, any summary inquiries which may appear to require immediate attention and process ; to make the summary investigations respecting the indigence of persons desirous of suing in formâ pauperis, and the validity of security tendered by parties under the orders of the judge or other competent authority ; to carry into effect orders passed previously by the judge for the sale of property attached to execution of decrees or other judical process, or to stay the sale of such property pending the investigation of objections or claims preferred ; but it shall not be competent to the assistant or other officer to hold such investigation, or to issue orders for the sale of such property, excepting when it may be of a perishable nature.

Fourth.—The assistant or other officer in charge will cause to be prepared and forwarded any statement or reports which the civil or session judge may, under the rules in force, be required to submit to the Sudder Dewanny or Nizamut Adawlut, or to Government, as the case may be.

Rules regarding precepts, certificates and returns.

I AM directed by the Court to forward to you, for your information and guidance, the accompanying copy of rules regarding precepts and returns, with the forms of such as are applicable to your court.

Rules regarding Precepts and Returns.

First.—All precepts shall be drawn out according to the annexed forms (Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 6 and 7).

Second.—All orders directing the issue of precepts shall state whether a return is required, and within what period.

Third.—The period shall be calculated from the date of the despatch of the precept from this office.

Fourth.—Precepts and returns shall bear the dates of despatch, not the date of proceedings which accompany them, as heretofore; and the subordinate courts will be expected to despatch their returns within the period allowed.

Fifth.—When a judge of a court has signed a chittah, directing the issue of a precept, it shall be the duty of his peshkar to prepare a copy of the roobukaree, duly attested by his signature, together with such other papers as should accompany the same, and to send them by a mohurrir to the English clerk in the precept department, within seven days from the date on which the chittah was signed by the judge. The roobukaree shall bear a list of the accomanying papers at the foot of it; and the peshkar shall be responsible that they are correct and complete.

Sixth.—The English clerk will note on each proceeding the date of receipt, and, after preparing the precepts, will submit them for the register's signature; he will then enter them in the proper books, and will despatch them on the same day if possible; if not despatched till the next day, or later, the day of the precepts shall be altered to correspond with that of despatch.

Seventh.—If the officer to whom the precept may be addressed find it impracticable to send a complete return within the prescribed period, he will transmit a proceeding, with a certificate according to the annexed forms, (Nos. 5 and 8,) stating the reason, and the additional period which he may require to carry the Court's orders into effect*.

* The Commissioner and judges were required by Circular Order, 17th July, 1835, to insert on the face of certificates, in addition to the number of the suit and the names of the parties, the number of the precept register of the Sudder Court.

Eighth.—Such returns and certificates, when received in this office, shall, after having been endorsed and entered in the proper books, be sent by the precept—clerk to the peshkar of the judge by whom the precept was issued, who will note on each the date of receipt, and bring it forward in the usual course.

Ninth.—If the period allowed in a precept, together with the number of days occupied by the letter dâk, expire before a return or explanatory proceeding and certificate be received, the register shall send a letter calling for explanation within a specified term; should this term also expire without receiving a reply, the circumstance shall be brought to the notice of the judge who issued the order, for such further measures as he may deem advisable.

Tenth.—The officer by whom a return or certificate may be sent will cause a list of the papers which accompany it to be written at the foot of the roobukaree.

Eleventh.—If the papers, &c. which should accompany a precept or return are too heavy for the letter dâk, they shall be sent by dâk banghy, with a note stating the case and precept or return to which they belong; the precept or return itself with the proceedings of the Court being sent as usual by the letter dâk.

Twelfth.—The precept—clerk will, at the close of each week, subto the register a list of unanswered precepts and letters, to which returns are due.

I am directed by the Court to transmit, for your information and guidance, the annexed copy of a letter from the Secretary to Government, Judicial Department, under date 7th instant, with copy of its enclosure.

2. You will be careful in general not to exceed the power vested in you by the Regulations and Circular Orders in force as regards the offer of rewards for apprehension. In extreme cases, which will not admit of the delay attending a reference to a higher authority, should such a measure be found absolutely necessary, it should be immediately reported for the sanction of the officer duly authorised to make the offer which may have been tendered.

I am directed by the Honorable the Governor to transmit to you the annexed extract (paragraph 14) from a despatch from the Honorable the Court of Directors, dated the 3rd December, 1834, and to request that the Court will issue such orders as will put a stop to the practice noticed by the Honorable Court.

Extract from a Despatch from the Honorable the Court of Directors, dated the 3rd December, 1834, in the Judicial Department.

Para. 14. We are glad to be informed of the apprehension of two sirdar dacoits for which rewards of 500 and 200 rupees respectively had been offered. We trust, however, that a stop has been put to the practice of disbursements (especially on so great a scale) being made by subordinate officers, not only without the previous sanction of Government, but without even any intimation that such an authority had been assumed.

The No. of the precept register to be invariably entered when full returns cannot be made within the prescribed period, to certificates submitted to the Courts of Sudder Dewanny and Nizamut Adawlut.

WITH a view to obviate the delay which occurs in registering certificates containing partial returns to the Court's precepts, in consequence of their not bearing the Nos. of the precept register, which are always to be found in the precepts themselves, I am directed to request that you will in future, in addition to the No. of the cause in which the precept is issued and the names of the parties, invariably insert the No. of the precept register, agreeably to the accompanying form,* whenever you may have occasion to transmit such certificate in reply to precepts issued since the 1st of April last.

Session judges declared competent to direct a magistrate to commit for trial any person or persons, (connected with a trial pending before them,) whom the magistrate has not thought fit, or objects, to bring to trial.

I AM directed by the Court to forward to you, for your information and guidance, the accompanying copy of a letter written by order of the Court of Nizamut Adawlut at Calcutta, on the 19th ultimo, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal, and of the reply, dated the 7th instant, declaring session judges competent to order a magistrate to commit any person or persons, (connected with a trial pending before them,) whom the magistrate has not thought fit, or objects, to bring to trial.

* The manner in which the No. of the precept register is to be entered in certificates is shewn in the forms of certificates, Nos. 5 and 8 of Circular Order of 6th February, 1836, No. 160 of this volume.

Copy of a Letter from the Register of the Presidency Nizamut Adawlut to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal, dated 19th June, 1835.

I am directed to state, for the information of the Honorable the Governor of Bengal, that doubts have been entertained, whether, with reference to Section V., Regulation VII. 1831, a session judge is competent to order a magistrate to commit a person, (in a trial pending before him,) whom the magistrate has not thought fit, or objects, to bring to trial. The Court are decidedly of opinion, that this power ought to be vested in the session judges, and accordingly beg to suggest that their competency to exercise it be specially declared in the manner prescribed by Act VII. 1835.

Copy of a Letter from the Secretary to the Government of Bengal to the Register of the Presidency Nizamut Adawlut, under date the 7th July, 1835.

In reply to your letter of the 19th ultimo, I am directed by the Honorable the Governor of Bengal to request that you will inform the Court, that in compliance with their recommendation, in the propriety of which he entirely concurs, he is hereby pleased, under Act No. VII. 1835, to declare all session judges, or other officers exercising the powers of session judges, competent to order a magistrate to commit any person or persons, (connected with a trial pending before them,) whom the magistrate has not thought fit, or objects, to bring to trial.

Lower and Western Provinces, 25th September, 1835.

No. 179.

Judicial officers delivering over charge of their offices are required to furnish the relieving officer with lists of unanswered letters and of periodical statements overdue.

IT having occasionally been pleaded by civil functionaries, who have recently joined their offices, in answer to calls by the Court for replies to letters, and for periodical statements overdue, that, not having had time to look into their records, they were not aware that the replies or statements had not been sent; the Court have been pleased to resolve, that all judges, commissioners, magistrates, and joint-magistrates, on delivering over charge of their offices, shall furnish the officer who relieves them with a list of all unanswered letters, and of all periodical reports and statements, which, having become due, have not been forwarded to the Court.

2. Periodical reports and statements will be considered as due immediately on the expiration of the month, quarter, half year, or year, to which they relate.

When periodical statements are to be considered due.

TO THE COMMISSIONERS OF CIRCUIT AND SESSION JUDGES, WESTERN PROVINCES.

Western Provinces, 2nd October, 1835. No. 181.

I AM directed by the Court to transmit for your information and guidance the annexed extract, paragraph 2, of a letter from the Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department, under date the 15th ultimo, and to request, that as far as circumstances may admit, you will conform to the rule contained therein, by availing yourself, in the trial of such cases, of the assistance of a jury under the provisions of Regulation VI. of 1832.

Trials in which religious prejudices are concerned should be tried in all possible cases by jury, and not by Mahomedan law.

Extract from a Letter from the Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department to the Officiating Register of the Nizamut Adawlut, Agra Presidency, dated the 18th September, 1835.

PARA. 2. The Governor is of opinion that trials, in which the religious prejudices of Mahomedans or any other class are concerned, ought in all possible cases to be conducted without the Mahomedan law officer. A futwa on any point of Mahomedan law may, if necessary, be required, without the attendance of the law officer on the trial.

TO THE MAGISTRATES AND JOINT MAGISTRATES, WESTERN PROVINCES.

Western Provinces, 16th October, 1835. No. 182.

SEVERAL of the magistrates having reported that considerable inconvenience is experienced in their offices from the great accumulation of old and useless records, which are too voluminous to be contained in their record rooms, and only impede a reference to that portion which is of real utility, the Court have determined, that where such inconvenience is actually felt, a portion of the records shall be burnt at the discretion of the magistrate, subject to the following rules.

Authorising the destruction of certain criminal records in the magistrates' courts in the Western Provinces.

2. The magistrates of the zillahs enumerated below* having stated that there is no want of room in their record offices, they will not of course act upon this order, which is not intended to require that any portion of the records should be destroyed, but merely to point out what portion may be so disposed of where such a measure is absolutely necessary.

RULES.

1. All records of investigation on trial, in cases in which any of the accused may appear to have escaped apprehension, to be preserved.

2. All records of cases decided under the provisions of Regulation XV. of 1824, and generally of cases of disputed possession of immoveable property, which may be required, at some future period, by the courts of civil judicature as evidence, or for other purpose in the investigation of claims to the proprietary right in such property, to be carefully preserved.

3. Of the papers prior to and from 1820 to 1830 inclusive, all records of cases of petty theft, assault, slight affray, trespass, abusive language, and such like, and all miscellaneous reports received from the thannahs, or from the ministerial officers, be destroyed.

4. In the remaining criminal trials up to the same period, the following papers be destroyed, viz.

First.—The whole of the depositions taken before the thannadar or other police officers, with exception to the prisoner's reply.

Second.—All moochulkas taken at the thannah from prosecutors and witnesses, binding themselves to attend at the magistrate's court to give evidence in the cases in which they were executed, as well as those of a similar nature taken by the magistrate in cases committed to the sessions, or from parties obliging themselves to remain in attendance at his cutcherry until their cases have been disposed of.

Third.—All purwannahs addressed to the thannahdars during the progress of a criminal trial, summoning witnesses, and the replies thereto, as well as the daily reports which those officers are required by some magistrates to submit in each case, until the apprehension of the persons supposed to have been concerned, and the despatch of the kyfeeut-i-moofussil, in which the substance of such reports is usually given. The following papers, which will then form the record of a criminal trial, will be preserved, viz.—The list which is annexed to each thannah report, shewing what papers accompany it; the detailed thannah report, or kyfeeut-i-moofussil; the sooruthal; the nugsha-i-waridat; the prisoner's reply; the chullans of prisoners' property and witnesses, and the magistrates' proceedings divested of the papers enumerated above.

5. By the general and careful adoption of this last rule to the fullest extent of which it will admit, the records of every magistrate's office will at once be diminished in a material degree, and the removal from each misl, or bundle of proceedings, of all superfluous and useless papers according to the foregoing instructions, while it will not in any way impair its value as evidence on any future occasion to prove either previous convictions, or bad character, or for any other purpose, will, at the same time, reduce it to a convenient size and shape, admitting of ready reference to those parts of it which contain really useful information.

6. Care should be taken that all documents or deeds of any value, which may have been put up with the records of cases liable to be burnt under the foregoing rules, be first removed, and that no papers having the seal or signature of public officers are carried away by private individuals.

TO THE MAGISTRATES AND JOINT MAGISTRATES, LOWER AND WESTERN PROVINCES.

Lower and Western Provinces, 20th November, 1835. No. 183.

Prescribing forms for applications to the Nizamut Adawlut, for orders for the removal of convicts sentenced to banishment or transportation.

WITH a view to facilitate the verification of the statements of convicts sentenced to banishment and transportation, and to expedite the removal of convicts to their place of banishment, the following rules have been passed for the guidance of the magistrates, in modification of those contained in the Circular Order of the 18th July, 1828, (No. 6 of this volume,) and you are requested strictly to observe them.

2.* I am, at the same time, directed to request that no prisoner under sentence of transportation beyond sea, or perpetual or temporary imprisonment in banishment, though the place in which he is to undergo his imprisonment be mentioned in the sentence, be removed from the jail of your district until the receipt of the Court's orders on the application for his removal, which you are required to submit in the form herein prescribed.

3. The magistrates will submit separate statements of convicts sentenced by the session judges or commissioners, and by the Nizamut Adawlut, according to the following forms, A, B, and C.

4. Statement A will be prepared and submitted to this Court after the expiration of 30, but within the period of 45, days, from the end of the month in which the sentences were passed. The magistrate will be careful not to include in the same statement convicts sentenced at the jail deliveries of different months.

5. In the event of the issue of a warrant including a sentence of banishment being suspended in any case, under the rule contained in the 6th clause of Section IV., Regulation IX. 1831, the magistrate will submit a statement in form B, within 15 days after the receipt of the warrant.

6. Statement C will be prepared and submitted within 15 days from the receipt by the magistrate of the warrant of the session judge or commissioner, for carrying into effect the sentence of the Nizamut Adawlut.

7. Whenever a magistrate may have occasion, in consequence of the crowded state of his jail, to apply for permission to remove convicts not sentenced to banishment to another district, he will be pleased to submit statements in form as similar to these as possible, keeping the prisoners sentenced by the session judges or commissioner, separate from those sentenced by the Nizamut Adawlut.

TO THE CIVIL AND CRIMINAL AUTHORITIES, LOWER AND WESTERN PROVINCES.

Lower and Western Provinces, 27th November, 1835.

No. 184.

Requiring the judicial authorities to number all letters dispatched from their offices.

Calling attention to the Circular Order of the 27th Feb. 1812, regarding the manner in which miscellaneous references are to be made.

As the practice of numbering letters, which obtains in the offices of the Secretaries to Government, in this office, and in some of the offices in the interior, is not universally adopted, and as it has been found, where it obtains, useful in facilitating references to letters, without the necessity of recapitulating the subject of them, I am directed by the Court to request that you will, from the commencement of the ensuing year, number all that may be dispatched from your office, in one continued series, from the commencement to the close of the year.

2. I am further directed to call your attention to the rule contained in the first paragraph of the Circular Order of the 27th February, 1812, (No. 32 Vol. I, of the Circulars of the Sudder Dewainy Adawlut) addressed to the provincial courts of appeal and circuit. From a neglect of this rule, the Court have of late had frequent occasion to return miscellaneous references. All papers in the native languages, (not being proceedings in pending cases, or in reply to processes of the Court, which are required by the Circular Orders of 20th April and 25th June 1801, Nos. 9 and 10 Vol. I., to be submitted with certificates,) should each be accompanied by an English letter, specifying briefly the contents, [which should be corroborated and borne out by the papers accompanying it,] and the particular point or points in which the orders or opinion of the Court are required.

3. This applies particularly to applications from civil judges for permission to review their judgments. Such applications should not be made unless the judge has fully satisfied himself that a review is necessary for the ends of justice, and the grounds on which he has come to that conclusion should be distinctly stated in the letter. If, for instance, the plea be the discovery of new matter or evidence which was not within the knowledge of the party, or could not be adduced by him at the time when judgment was passed, the manner in which the new matter was discovered, and the cause of the inability of the party to produce the evidence in proper time, with the proof of the fact, should be clearly detailed, as well as the effect which the new matter or evidence would have in impeaching the propriety of the judgment. It is not intended by the foregoing remark to define all the grounds on which a review may be admitted, but to show the nature of the information required by the Court, to enable them to judge of the necessity or otherwise of a compliance with the recommendation.

The provisions of Section V., Regulation VII. 1819, not applicable to the enforcement of contracts for furnishing hackeries and bullocks under engagements to indigo planters.

DOUBTS appearing to be entertained as to whether the provisions of Section V, Regulation VII. 1819, are applicable to the enforcement of contracts for furnishing hackeries and bullocks under engagements to indigo planters, I am directed to inform you that it has been ruled by the Courts of Nizamut Adawlut, that the provisions of the Regulation quoted are not applicable to such contracts*.

Explanations to be furnished by the civil surgeons and magistrates, whenever the deaths among the prisoners exceed one per cent. per mensem.

I AM directed by the Court to forward for your information and guidance, the accompanying copy of a letter addressed on the 20th ultimo to the Secretary to the Medical Board, and of that officer's reply dated the 27th ultimo, on the subject of the explanations to be furnished in future of the mortality among the prisoners confined in the jails.

2. The commissioners, and session judges to whose districts the provisions of Act VII. of 1835, have been extended, will require the magistrates and joint-magistrates in charge of jails and the civil surgeons to submit explanations when the number of deaths exceeds one per cent. per mensem. When prisoners may be employed on the roads of the district, who are, when sick, sent into the zillah jail-hospital, they should be included in the monthly statement No. 5, and in the half-yearly report No. 24, with a note showing how many are brought back at night to the zillah jail, and how many are cantoned in the district, and under whose authority the latter are worked.

Copy of a Letter from the Register of the Presidency Nizamut Adawlut to the Secretary to the Medical Board, under date the 20th November, 1835.

I am directed by the Court to forward to you the accompanying copy of a circular letter, addressed by their order on the 13th September, 1822, to the courts of circuit, directing them to call on the magistrates to explain the causes of mortality when the number of deaths in the jail of any district exceed 5 in one month.

2. Instead of this fixed number, which has no reference to the number of prisoners confined in the jail, the Court think it would be more satisfactory to fix a certain rate per cent. as the limit beyond which it should be imperative on the magistrate and civil surgeon to furnish an explanation respecting the causes of the increased mortality. They therefore direct me to request that the Board will favor them with their opinion as to what, in an ordinary year, might be considered, through the different seasons, a fair proportion of deaths among 100 prisoners of all descriptions confined in the jails of the Bengal Presidency.

Copy of a Letter from the Secretary to the Medical Board to the Register of the Presidency Nizamut Adawlut under date the 27th November, 1835.

I am directed by the Medical Board to acknowledge the receipt of your letter dated the 20th instant, with its annexed document, relative to the mortality in jail hospitals.

2. In reply, the Board beg you will acquaint the Court of Sudder Nizamut, that in their opinion the Medical officers in charge of jails might be called on for an explanation, or special report, whenever the mortality during any one month may exceed one per cent.

3. Six per cent. per annum, the Board are inclined to think, would be a high rate of mortality in jails generally, but as explanation would not of course be required except in cases in which the mortality exceeded the ordinary rate, the Board are inclined to think that the rate of one per cent. per mensem may be judiciously adopted.

When trials are referred to or called for by the Nizamut Adawlut, copies of the proceedings of the session judge or commissioner and the original proceedings of the magistrate must be submitted.

SEVERAL applications having lately been made to the Court for the return of proceedings in criminal trials, referred to or called for by them, I am directed to request your attention to Section II, Regulation X. 1799, re-enacted for the Ceded Provinces by Section XLI. Regulation VII. 1803, and to desire that whenever you may hereafter have occasion to refer a trial for the orders of the Nizamut Adawlut, as well as in cases called for by the Court, you will submit copies only of your own proceedings, returning the original for record in your office.

2. The magistrate's proceedings, which are always returned with a copy of the Court's sentence in the case, will continue to be submitted in original as heretofore; due regard being had to the rules contained in the Circular Orders of the 16th July, 1830, paragraph 6, and 3rd June, 1831, (Nos. 54 and 84 of this Volume.)

cases in which a demand ought to be made for the surrender of refugees, and regarding the cognizance of civil claims against independent chiefs.

I am directed by the Honorable the Governor to transmit to you, for the information and guidance of the Court, and of the officers subordinate to their authority, the annexed extract (paragraphs 32 to 36) from a letter from the Honorable the Court of Directors, No. 19, dated 27th May, 1835, defining the cases in which a demand ought to be made for the surrender of refugees, and regarding the cognizance of civil claims against independent chiefs.

Extract from a Letter from the Honorable the Court of Directors, No. 19, dated the 27th May, 1835.

PARA. 32. You appear to us to have taken, on the whole, a sound view of these questions on the subject of the mutual surrender of fugitives. "The rule," you say, "which it is the wish of the Supreme Government to establish, is, to confine our requisitions for the surrender of refugees, and our compliance with those of our neighbours, to the case of heinous offenders, such as murderers, highway robbers, &c., leaving the privilege of asylum inviolate as regards debtors, defaulters, and civil and petty offenders of every kind; and the same rule ought of course to be observed, where we have occasion to interfere to regulate the intercourse of different native states between each other." Your local agents, guided by the spirit of these instructions, will be entrusted with a certain discretion as to the particular cases, or classes of cases, in which requisitions for the surrender of criminals shall be made or complied with. The feelings of the particular native government, the character of its institutions, and the general equity or oppressiveness of its rule, may often require to be adverted to in the determination of such questions. But the practice, whatever it be, should, unless there be very strong reasons to the contrary, be strictly reciprocal.

33. Your instructions to Mr. Hodgson, occasioned by the case of the stamp darogah, supposed to have fled into Nepaul, were consistent with the above observations, and have our approbation.

34. We have, on former occasions, intimated to you our opinion, that, except under peculiar circumstances, it is no less unadvisable to claim from other states our own revenue defaulters than to surrender theirs. We consider the abandonment of their native villages by the established cultivators as a sure indication of over-assessment or of oppression, demanding the early interference of the local European authorities.

35. The non-surrender of revenue defaulters is, in point of fact, a check against the continuance of any long period of such over-assessment and oppression.

36. With regard to the interference, whether of our tribunals, or of our political officers, in civil cases against subjects of independent chiefs, you have adopted the sound principle, that the complainant must be left to seek justice from the legitimate superior of the party against whom his claims preferred, unless that party be resident or possess property within our territories. It was no less proper to interdict our officers fom taking cognizance of civil claims preferred against independent chiefs, whether by their own subjects or by others, or of cases of any description between independent chiefs and persons residing or possessing property in their dominions. Interference may sometimes be unavoidable, in consequence of general mal-administration ; but it seldom can be justified in individual cases, unless where the sufferer is entitled to our protection by some positive engagement.

TO THE CRIMINAL AUTHORITIES, LOWER AND WESTERN PROVINCES.

Lower and Western Provinces, 25th November, 1836. No. 214.

Regarding the provision of carriage for troops on the line of march and when otherwise required for the public service.

I AM directed to transmit to you, for your information and guidance, the accompanying copy of a letter addressed by order of the Court of Nizamut Adawlut for the Agra Presidency under this date to the officiating commissioner of circuit of the 2nd or Agra division, respecting the provision of carriage for troops on the line of march, and when otherwise required for the public service.

Copy of a Letter from the Register of the Nizamut Adawlut, North-Western Provinces, to the Officiating Commissioner of Circuit for the 2nd, or Agra Division, dated 25th November, 1836.

The Court have again had before them your letter under date the 6th September last and its enclosures, respecting the provision of carriage for troops on the line of march, and when otherwise required for the public service.

2. The following would appear to be the points on which you are desirous of obtaining the opinion of the Court.

First.—Whether the latter part of Clause III, Section I, Regulation XI. 1806, is to be considered as superseded by Regulation VI. 1825?

Second.—What description of carriage may be seized for the use of troops on the line of march?

Third.—Whether in cases of emergency the officers of government may seize carriage for the transport of rum or other supplies required for military purposes, or impress men for the department of public works?

3. In reply to your first question, I am directed to communicate to you the opinion of the Court that the latter part of Clause 1, Section III. Regulation XI. 1806, has not been superseded by Regulation VI. 1825, which, as observed by you, merely confers additional powers on the revenue authorities, leaving the provisions of the former enactment, in regard to the assistance which the police officers are required to render, when applied to in such cases, exactly as they were.

4. With respect to your second question, I am directed to state that as the authority vested in the public officers of government by Clause 1, Section III. Regulation XI. 1806, for providing carriage for the use of troops on the line of march, is of a general nature, while the restrictions contained in Section VIII. of that Regulation apply only to officers not commanding nor proceeding with a corps or detachment of troops, or any other person travelling within any part of the Company's territories, either on the public service or his private affairs, the Court are of opinion that, under the provisions of the clause of the section first quoted, every description of carriage of the nature therein referred to, whether kept for private use or for hire, is liable to be seized for the purpose above-mentioned, with exception to begarees, coolies, &c., the compulsory exaction of whose services is expressly prohibited by Regulation III. 1820. I am directed however to add, that carriage kept expressly for hire should invariably be taken in the first instance, while that retained for private use should only be pressed in cases of emergency.

5. On your third question, I am desired to communicate to you the opinion of the Court in the negative on both points involved therein, provided of course, as regards the former, that the supplies alluded to are not proceeding with a body of troops, and required for their use on the line of march.

6. A copy of this letter has been circulated under this date for the information and guidance of the commissioners of circuit, magistrates, and joint magistrates.

Regarding the annual revision of the securities of native offi-

I AM directed by the Court to forward to you, for your information and guidance, the accompanying extract, paragraphs 4 and 5, of their resolution of this date on the revision of the security of treasurers and other officers entrusted with public money for 1835.

Extract from the Resolutions of the Courts of Sudder Dewanny and Nizamut Adawlut, under date the 16th December, 1836.

PARA. 4. The officers who are required to report on the securities of their subordinates have omitted generally to submit their report with punctuality, and very few have given any distinct opinion as to their validity or otherwise. The Court desire that they be called upon to submit the report of the revision of the securities required to be made by the Circular Order of 23rd September, 1831, (No. 34 of volume II. C. O. Sudder Dewanny Adawlut,) for 1836, on or before the 1st February, 1837; and that they insert at the foot of the form prescribed by that circular, (which for the convenience of record, should be uniformly engrossed on a sheet of foolscap paper,) the following certificate; cers entrusted with public money.

"Certified that I have revised the securities of the officers abovementioned, and that I consider them good and sufficient.

(Signed) A. B.

"Judge, (or magistrate, as the case may be.")

5. The attention of the judicial officers will be called to the Circular Order of the 3rd July, 1835, (No. 171 of this volume,) and they will be informed, that should they neglect to furnish this indispensable information, and any embezzlement take place, their conduct must be reported to Government.

ORDERED:

That paragraphs 4 and 5 of this Resolution be forwarded to the judges, magistrates, and independent joint-magistrates for their information and guidance.

TO THE COMMISSIONERS OF CIRCUIT, MAGISTRATES AND JOINT MAGISTRATES, LOWER AND WESTERN PROVINCES.

Lower and Western Provinces, 6th January, 1837. No. 218.

THE Court having observed that the applications submitted to them for the release of prisoners who may have lost their sight since the date of their confinement, or who, from other causes, may be considered proper objects of mercy, are frequently defective in not containing the information necessary to enable them to judge of the propriety or otherwise of complying with the recommendation, have been pleased to prescribe the accompanying form, which they request that you will carefully observe in all future applications of this nature. Prescribing the form in which applications are to be made for the release of blind or infirm prisoners, who are considered fit objects of mercy.

2. With reference to the importance necessarily attached by the Court, in cases of the foregoing description, to the certificate of the civil surgeon, they have deemed it proper to require that the opinion of that officer should be given in the form of a declaration, and inserted by the medical officers in column 10 of the prescribed statement. The magistrate will fill up column 11 with his opinion and such observations as the case may appear to him to call for, particularly as regards the general conduct and character of the prisoner recommended for release; and forward the statement to the commissioner of the division, who, provided that he agree with the magistrate and civil surgeon, will enter his opinion and remarks in column 12, and submit the original statement for the consideration and orders of the Court, retaining a copy of it for record in his own office.

3. The magistrate will also accompany the application with a copy of the warrant under which the prisoner is confined.

Cir. Or, 12th Dec. 1809, No. 58, Vol. I.

2. The Court direct that every witness or prisoner examined by a session judge be examined exclusively and entirely in the presence of that officer, and that the same rule be considered applicable to the principal sudder ameens, sudder ameens, and other native judicial officers entrusted with criminal jurisdiction.

3. I am directed by the Court to state that very serious notice will be taken of any wilful inattention to this rule which may be brought to their notice, and you are particularly enjoined to enforce the due observance of this order on the part of your subordinate officers.

4. The Court are aware that a pressure of public business may occasionally oblige the civil judges, the magistrates, joint-magistrates and their assistants to empower their native officers to record the depositions of parties in cases coming before them; but they direct that such proceedings be confined entirely to matters of minor importance, and that in all instances the depositions be taken in the presence of the European officer presiding.

5. The Circular Order of the 28th December, 1796, does not appear on all occasions to be regularly attended to. The Court therefore direct that the principal sudder ameens, and sudder ameens, and other native judicial officers entrusted with criminal jurisdiction, be directed, at the end of each deposition or examination, to certify in the Persian language, in the mode indicated in the note*, that the same has been taken in their presence.

6. The same rule will also be considered applicable to the magistrates and other European officers, but in cases of a heinous nature, and in all cases wherein a commitment may be made to the sessions court, the Court desire that the deposition or examination may be certified in the English language and in the mode noted below†.

7. I am further directed to inform you that under the express orders of Government you will consider yourself strictly prohibited in future from taking down the examination of parties or witnesses in any other language than that in which it is delivered. Persian translations will, as heretofore, be annexed to the original proceedings in the event of the trial being referred to, or called for, by this Court. The above prohibition will of course be considered to extend to all the courts and tribunals over which you may exercise your jurisdiction.

When a prisoner is sentenced to imprisonment for five years and upwards, labour cannot be commuted to a fine.

THE Court having had before them a case in which a session judge passed a sentence of seven years' imprisonment with labour commutable to a fine, under the provisions of Section 3, Regulation II. of 1834, have directed me to inform you that a sentence of this nature is not warranted by the Regulation in question. Whenever you may consider the offence of which a prisoner is convicted to demand a sentence of imprisonment for five years and upwards, you are not authorised to commute the labour to a fine.

Circulating an extract from a letter of the Court of Directors regarding the distribution of business by the heads of offices to their subordinates.

I AM directed by the Court to transmit, for your information and guidance, the accompanying copies of a letter from the officiating secretary to the Honorable the Lieutenant Governor addressed to the officiating register of Nizamut Adawlut of Western Provinces under date the 1st ultimo, and of its annexed extract of a despatch from the Honorable the Court of Directors, and to request that you will communicate the same to the magistrates and joint-magistrates of your division (or district) and enjoin their strict attention to the orders therein contained.

Copy of a Letter from the Officiating Secretary to the Lieutenant Governor to the Officiating Register Nizamut Adawlut N. W. Provinces, dated 1st April, 1837.

With reference to paragraph 33, of Mr. Secretary Macsween's letter dated the 14th January, 1835, I am directed to transmit, for the information and guidance of the Court of Nizamut Adawlut, the annexed extract, paragraph 7, from a dispatch of the Honorable the Court of Directors, No. 7, dated the 21st September last. The Court are required to enforce to the utmost a compliance with these instructions.

Extract, paragraph 7, from a dispatch of the Honorable the Court of Directors, No. 7 of 1836, dated 21*st September*, 1836.

6. We shall be happy to learn that the following instructions have been duly acted upon. "In conclusion I am directed to request the particular attention of the Court (of Nizamut Adawlut) to the important object of inducing the magistrates to make a judicious distribution of their work, among the subordinate officers European and native. The value of the magistrate's service must be more dependent on the skill and judgment with which he directs and controls the acts of all subordinate officers than upon the work he can himself perform. The time of any officer exercising civil or criminal jurisdiction ought not to be employed in details, which can be well performed by the ministerial officers. No business that can be well performed by the uncovenanted officers invested with criminal jurisdiction ought to occupy the time of the covenanted servants, except for the purpose of directing, aiding and controlling their proceedings. No business ought to be performed by the head of the office which can be well done by his subordinate officers, covenanted or uncovenanted, if his attending to such duties will interfere with his more important duties of directing and controling every branch of his office, and of aiding, instructing and encouraging each in the proper performance of the particular duties assigned to him.

The Court are requested to issue the necessary orders accordingly.

TO THE SESSION JUDGES IN THE LOWER PROVINCES.

Lower Provinces, 19th May, 1837. No. 233.

Defining the duties of session judges vested with the powers of commissioners under Act VII. 1835.

I AM directed by the Court to forward to you the accompanying extract from their proceedings of this day's date, regarding the duties of a session judge under Act VII. of 1835.

Extract from the Proceedings of the Presidency Nizamut Adawlut under date the 19th May, 1837.

The Court having had under consideration letters from several session judges, soliciting instructions regarding the nature and extent of the powers transferred to the session judges by Act VII. 1835, record the following observations.

2. The duties of a session judge in a district to which Act VII. 1835 has been extended, consist at present in trying all commitments made by the magistrate; in hearing and disposing of all appeals preferred from orders passed by the magistrate in criminal trials, including the whole progress of a case from the commencement to the date of final sentence; and in exercising a general superintendence and control over the proceedings of the magistrate in the administration of criminal justice.

3. The duty of visiting the jail every month, and of issuing to the magistrate such orders as may appear necessary for the better treatment and accommodation of the prisoners is also to be performed by the session judge. Section 63, Regulation IX. 1793, is also extended to the session judges.

4. The session judges are moreover carefully to revise the monthly statements submitted by the magistrate, previous to forwarding them to this Court, agreeably to the Circular Orders of the 12th December, 1834, and 15th January, 1836, (Nos. 155 and 190 of this volume.) The duties detailed in paragraphs 5, 6 and 7 of Mr. Secretary Macsween's letter of the 10th November, 1834, circulated on the 12th December, 1834, are now to be performed by the session judges.

5. The duties of a commissioner in a district to which Act. VII. 1835 has been extended, are now confined to the superintendence of the police, (vide Section 7, Regulation I. 1829 ;) to the hearing of appeals from the orders passed by the magistrate under Regulation XV. 1824, (vide Sections 3 and 4, Regulation II. 1829 ;) to control the appointment and removal of police officers, and ministerial officers, (vide Section 8, Regulation XI. 1831, and Circular Order 14th August, 1835, No. 177 of this volume.) The commissioner has also a general control over all cases of a miscellaneous nature other than criminal trials, (vide Section 3, Regulation IX. 1831 ;) he must also hold special sessions when necessary under Clause 2, Section 13, Regulation VII. 1831 ; and he should also make the periodical visits to the sudder stations of his division as prescribed by Section 7 of the last mentioned regulation.

6. No other points of importance at present occur to the Court as requiring notice. Should any further instructions however be required, the Court request that the commissioners and session judges will apply for the same ; acting in the mean time in such a manner, as may in their judgment appear to be best calculated to benefit the public service.

ORDERED :

That a copy of this resolution be communicated to the several session judges in the Lower Provinces, with a request that they will furnish the magistrates and joint-magistrates with a copy of the same. A copy will also be sent to the commissioner of the 19th division.

I AM directed by the Court to request that whenever you may require lithographic forms of any description, you will apply direct to the superintendent of the government press for them, and thereby prevent the delay and unnecessary correspondence consequent upon applications made through this Court. The Mahomedan law officers to be employed, when at leisure, in the investigation of such criminal cases as are not likely to be ultimately referred to the sessions court.

By the Court's Circular Order, No. 192,* of the 5th February, 1836, it was intimated that government had resolved to prohibit the future appointment of the same person to hold the office of Mahomeden law officer, and principal sudder ameen, sudder ameen, or moonsiff.

2. The government have since conveyed to the Court their wish, that the leisure which the Mahomedan law officers will enjoy, when not holding the office of civil judge, should be devoted to the investigation of unimportant criminal cases.

3. Such being the case, I am directed by the Court to acquaint you that you are at liberty to employ those officers in the manner indicated.

4. The Court, however, desire me to impress upon you, that an injudicious employment of the Mahomedan law officers in trying criminal cases may involve the anomaly of the same individual being required to sit as an assessor, in cases in which he has already conducted the primary inquiry, and has consequently prejudged the subject to be decided.

5. To admit of the services of those officers being rendered available in lightening your files, and at the same time to avoid the incongruity which might result from the want of a proper discrimination of the cases to be tried by them, the Court request that you will make over to those officers, such cases only, as may, on a cursory examination, appear to you not likely to be ultimately referred to the sessions court.

NOTE.—See No. 45 of this Vol.

Chowkeedars, &c. guilty of neglect of duty, not liable, under Regulation II. 1834, to 12 months' imprisonment in lieu of corporal punishment.

It having been brought to the notice of the Court that some of the magistrates in these provinces consider themselves competent, under the provisions of Clause 2, Section 2, Regulation II. of 1834, to sentence chowkeedars, and other officers of that class, found guilty of neglect of duty, to 12 months' imprisonment in lieu of corporal punishment, I am directed to inform you that it has been ruled by both Courts that as burkundauzes, chowkeedars, &c. were not formerly liable for the offences above-mentioned to stripes in addition to imprisonment, the provisions of Regulation II. of 1834, in prohibiting the infliction of corporal punishment, do not authorise any addition to the period of imprisonment, to which the officers in question were liable previous to the issue of that enactment; and* the Court request therefore that you will carefully abstain from passing such sentences.

Instructions relative to the competency of magistrates to interfere in cases which involve the right of parents and others to the guardianship of children.

I am directed by the Court to transmit, for your information and guidance, the accompanying copy of a letter from the Secretary to the Government of India, under date the 12th ultimo, addressed to the Officiating Secretary to the Lieutenant-Governor, N. W. Provinces, together with a copy of the letter from the magistrate of Agra therein referred to, relative to the competency of a magistrate to interfere with a view to uphold and enforce the right of a parent or other person to the care and guardianship of children.

Copy of a Letter from the Secretary to the Government of India to the officiating Secretary to the Lieutenant-Governor, N. W. Provinces, dated 12th June, 1837.

I am desired by the Right Honorable the Governor General in Council to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, No. 1933, dated the 25th ultimo, submitting correspondence relative to a difference of opinion between the Sudder Court at Allahabad and the Sudder

---

* This last Clause was not communicated to the commissioners and session judges.

Court at Calcutta, on a reference from the Agra magistrate, as to the competency of a magistrate to interfere and enforce the right of a parent or other person to the care and guardianship of children.

2. In reply I am directed to observe, that it must be exceedingly difficult to lay down any general rule applicable to all cases of this nature which may arise; but the Governor General in Council is not disposed to concur entirely in the opinion expressed by the Sudder Court for the N. W. Provinces, that a magistrate is not competent to exercise any interference in cases of the nature of those described by Mr. Mansel. That Officer asks in the first place: "Is any power vested in the magistrate under the Regulations to compel a wife who has abandoned the society of her husband, or who has been abandoned by her husband, to restore to the husband the children begotten during the course of the marriage?"

3. This question involves two distinct cases, and it does not appear to His Lordship in Council that in either, it would be necessarily just and proper that the mother, at least up to a certain age, should be deprived of the custody of her children. The Sudder Court for the Lower Provinces, in pronouncing their decision upon this question, have assumed (what does not seem to be implied in the question), that the wife was living in adultery. This might no doubt have material influence on the decision; but in neither of the cases propounded by Mr. Mansel in his first question, and especially not in the second case, can that fact be fairly presumed.

4. Mr. Mansel's second proposition is in the following terms: "Is any power vested in a magistrate to compel a party who, in the assumed character of guardian, next of kin, and the like, may have enticed away or carried off any infants from another party, (under whose charge or in whose possession they were,) to restore the infants to the prosecutor or into the court of the magistrate, that the magistrate may decide to whom the the charge of the infant legally belongs?"

5. For the correct solution of this question also, regard must be had to the particular circumstances of each case. It would seem to fall peculiarly within the legitimate province of a magistrate's duty, under the provisions of Regulation VII. 1819, to interfere summarily with a view to the restoration of children who may have been enticed or carried away. At the same time, there may be circumstances in particular cases, (such, for instance, as the fact of the party who was deprived of the possession having no natural or legal right to the charge of the infant,) which might render such interference inexpedient and objectionable.

6. On the whole, His Lordship in Council is inclined to think, that until some definite rules are prescribed for the guidance of the magistrates in these cases, the safest course will be to refrain from attempting to issue any general instructions, and to leave the several magistrates to exercise a sound discretion to exert their official authority or not, according as the propriety of one or the other course may be indicated by the circumstances of each case

Copy of a Letter from the Magistrate of Agra to the Acting Commissioner of Circuit at Furruckabad, dated 3rd January, 1837.

I beg to request that you will lay the following points of law before the Nizamut Adawlut for the opinion of that Court.

1. Is any power vested in a magistrate under the Regulations to compel a wife who has abandoned the society of her husband, or who has been abandoned by her husband, to restore to the husband the children begotten during the course of the marriage?

2. Is any power vested in a magistrate to compel a party who, in the assumed character of guardian, next of kin, and the like, may have enticed away or carried off any infants from another party, (under whose charge or in whose possession they were,) to restore the infants to the prosecutor or into the court of the magistrate, that the magistrate may decide to whom the charge of the infants legally belongs?

I may add that the practice of this magistrate's court has long been in favor of interference in each case alluded to, but the letter of the Regulations nowhere warrants such practice, nor is it supported by the analogy of the powers vested in justices of the peace in England under the existing constitution of the judicature of that country. I have thought it therefore desirable to refer the two questions, that in future the magistrate, at a station where, owing to the increasing resort of Anglo-Indians, the applications for the exercise of such powers seem likely to be frequent, may be armed with a positive construction of the law of the Regulations by the highest judicial authority.

The Oordoo language to be used in proceedings connected with charges for Thuggee.

I AM directed by the Court to communicate to you, for your information and guidance, a copy of the orders of Government, dated the 18th ultimo, prescribing, in reply to a reference made by the Court on the subject, the language in which the depositions of persons accused of being concerned in cases of Thuggee, and all other proceedings connected with that class of trials, should be taken down and written.

Copy of a Letter from the Secretary to the Government of Bengal, to the Officiating Register of the Presidency Nizamut Adawlut, dated 18th July, 1837.

I am directed by the Right Honorable the Governor of Bengal to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, No. 1882, dated the 30th ultimo, with its enclosures, and to request that you will inform the Court in reply, that on consideration of all the circumstances of the case, especially of the passage quoted by Mr. Ravenshaw from Captain Lowis' letter, his Lordship thinks it most desirable, as well as most consistent with the spirit of the Honorable Court's orders, that the Oordoo—Hindustanee, which is certainly the language most universally prevalent throughout India, and with which even th Thugs of Lower Bengal must, from their wandering habits and practice of conversing with travellers from all parts of the country, be well acquainted, should be used by all the officers under their jurisdiction, employed in the investigation of charges for Thuggee.

I AM directed to transmit to you, for your information and guidance, a copy of a Circular† this day addressed to the Magistrates and Joint Magistrates, and Deputy Superintendents for the suppression of thuggee, exercising the powers of Joint Magistrate in the provinces of Bengal, Behar and Orissa, and to state that the Court of Nizamut Adawlut do not consider it necessary to furnish you with any particular instructions for the trial of Thug prisoners who may be brought before you under the provisions of Act No. XXX. of 1836, as it will be sufficient for you to attend to the established forms laid down for your guidance in holding criminal trials.

2. You will be careful to affix to the record of each trial the tender of exemption from the punishment of death and transportation beyond seas, which the Magistrate or Joint Magistrate will have made to the prisoner and the prisoner's acceptance thereof.

A qualified pardon to be offered to proposed Thug approvers, and the conviction of such persons to be obtained before employing them in procuring the conviction of their accomplices.

An Act having been passed (No. XIX. of 1837,) to render legal the evidence of convicts against their accomplices in crime, I am directed by the Court to communicate to you, for your guidance, a copy of the instructions which have been drafted with that view, and have been approved of by the Governor General in Council, and to request that in acting upon them you will observe the following rules.

2. Whenever you consider it necessary to obtain the evidence of a proposed approver, with a view to convict his accomplices, you will, in the first instance, place on record a faithful narrative of his life of crime, noting every Thuggee in which he has been employed, the names of the Thugs who have been engaged in each expedition, their respective crimes and occupations in each journey, and generally will enter into as full a detail as possible, informing the person who offers himself as an approver, that for any wilful omission on his part he will forfeit the qualified pardon which you are authorised to hold out to him. After this unreserved confession, you will examine a few Thug approvers as to his being a real Thug, and will then commit him to be tried by the Session Judge of the district, on a charge of being a Thug under Act No. XXX. 1836, granting him, under the instructions of Government referred to in Mr. Secretary Macnaghten's letter, No. 227, of the 19th June last, an exemption from the punishment of death or transportation beyond seas. In all cases you should thus obtain the condemnation of the prisoner before you admit him as a Thug approver.

3. The object of this prosecution, I am directed to observe, is to ensure the legal detention and imprisonment of the approvers for life.

INSTRUCTIONS.

You are hereby authorised to offer mercy, in the name of the Government, to any Thug from whom you may have reason to expect that useful information may be procured, on condition that he makes a full and ingenuous confession.

The promise which you are authorised to make is not a promise of entire pardon. His Lordship in Council has before him such strong proofs that offenders of this class are irreclaimable, that he cannot consent to let any of them loose on society, however long the period of their confinement may have been, however unexceptionable their demeanour during that confinement may have been, or whatever may have been the value of the information given by them. You are therefore distinctly to understand that you are in no case, without a special permission from Government, to hold out to any Thug any hope that he will ever be set at liberty. The mercy which you are authorised to promise extends only to exemption from capital punishment and transportation, and to such indulgences in confinement as may be compatible with the safe keeping of the prisoner. Every promise of this sort which you may give, the Government will hold itself bound to perform, even though it should appear that in giving such a promise you have not exercised a sound discretion.

The promises which you are authorised to make may be made either to persons who have been convicted, or to persons who have not yet been tried.

In the former case the punishment will, on your report that the convict has made a confession which you consider as full and ingenuous, be commuted by Government according to the engagements which you may have made.

An Act has been framed providing that no person shall be incompetent to be a witness in any case by reason of a conviction for any offence; when this Act shall be passed a convicted Thug will be competent to give evidence against his accomplices.

In general the promises which you make, under the authority now conferred upon you, will be made for the purpose of obtaining information from Thugs who have not yet been convicted; His Lordship in Council is of opinion that every such case should be followed up by the regular trial and conviction of the informer.

Nothing short of a sentence pronounced by a Court of Justice and recorded on the proceedings of that Court can be sufficient ground for detaining any person in perpetual imprisonment. If a Thug approver who has never been tried were after ten or fifteen years of confinement to demand his liberty, it might be exceedingly difficult to refuse his application. The evidence on which he might have been convicted at the time of his seizure may be no longer forthcoming. The public functionaries who received his confession may be dead or may have left the country. It may be notorious that he is lying in prison as a Thug. But to detain in prison for life a man who has never been tried and who demands a trial, merely on the ground that he is a notorious malefactor, is a course so objectionable, so utterly irreconcileable with all the most important general principles of criminal jurisprudence, that nothing but absolute necessity would induce His Lordship in Council to resort to it.

His Lordship in Council therefore directs, that in every case, in which you may think fit to promise mercy, in the name of the Government, to a Thug who has not been convicted, you will commit him for trial before the Session Judge on the charge of having been guilty of the offence made punishable by Act No. XXX. of 1836. You will explain to him that if he pleads guilty to that minor offence, he will not be put on his trial for any capital crime which he may have committed as a Thug.

His conviction will, under such circumstances, be a matter of course. It will give scarcely any trouble to the court by which he may be tried. It will, under the Act before adverted to, leave him a competent witness. And he will be detained for life in confinement, under an authority which can never be questioned, and in a strictly regular manner.

THERE being reason to believe that it is considered allowable to punish with stripes the crime of escaping from jail, or from the custody of a guard, such acts being supposed to amount to a "breach of jail discipline," the Court of Nizamut Adawlut direct me to inform you, that corporal punishment can be inflicted on a convict under sentence of labour in irons, only when such punishment may be considered absolutely necessary at the moment, to quell a riot or disturbance among the prisoners, or in cases of violent resistance to the jail officers, or any other refractory conduct on the part of a prisoner, such for instance as a contumacious refusal to work, where the punishment may follow so immediately upon the offence as to be calculated, by the force of example, to deter others from the commission of like acts.

3. With regard to the custody and disposal, on the other hand, of the property of persons dying intestate (lawaris,) the Court direct me to observe that Clause 7, Section 16, Regulation III. 1803,* contains a specific provision, and declares that should no claim be preferred to it for the space of twelve months, an inventory of the property, together with a report of the circumstances of the case, shall be submitted by the judge, to the Governor General in Council for his orders. immediately carried into effect in every district over which the superintendent of police has jurisdiction.

1. Circular Order, No. 48, April 2nd, 1808. The session judges will now perform the duties prescribed in this Circular.

2. Circular Order, No. 264, August 16th, 1822. The superintendent of police will direct the magistrates to rescind, alter or modify any circular instructions connected with the police issued by those functionaries. The session judges will not interfere in any way with the exercise of this power.

3. The following Circular Orders are hereby rescinded, viz. No. 64, 10th December, 1830 ; No. 93, 10th February, 1832 ; No. 114, 27th July, 1832 ; No. 119, 24th August, 1832 ; No. 136, 6th April, 1833 ; No. 138, 16th August, 1833.

4. Circular Order, No. 68, December 17th, 1830, is hereby extended to the office of superintendent of police. In addition to the report to Government required by Clause 2, Section 14, Regulation XI. 1806, the magistrate will report to the superintendent of police and the session judge whenever he may find it necessary to call out the military.

5. Circular Order, No. 94, February 10th, 1832, is also rescinded. It being the desire of Government that the magistrates should be encouraged often to visit the interior of their districts, it is considered unnecessary that they should report* every instance of their performing or being about to perform so essential a part of their duty.

6. Circular Order, No. 115, August 3rd, 1832, is hereby amended. The session judges will report direct to the Nizamut Adawlut whenever they may be prevented for the period of one month from holding a jail delivery of their respective districts.

7. The several duties assigned by the Circular Order, No, 155, December 12th, 1834 and Circular Order, No. 190, January 15th, 1836, to the commissioners of circuit will now be performed by the session judges. With regard to the statements connected with the police, the magistrates will be guided by the instructions they may receive from the superintendent.

ORDERED :

That a copy of this Resolution be sent to the superintendent of police, and to each session judge, magistrate and joint magistrate, in the Lower Provinces, with instructions to alter the Circular Order books accordingly. A copy will also be transmitted to the commissioners for their information.

Circulating a letter of the superintendent of police, Lower Provinces, with extract from a minute of Sir Thomas Munro, regarding confessions extorted by the police.

I AM directed by the Court to transmit to you, for your information, the accompanying copy of a circular which has been issued by the superintendent of police, Lower Provinces, to the magistrates within his jurisdiction.

To the Magistrates in the Lower Provinces.

SIR,

I have found during my late tour a considerable difference of opinion in regard to extorted confessions, which some magistrates, and a few session judges, consider to be very common, and others disbelieve the charge altogether. As much evil to the people may be done by a systematic disbelief, as well as much injury to the police, by a too ready reliance on such accusations, I have the honor to send for your information an extract from a minute written by Sir Thomas Munro, when Governor of Madras, in which the subject is fully and admirably discussed in all its bearings.

I am, &c.

(Signed) F. C. SMITH,

Superintendent of Police, Lower Provinces.

FORT WILLIAM,
OFFICE OF SUPT. OF POLICE, L. P.
The 14th December, 1838.

* The orders in the paragraph referred to are superseded only so far as regards the court, by which commitments made by the civil judge are to be tried.

† A copy of the foregoing Circular was forwarded on the same date (Nov. 2nd) to the magistrates and joint magistrates in the Lower Provinces.

Extract from a Minute recorded by the late Sir Thomas Munro, Governor of Madras.

13. The Hon'ble Court have adverted at considerable length and with just severity upon the conduct of the native police officers in extorting confessions from prisoners ; and they specify some very atrocious cases, among which are the murder of a man by a peon, in endeavouring to extort a confession, and the maiming a prisoner, by a potail, in torturing him for the same object. In both these cases however it is satisfactory to know that the offenders were convicted and punished—one capitally, and the other with two years' imprisonment and hard laborr. The judge who reports, fears that cases of forced confession are too common, even among the officers of Government, but observes that the proof is difficult. When violence really takes place the proof cannot be difficult ; but I believe that in a great proportion of the cases where it is charged none has been used. It is much more general in Malabar and Canara than in other zillahs ; and the difference is probably owing to the people of Malabar and Canara, still retaining much of the turbulent and vindictive character which they acquired while divided into petty states, and little restrained by any regular authority from exercising acts of outrage on each other.

14. It is no doubt too certain that many irregularities are used in obtaining confessions, and that in some instances atrocious acts are committed ; but when we consider the great number of prisoners apprehended, and the habits of the people themselves, always accustomed to compulsion where there is suspicion, how difficult it is to eradicate such habits, and how small the proportion of cases in which violence has been used is to the whole mass, the number of these acts is hardly greater than was to be expected, and is every day diminishing. The prohibition against forced confessions is known to all native police officers ; and it seems extraordinary, that they should even employ force, for they know that they have much to lose, and nothing to gain by such conduct ; but some of them, in spite of every injunction to the contrary, when they believe that a prisoner is guilty, think it right to extort a confession. Police officers in general, however, will not gratuitously expose themselves to a loss of place, and their families to ruin by such conduct. Prisoners are sometimes hurt by attempting to escape, and notorious offenders are sometimes roughly treated by the villagers who assist in securing them ; the marks thus caused are sometimes exhibited as evidence of extorted confession. Whereever there is proof of force having been used for such a purpose, the police officer should be invariably punished and dismissed from the service. But great caution is necessary in believing the accusation of force : it should always be very clearly established before it is entitled to credit. Police matters are so public that the charge of violence, when true, can hardly be concealed. There are two things in which there is constantly very great exaggeration—the number of persons concerned in a robbery, and the number of extorted confessions: only a small part of the alleged cases of extorted confessions are ever substantiated. The circuit court say that the proof is difficult. I believe that when true, the proof is easy, and that the difficulty lies in by far the greater part being unfounded. The charge is easily made, and the effects of its receiving belief from the court of circuit is so generally known, that offenders very frequently bring it forward in some stage of the trial. It is a point which demands the greatest possible circumspection on the part of the magistrate. If he lets the person escape who has been guilty of extorting confession, he encourages one of the worst offences against the administration of justice. If he punishes the police officer charged with this offence, in only a very few instances on false evidence, he will effectually deter the whole body from the zealous exercise of their duty, and let loose a host of robbers upon the community. No number of zillah courts would prevent the excesses complained of among the native police; were we to double the number, it would have no effect in restraining them. They can only be checked and effectually put down by the vigilance of the magistrates; by never letting them pass unpunished; by the police officers finding from experience, that they never could gain any thing from the use of force, but would certainly suffer disgrace and punishment; and by time working a change in their habits.

15. The irregularities committed by the police are now much more difficult of concealment, than when the office of zillah judge and magistrate were united in one person, confined to a fixed station; and though too many of the police officers are still frequently guilty of such irregularities, yet the conduct of the great body of them is highly useful and meritorious, and its effects are becoming every day more evident in the increasing tranquillity of the country, and the gradual diminution of organized bands of robbers. The amelioration, though occasionally retarded by the misconduct of local officers, continues to advance, and is gradually diminishing the number of crimes.

Magistrates incompetent to compel a wife to return to her husband.

CONSIDERABLE difference of opinion and practice appearing to prevail as to the competency of a magistrate to interfere with a view to restore a wife to her husband, on the application of the latter, contrary to her wishes, I am directed to inform you that it has been ruled by both the Courts of Nizamut Adawlut, that the magistrates are invested with no such authority, and that applications of the above nature should be preferred in the civil court in the form of a regular suit.*

Lower and Western Provinces, 8th March, 1839.

The persons of convicts under sentence of transportation or banishment, to be accurately described, and burkundazes enjoined to compare the descriptive rolls with the convicts when relieving guard at the different stations.

It having been brought to the notice of the Court that the rule laid down in the Circular Order of the 10th April, 1801, No. 25, which directs that an accurate description of the persons of all convicts, sentenced to transportation, shall be inserted in the lists, which are required, under the Circular Order of the 3rd August, 1796,* to accompany the prisoners, is not strictly attended to, and that considerable difficulty is frequently experienced, in consequence, in identifying such convicts, especially on the occasion of the relief of the guards at the different stations on their journey to Allipore, I am directed to call your particular attention to the rule above quoted, and to request your careful observance of it.

2. I am also directed to request, that you will take care, that the descriptive rolls, which should be written in both the Hindustanee [or Bengallee in the Bengal districts] and Persian languages, as well as in English, are correctly drawn out, and that you will issue positive orders, that the guards on relieving each other carefully compare the same with the convicts.

3. The Court further direct, that you will consider the same rules applicable to prisoners, under sentence of banishment to other districts, either for life, or a term of years.

Instructions regarding register of warrants, certificates granted to prisoners, and endorsement of mitigated punishment on prisoner's warrants, designed to guard against the detention of convicts beyond the term of their sentence.

In continuation of the Court's Circular Order of the 15th May, 1835, No. 167, prescribing a new form of register of warrants of criminal sentences, I am directed to request that whenever the sentence passed on a prisoner may be mitigated, the magistrate as well as session judge, where the original sentence may have been passed by the latter officer, will immediately cause the name of the prisoner to be struck out, in red ink, from the register of the year, in which such original sentence would have terminated, and entered in the register of the year in which the mitigated sentence will expire, inserting in column 7 of the former register a memorandum of such mitigated sentence. The magistrate will, at the same time, recall the original certificate granted to the prisoner under the Circular Order of the 14th May, 1824, No. 292, and, on explaining to the prisoner the mitigated sentence passed upon him, will furnish him with a new certificate, specifying the period when the reduced term of imprisonment, awarded therein, will expire.

* See No. 7, Vol. I.

2. The Court further direct that when the mitigation or remission of punishment may have been ordered by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut, the endorsement on the prisoner's warrant of such mitigation or remission shall be made in the vernacular language of the district, as well as in English.

3. The object of the present Circular being to prevent the possibility of any prisoner being detained in confinement beyond the period of his sentence, the Court will hold the heads of offices strictly responsible for the due observance of the same; and they direct me to add, that they will consider it their duty to take very serious notice of any want of proper attention to these rules which may come to their knowledge.

BOMBAY CASTLE,
22nd August, 1839.

No. 38 of 1839.

From the Acting Advocate General, dated 12th July, 1839.

SIR,

I have the honor to report to Government the result of cases tried at the present Criminal Sessions in the Supreme Court, in which Government prosecuted.

2. The first was that of Michael Dunn, a private in the 4th Dragoons, who was indicted for stabbing a Borah named Akapa, with intent to murder, or to maim, disfigure, or disable him. The prosecutor deposed that he was hawking goods near the quarters of the prisoner, when the latter beckoned to him, stating that he had some copper to sell. The prisoner then asked the Borah what money he had with him, and the Borah replied three rupees in pice, upon which the prisoner said he did not like his wife to see him selling the copper, but that if the Borah would walk on, he, the prisoner, would follow; the prisoner then took the Borah to the edge of the river at Kirkee, and waited for a very long time, pretending that he expected another soldier of the 3rd troop. After remaining there upwards of two hours the Borah said he would go, upon which the prisoner told him to stay, saying he would look for the soldier. The prisoner, after being absent about half an hour, suddenly returned and without saying a word stabbed the prosecutor over the hip about $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches in depth. The prisoner made no attempt to rob him, and, on the Borah crying out, ran off. This story seemed very improbable, and could scarcely in its details be true. Still however the fact remained that the Borah had been severely wounded by some one. The Borah made the best of his way to the sergeant major, and complained that he had been stabbed by a soldier whose name he did not know. The sergeant major sent another sergeant with the Borah, who said he could point out the man's bungalow. The Borah then took the sergeant to the bungalow of the prisoner, and pointed him out as the person who had wounded him. These facts occurring whilst the wound was still fresh and smarting, and when, therefore, every reason existed for believing the Borah would point out the really guilty party, were proved by other parties. The case was further confirmed by a native woman in the service of the prisoner, who deposed that her master came home on that day about one o'clock in great heat and confusion, and instantly took off his shoes and hat and desired this woman to hide them. The prisoner called witnesses to his character, who gave him a very bad character. After retiring for some hours, the jury returned a virdict of "not guilty."

3. I am unwilling to pass over this case without drawing the attention of Government to the want of care that exists in the local investigation of offences committed by Europeans in the districts. Amongst the witnesses sent down on the present occasion were three women, one of them the prisoner's wife, who by law cannot be a witness to criminate her husband, and the other two to depose not to any thing within their own knowledge connected with the offence but to what they had been told by the prisoner's wife, and which, it is plain, could not be evidence that the facts so told were in themselves true.

4. The present season rendered it the more hard upon these persons (one had an infant in arms) that they should have been sent here from Kirkee to prove that they had seen nothing but had been told a great many things. In addition to which Government have to reimburse them their expenses, a very trifling sum no doubt.

5. The main cause of its so often happening, when Europeans are committed in the districts for trial in Bombay, that persons who can give no personal testimony are yet compelled to travel down as witnesses, arises, as far as my experience goes, from the magistrates making no distinction between hearsay and original evidence. Witnesses in the Supreme Court are allowed to speak to what they know only, and not to what they have been told by others; for many persons are told what is very untrue, and whilst on the one hand the communication has not been made on oath, on the other the Court has no opportunity of ascertaining what were the informant's means of knowledge.

6. I wish to be considered as casting no blame on Mr. Rudd, the magistrate, in this instance. He was investigating an offence under an Act of Parliament, and technical rules of evidence he can scarcely be expected to know.

7. But to avoid such things for the future, I take the liberty of suggesting that in all cases where Europeans in the distrcits are charged with offences for which they will be tried in the Supreme Court, the magistrate taking the depositions should be directed to forward them, if time will admit of it, to the Hon'ble Company's solicitor, who will at once be able to inform the magistrate what persons should be sent to Bombay, and whether the evidence collected is sufficient or not, and, if not, what further inquiries, and in what quarters, should be made.

8. The next case was that of Lewis Cribbs and Joseph Newton, who were charged by three indictments, with obtaining goods from different persons on false pretences. On the first indictment Cribbs was proved to be a common swindler and was found guilty : Newton produced witnesses to character, and the evidence not being strong as to him, he was acquitted. On the second case Cribbs pleaded guilty, and though there was great reason to believe that Newton had been concerned in cheating, yet the witnesses failed in proving him guilty of the specific offence laid in the indictment, and he was, therefore, acquitted a second time. Feeling that I should experience the same difficulty in the third case in fixing Newton with being a party to the false pretences, I did not think it desirable to proceed further. Cribbs was sentenced to transportation for seven years.

I have the honor to be, &c.,

The orders of magistrates dismissing persons from their situations,—such orders not being part of a sentence passed in any criminal trial—appealable to the commissioners.

DOUBTS having been entertained in respect to what is the proper constituted tribunal of appeal for parties seeking redress from orders of magistrates dismissing them from their situations, such orders not being part of the sentence passed in any criminal trial, and considerable diversity of practice having obtained in consequence, appeals of the nature described, having in some districts been considered cognizable by the commissioner and in others by the session judge, I am directed to acquaint you that it has been ruled by the Government, upon a reference from the Court, that such appeals cannot be heard by the session judge, but lie, under the law, to the commissioner.

The terms to be employed in all criminal proceedings, in rendering the words "affray" and "riot."

I AM directed to communicate, for your information and guidance, the following rule established by the Court, fixing the proper corresponding phrase in the native language to express the English word "affray."

2. The Court observe that the translations of the Regulations of Government constitute no certain guide in the matter, great diversity of phraseology appearing to prevail in rendering the word in the various Regulations wherein it is used. With reference, however, to the most general acceptation, it appears to the Court that an affray in which both sides are in fault and liable to punishment for breach of the peace, is most generally expressed by the term "khanahjungee," and they remark that it is so rendered (indifferently with "hungamah purdazee") in the preamble of Regulation II. of 1823, which regards "affrays concerning land and arising from other causes." The term "hungamah" the Court consider rather to express a riot or tumultuous assembly, where one side alone is presumed to be offensive.

3. As the establishment of some fixed authoritative phraseology for general use and observance is conducive both to uniformity and the equitable administration of criminal justice, the Court are pleased to direct that for the future the word "affray" in all criminal proceedings shall be rendered "khanahjungee,"* and the term "hungamah"† be restricted to indicate a riot or tumultuous assembly.

Instructions relative to the filling up of the monthly criminal statement No. 5, in regard to the record of the death of any prisoner who may have been sentenced to undergo imprisonment in one

WITH reference to the Circular, dated 19th July last, calling for information on the practice observed in filling up the monthly criminal statement No. 5, in regard to the record of the death of any prisoner or prisoners who may have been sentenced to undergo imprisonment in one zillah, but subsequently transferred for working on the roads, or under any other contingency, to another, the Court have now had under consideration the replies received thereto, and, with a view to the attainment of uniformity and the avoidance of confusion and error, are pleased to establish the following rule.

2. It has been found that no regular principle of entry prevails in respect to such casualties, the magistrates of some districts accounting in their own statements for deaths of prisoners detached from their own to other zillahs; the larger proportion, however, pursuing what the Court consider to be the correct method, of only entering, in their monthly returns casualties among convicts (whether of their own or other districts) who may be under their actual custody or charge, leaving the deaths happening among their own prisoners sent to other districts, to be entered and accounted for in the statements of such districts; while some officers appear to include in the statements both deaths in their own jurisdiction among convicts from other districts, and deaths in other jurisdictions among convicts from their own, a method of entry of necessity erroneous, and calculated to induce confusion, and represent the same casualties twice over.

3. The Court have been pleased to resolve, that in future each magistrate shall only account for and include in his monthly statement such casualties as may occur among prisoners (whether of his own or other districts) under his actual custody or charge; that prisoners in progress to other districts, for work on the roads or for other reasons, be borne on the statements of the districts whence they are sent, with the addition of a note to that effect, until notification of their having reached their destination be received there, when they will be struck off and appear in the statement of the district to which they may have been detached; that a similar rule apply to such prisoners returning from detached duty; that on this principle deaths happening among convicts in transit, either going or returning, be accounted for in the returns of the districts they are leaving; and that in respect both to casualties in transit and after arrival, the magistrate to whose district the prisoners may be sent, on obtaining information thereof, invariably forward the warrant, sent with the individuals so deceasing, to the magistrate from whose district they came, enclosed with a certificate of death under his official seal and signature.*

No. 52.

Communicating instructions regarding the modo of proceeding in the magistrate's court on the receipt of reports from the police officers of neglect of police duties by landholders.

IT having been represented to Government, that landholders and their agents are frequently subjected to considerable hardships by the arbitrary infliction of a fine, in cases wherein the darogah or other police authorities may think proper to report to magistrates their (the zemindars') neglect of police duties, I am directed to request your attention to the following instructions regarding the mode of proceeding on receiving such reports.

2. On receiving a report of alleged neglect of police duties on the part of any landholder, you will not require his personal attendance at your court, before calling upon him to furnish, within a week or ten days, a written explanation of the charge brought against him. Should the explanation be unsatisfactory, or should none be afforded within the time, you will require him to appear before you on an appointed day, in person or by mookhtar, to answer the charge. On his obeying the summons you will be careful to enter immediately upon the inquiry; avoiding all delay by summoning the witnesses in support of the charge to appear on the appointed day, and by directing the accused to produce at the same time any witnesses whose evidence he may desire to offer in his own defence.

3. The offence being one of a bailable nature, the accused or his agent should not be placed in custody when required to attend the investigation into the charges.

Rule regarding the power of magistrates to dispose of certain descriptions of cases of assault and affray attended with wounding, instead of committing them to the sessions.

I AM directed to communicate, for your information and future guidance, the following rule regarding your power of disposing of certain descriptions of cases of assault and affray attended with wounding, instead of committing them to the sessions court.

2. You will not in future consider the mere circumstance of a bone-fracture to take a case of assault out of your cognizance, it being left to you to determine, with reference to the extent of the injury, and other considerations of a similar nature, what cases of this description should be disposed of by yourself and what made over for trial to the sessions court.

3. It will not be competent to the latter authority to cancel a commitment made by you under this discretionary power, merely on the ground of the session judge differing from you in regard to the tribunal before which the case should be brought, and by which consequently the amount of punishment is to be regulated.

4. In supersession of the Constructions quoted below by which cases of affray attended with wounding, if the wounds have been inflicted by a sword, have been ruled to be beyond the competence of a magistrate finally to dispose of, it is hereby declared that henceforward you are empowered, in such cases, to commit or punish, as you may judge most expedient without regard to the instrument of offence, and with reference solely to the nature and extent of the injuries inflicted by the aggressors.

No. 55.

Communicating instructions regarding the description of cases referrible to the Nizamut Adawlut, under the provisions of Clause 1, Section 4, Regulation VI. 1832.

I AM directed by the Court to communicate to you the following instructions regarding the particular description of cases which, when tried in the mode contemplated by Clause 1, Section 4, Regulation VI. 1832, that is, with the aid of punchayet, assessors, or jury, but without the opinion of a Mahomedan law officer, would be referrible under that clause to the Nizamut Adawlut for final disposal.

2. The Court observe that the condition of reference to the Court set forth in the proviso of the clause cited, viz. the crime of which the prisoner is convicted being one which the judge is not specially empowered by the Regulations to punish, must be held to relate to the nature of the crime, and, since whatever is defined or specified in the Regulations to be a crime is specifically punishable by the criminal courts, the session judge is therefore specifically empowered to punish such offences when brought before him in due course of law.

3. The real object of the legislature in enacting Section 4 of the Regulation in question, appears to the Court to have been to declare the incompetency of the sessions court, unassisted by a Mahomedan law officer, to declare that to be a crime which is not so declared by the Regulations. The law professedly administered is the Mahomedan law amended and modified by the Regulations. Where the amendments are applicable, there can be no difficulty in disposing of trials; but in the contrary event, an exposition of the Mahomedan law is necessary to pronounce whether the act of the prisoner is punishable or otherwise. The session judge sitting with assessors has not the benefit of such exposition, and hence the necessity and propriety of a reference to the Nizamut Adawlut.

stricted to cases in which the proceedings of the magistrate, in making the commitment, may appear to you to merit the particular notice of the Nizamut Adawlut.

I AM directed to communicate to you the following rule, regarding the process by which the evidence of a prisoner is obtainable in a district other than that in which he may be confined.

2. It has been determined that whenever the evidence of a prisoner under such circumstances may be indispensable, the court requiring it shall request the magistrate of the district in which the prisoner may be confined to send him to such court, informing the Nizamut Adawlut of the step thus taken; and it will be competent to a magistrate, on such emergent requisition, to forward the prisoner to the court requiring his presence, for the purpose stated, reporting at the same time, for the information of the Nizamut Adawlut, his compliance with the requisition, and eventually the prisoner's return to his jail.

Communicating instructions on the subject of subsistence to indigent prosecutors and witnesses.

IT appearing from the several replies received from the magistrates and joint magistrates of the Lower Provinces to the Court's Circular of the 1st November last, that the provisions of Section 3, Regulation III. 1812, have not in all instances been properly attended to, I am directed by the Court to request that you will, in future, strictly conform to the rules laid down in that Regulation; and that you will be careful to ascertain that indigent witnesses are, on all occasions, supported either by the prosecutor or by the state, during the time of their detention from their homes, whether the case be pending before the session judge or otherwise.

2. The Court request your particular attention to the speedy disposal of all criminal charges, so that the witnesses may be detained for as short a period as is practicable at the sudder station; and you are requested to intimate to all your covenanted and uncovenanted assistants, the expectation of the Court that no unnecessary delay will take place in their courts.

3. The Court have observed with much satisfaction that the alleged confinement of witnesses by the nazirs in what is termed the hajut guard, is altogether unfounded ; and they confidently rely on your zeal and activity to prevent any abuses on the part of the subordinate native officers, and to punish the same when brought to your notice and proved to be true.

Extract from a Despatch from the Honorable the Court of Directors, under date the 11th February, 1840.

" We have on former occasions expressed our strong objection to the imposition of heavy fines upon native servants, as involving them in pecuniary difficulty, and inducing them to resort to improper practices for the purpose of indemnification. It appears to us that the preferable course is, when an officer refuses to do that which his official duty requires of him, to transfer at once the office to a more obedient holder."

I am directed to acquaint you that it has been recently ruled by a majority of the Courts of Nizamut Adawlut that the Circular Order No. 291, dated 7th May 1824, is only applicable to the crime of administering poisonous drugs to persons with a view to robbing them when in a state of insensibility, and does not include the offence of administering drugs or substances, of a merely intoxicating character and not of a nature to endanger life, for the purpose recited, and that, consequently, those cases only are referrible to the Nizamut Adawlut in which the prisoners are accused and convicted of having administered poisonous drugs.

Circulating resolution of Government regarding the purchase of tents for the use of magistrates.

I AM directed by the Court to transmit to you, for your information and guidance, the accompanying extract from the proceedings of the Right Honorable the Governor of Bengal, under date the 8th ultimo, regarding the purchase of tents for the use of magistrates.

No. 1472.

Extract from the Proceedings of the Right Honorable the Governor of Bengal in the Judicial Department, under date the 8th September, 1840.

Read the proceedings of the 6th February last in this department, Nos. 9 to 21, on the subject of tentage allowance to civil functionaries while absent from their stations on duty.

Read also a letter from the magistrate of Nuddea,* soliciting permission to purchase a tent for his mofussil tours at a cost of Company's Rupees 650.

RESOLUTION:

The Right Honorable the Governor of Bengal observes that a sum of Company's Rupees 650 was allowed every eight years† on account purchase of a double-poled tent for the use of each district magistrate and collector when those offices used to be vested in the same individual, but that, on the separation of the offices, the tents remained in most instances attached to the office of the collector.

It appears to His Lordship necessary, however, that both magistrates and collectors should be provided with office accommodation while on duty in the interior of their districts; and with this impression the Governor will, as occasion may be shown, have no objection to sanction the purchase of single-poled tents at an expense of Company's Rupees 350 each, for the use of magistrates, and also when new ones may be required for the use of collectors.

ORDERED:

That a copy of this Resolution be transmitted to the Superintendent of Police, Lower Provinces, and to the Revenue Department, for the purpose of communication to the Sudder Board of Revenue.

14. As it is of much importance that natives who have been trained to the duties of an office, more especially to duties of a scientific nature, such as those performed by Radanath Seikdar, should not be incited to quit their stations with a view to their own advantage in another branch of Government employ, we fully approve of the intimation given by you to the Revenue Board that it was wrong for one department of the state to bid against another for the services of competent officers. We are of opinion that all departments should be apprised that they must not only not invite, but must positively refuse to entertain an application for employment from any native who is, at the time of making the application, in the public employ of a Government office or department, unless they shall have previously received the full acquiescence of the head of such office or department.

ORDERED:

No. 8. RECOGNIZANCE OF A WITNESS.

Whereas Sheikh Janoo, inhabitant of Sulkea, has complained against Peru, inhabitant of Sealdah, charging him with assault, and I have been named as a witness for the complainant (or the defendant,) I hereby engage to appear before the magistrate of the zillah of 24-Pergunnahs on or before the 12th day of April, 1841, for the purpose of giving evidence; in default whereof, I hereby further bind myself to pay such fine to Government as the magistrate may judge proper to impose on me, as well as any expenses that may be incurred, in consequence of my non-attendance, for compelling my appearance. In this I will not fail. Dated the 7th day of April, 1841.

L. S. SHEIKH RUMZAN,

Inhabitant of Dhurrumtollah, Calcutta.

No. 9. BAIL BOND FOR THE APPEARANCE OF A PARTY CHARGED

Whereas Syfoo, inhabitant of Sealdah, stands charged with assault, and is required to appear before the magistrate of the zillah of 24-Pergunnahs on or before the 5th April, 1841, to answer to such charge, I hereby bind myself to produce the said Syfoo before the said magistrate on the date aforesaid, and to be answerable for his appearance until a final order be passed by the magistrate upon the said charge; in default whereof, I further bind myself to forfeit to Government the sum of one hundred rupees. In this I will not fail. Dated this 5th day of March, 1841.

TO THE SEVERAL CRIMINAL AUTHORITIES IN THE LOWER AND WESTERN PROVINCES.

Lower and Western Provinces, 24th March, 1841.

No. 83.

Instructions regarding the wording of the charge in cases of administering poisonous or intoxicating drugs.

SEVERAL instances have lately occurred of defective indictments in trials meant to be referred to the Nizamut Adawlut under the Circular Order dated 7th May, 1824, in which the administering dhatoora with intent to rob has been charged, but the designation of poison not specifically adduced in the charge.

2. As such wording is indefinite and open to objection, the Court are pleased to direct that, in future, indictments in cases of the nature referred to shall be worded simply "administering poison or poisonous drugs with intent," &c. or "administering intoxicating drugs with intent," &c. (according as the Circular Order of 7th May, 1824 or 18th September last, may apply to the case,) the article given, whether dhatoora or other substance, being adduced in the evidence in support of the charge.

NOTE.—See No. 64 of this Vol.

No. 84.

Attention to the style of proceedings in the Bengalee.

IT being desirable that the proceedings of the civil and criminal courts recorded in the vernacular, should be generally intelligible, by the adoption of a style equally removed from the colloquial and that employed by the pundits, I am directed to request that you will pay particular attention to the subject, and refer your head ministerial officers, and the uncovenanted judges under your control, to the Bengalee version of the Regulations of 1793, in regard both to the style which should be made use of by them and the terms which usually occur in legal proceedings.

TO THE SEVERAL CRIMINAL AUTHORITIES IN THE LOWER AND WESTERN PROVINCES.

Lower and Western Provinces, 30th April, 1841.

No. 85.

Rules for the guidance of magistrates in adopting measures relative to insane British subjects.

THE Honorable the Court of Directors having signified a wish that the course of procedure authorised by law, in cases where the local magistrates may be called on to adopt measures relative to insane British subjects, should be defined and communicated for the guidance of those officers, the Court circulate, with the sanction of Government, the following rules:

1. Whenever it may come to the knowledge of a magistrate that an European British subject, wandering about and at large within his jurisdiction, is deemed to be insane, it shall be competent to him to direct the transmission of such person, in custody of a proper guard, but with due precautions against needlessly harsh or severe treatment, to the sudder station, and cause him to be carefully examined by the civil surgeon; and if on such examination, coupled with other proof, the magistrate shall be satisfied that such British subject is so far disordered in his senses that it is dangerous for him to be permitted to go abroad, he shall send him under a proper guard,* and with his warrant under his seal and signature, accompanied with a certificate under the signature of the civil surgeon, to the insane asylum at the presidency, securing, at the same time, the lunatic's property (should he have any) and intimating his state, in writing, to any relations or friends he may be known to have in India; and this rule shall not be understood to extend to prevent any such relation or friend that may be forthcoming from taking such lunatic with his property under his own care and protection.

2. The magistrate is authorised to attach and sell by auction any personal property such declared lunatic may possess, with a view to the proceeds being applied to the payment of necessary charges of removal, maintenance, clothing, medicine, and care of such lunatic; and he will keep an account of what expenditure he may himself incur on this head in his own office, and remit so much of the amount as may be needed to meet the above charges elsewhere.

3. Whenever there may not be sufficient property, or no property at all forthcoming, and no relations or friends of the insane person may be discoverable to take charge of him, the magistrate is authorised himself to disburse the necessary expenses for the removal of the lunatic to the asylum and his subsistence in transit, and charge the amount to Government in a contingent bill, to be submitted with the countersignature of the session judge or commissioner.

4. The magistrate will report each occasion of his acting under the above rules to the Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department, soliciting special instructions with reference to any peculiar circumstances that may arise.

---

* The Western Court's Circular ran thus: "and with a certificate under his seal and signature, to what may be judged the most convenient place for his reception and confinement, which, in most instances, will probably be the insane asylum at the presidency," &c.

TO THE MAGISTRATES AND JOINT MAGISTRATES IN THE LOWER PROVINCES.

Lower and Western Provinces, 25th August, 1841.

No. 9

Rule for relief of civil and session judges, empowering them to employ at discretion, their head clerks in certain unimportant duties now done by the former.

THE Court publish the following rule, determined on by the Courts of Sudder Dewanny and Nizamut Adawlut of the Lower and Western Provinces in concert, with the sanction of Government, for devolving on the head clerk of the zillah judge's establishment certain unimportant duties hitherto performed by the judge, with a view to the relief of the latter officer.

2. The judges are empowered, at their discretion, to employ their head clerks in the following duties:

Attesting copies of decrees and other documents granted to parties on stamped or plain paper under the judge's orders.

Attesting copies of proceedings sent to the local authorities and to other districts under the judge's orders.

Registering in English the mookhtarnamas, and preparing them for the judge's attestation.

3. As a needful precaution against error and abuse, it is at the same time ordered that the head clerk, when entrusted with such duties at the discretion of the judge, is never to attach his signature to any document without its correctness having been previously attested and certified by the head ministerial native officer of the judge's court.

TO THE SESSION JUDGES, AND THE MAGISTRATES AND JOINT MAGISTRATES IN THE BEHAR DISTRICTS, INCLUDING MONGHYR.

No. 92. Lower Provinces, 27th August, 1841.

Commitment of persons supposed to belong to an association for robbing and murdering travellers, &c. to be made by the assistant to the general superintendent for the suppression of thuggee.

WITH reference to the annexed extract of a letter from the superintendent of police, the Court are pleased to direct that persons accused of robbery and murder (or either of those crimes,) under circumstances justifying a suspicion that the crimes have been perpetrated by persons engaged in a systematic combination for such purposes, be in future made over to Captain Ramsay, the assistant superintendent in Behar, who is invested with the powers of joint magistrate in the Behar province, Monghyr included. It will be the duty of that officer to commit the persons so transferred, to be tried before the special session judge for the trial of thugs, and to make investigations as to the existence of combinations of the kind described, with a view to the suppression of the offences to which they give rise.

Extract (paras. 2 and 3) from a Letter of the Superintendent of Police, dated 2nd instant.

PARA. 2. I have no doubt however but what a combination exists along the lines of road frequented by travellers, pilgrims, &c. for robbery by this atrocious method, and that the dâk bearers, petty muddees at the halting-places, bhutearas, and common thieves, are concerned in it. I also think that it is carried on to a greater extent than is officially known, or generally suspected, and that many of the travellers, whose corpses, at the times of pilgrimage to Gyah or Hurree-Chetra, are found by the road-side or at halting-places, have met with their deaths from such means. The roads are so inadequately protected without any patrol, that there is always an opportunity for such a crime almost without a chance of discovery.

3. Several cases have lately occurred in Behar, Patna, and Shahabad; and I think it would be advisable to make all such trials over to the officers of the thuggee department for commitment to the thuggee Session Judge; for if, as I believe, there is a combination as above stated, it is more likely to be traced out by the cases being placed in the hands of one officer than by the divided investigations of separate magistrates.

No. 93.

Attention of magistrates called to Circular Order of 14th October, 1836, regarding issue of blankets to convicts.

THE Court, adverting to the usual increase of mortality in the jails on the approach of the cold season, and to the necessity of mitigating, by all possible means, the evil effects caused by change of season to which much of the sickness is wont to be ascribed, take occasion to call the attention of magistrates to the Circular Order of the Nizamut Adawlut, dated 14th October, 1836,* enjoining that all prisoners in confinement during the cold season, not already so provided, are to be furnished with blankets, which should invariably be issued on or before the 15th October.

Names of heathen deities not to be prefixed to proceedings of the courts.

THE Court, having observed in various instances, that the proceedings and orders of the different courts of justice are headed with the names of the heathen deities, desire me to request that such practice may be discontinued in all orders of the courts and processes emanating therefrom.

2. At the same time, I am directed to observe that the above order has no reference whatever to petitions, documents, or papers of any kind which may be presented to the courts, in regard to which you will be careful to abstain from all interference.

Iron degcheesformesses of convicts to be provided by the magistrates.

IN modification of Rule 12 of the Circular Order No. 2583, of the 9th July last, which authorises Magistrates to indent on the commissariat for iron degchees or cooking pots, I am directed by the Court to intimate to you that magistrates are to make their own arrangements for procuring those articles.

TO THE SESSION JUDGES IN THE LOWER AND WESTERN PROVINCES.

No. 98. Lower and Western Provinces, 27th June, 1842.

Communicating rules for the preparation of the Monthly and Annual Criminal statements, with new forms.

THE Court of Nizamut Adawlut having completed the revision of the monthly and annual criminal statements on which they have been for some time engaged, I am directed to transmit to you the accompanying new forms* of statements which have been devised for submission by the session judges and magistrates respectively, as enumerated in the subjoined list, together with separate rules for guidance in preparing the statements of each of those departments, and to request that you will introduce the monthly forms from the commencement of the year 1843, and adopt the yearly form in the preparation of the annual criminal returns for that year, prescribing a similar introduction and use by the magistrate (or magistrates) subordinate to you, to whom such of the statements and instructions as appertain to their department should be duly communicated.

---

* The forms are supplied by the Sudder Court, and are consequently not reprinted.

2. The more comprehensive form of these statements, in consequence of the various additions and alterations which have been made in devising them, and the increased utility likely to result from them, as records of information and check, will be obvious ; and the mode of their preparation, together with the way in which one part corresponds with another, and thus constitutes a powerful means of detecting error, is fully detailed in the rules appended to this letter.

3. But to ensure any practical value in these returns, care and attention in their preparation, and unabated vigilance in their supervision, are absolutely essential. Your duty, in revising the magistrate's statements, will be, not only to see that they are technically accurate, and that no part of the information they are expected to contain is wanting, but to ascertain, as far as they supply means of judging, whether the several officers subordinate to you have been assiduous in the discharge of their duties. You will notice any irregularity that may appear on the face of the statements, taking such immediate steps as consist with your competency to correct the same, calling for explanation on any points that may require it, and briefly stating on the return, under the head of remarks, the nature of any orders which you may have issued to the magistrate or his subordinates.

4. The above observations apply with equal force to all returns, monthly and yearly, submitted through your office. Your annual report on the administration of criminal justice should, besides, advert to the following general points.

5. Too exclusive stress appears to have been heretofore laid on the proportion borne by acquittals to convictions, in the number of persons apprehended on criminal charges, as well as in cases of commitment to the sessions, viewed as a criterion for estimating the efficiency of the administration of a district,—the recognized principle having been, that any considerable disproportion between the number of persons apprehended in a zillah in any month, and the number whose cases the magistrate has been able to prosecute to punishment or commitment, must be regarded as presumptively showing that a great proportion had been subjected to seizure without reasonable grounds,—a rule which, though abstractedly true, is open, when adopted as an invariable test for judging of the efficiency or otherwise of a system, to the objections, on the one hand, of its causing a magistrate to desire the conviction and punishment of the parties tried and finally disposed of in his own court, in order to show fair returns ; and, on the other, of inducing the same officer to abstain from the commitment or to resist the apprehension, in the progress of an investigation, of all persons of whose conviction at the sessions he is not before certain, and of favoring the concealment and suppression of offences by the darogah of police from his over caution not to send in persons without a certain quantum of proof to convict them, and his apprehension of being censured for so doing. Though, therefore, when the acquittals may much exceed the convictions, cause for inquiry is doubtless shown, which it should be your duty to institute and the result of which you should note, yet you ought not to assume as disparaging to the system of a district a circumstance which may admit of satisfactory explanation ; nor, on the other hand, pronounce a preponderance of convictions to indicate successful management, without first ascertaining how many judgments by the the magistrate were appealed to, and reversed by, the session judge, or in how many cases the punishment on conviction was so light as to render it not worth while to appeal, and what was the issue of the commitments made to your court.

6. In reciting the detail of orders confirmed, modified, or reversed by your court, in cases carried up in appeal by parties dissatisfied with the magistrate's decision, you will state what opinion of the general character of the proceedings of that officer, or the authorities subordinate to him, such revision has enabled you to form. Any other circumstances which may appear to you worthy of being noted concerning this branch of your controlling duties, will be acceptable to the Court as a further means of estimating the efficiency of the magisterial body, and the success of their administration.

7. The opinion which you may form of the proceedings of the magistrate and his subordinates, from the result of the commitments made to your court, should be recapitulated in your report, with such prominent reference to particular cases, whether convictions, acquittals, or commitments cancelled during the year, as may serve to illustrate your remarks.

8. In reviewing the performances of the year, you will not fail to advert to the share taken by the several officers subordinate to the magistrate in the disposal of foujdaree business, and to the manner in which they have severally discharged their duties. The magistrate should therefore be required to report specifically on these points, with reference to the joint magistrate and assistants (if any) under him, and to the native judges and law officers. The services rendered in this department by the native judges should be distinctly brought into view, and the result of the appeals from their orders noticed by the magistrate.

9. The considerations in the foregoing paragraph, involving the nature and extent of the auxiliary agency in the criminal department, connect themselves closely with a subject to which your best attention should be directed, and which should be noticed in your report, viz. the long, moderate, or short duration of a criminal case, as affecting the convenience of parties and witnesses therein, and as indicative of a sound and effective system or the reverse. When therefore the average number of days during which cases were under trial in a district, appears excessive, or when great variation of time may be known to exist between one year or district, and another, the causes should be carefully investigated, and the principle of calculation tested, that is to say, whether the period is computed from the date of apprehension by the police (as it should be) or from the date of arrival at the sudder station of the magistrate.

10. As respects your own court, particulars will be expected of the extent of the use of the jury or assessor system in criminal trials, and the degree of success attending it, of the mode of selecting such agency, (to illustrate which a new form, No. 13, has been devised ;) and of the defects or abuses found or suspected to prevail in making use of it, with your opinion of the best remedy.

11. Besides the points noted, the Court request that you will bring to their notice whatever you may consider worthy of remark either in the laws in force, or in the instruments for administering them, comprehending such information of the condition of the district under you, as local experience and observation will readily supply, but to convey which the most elaborate figured statements would be inadequate.

12. In order to ensure the requisite information being furnished irrespectively of changes of officers, the Court direct that whenever a session judge may deliver over charge of his office preparatory to any thing beyond a temporary absence, he shall place on record a minute, containing particulars of the nature aforesaid, and his opinion on the several points to which allusion has been made, for the use of his successor, and eventually for submission to the Court.

13. A supply of blank lithographed forms of each description of statement sufficient for immediate use, is herewith forwarded ; and you will in future indent* on the Court for every fresh supply you may require, making such timely applications as to admit of the forms reaching you before those last furnished are entirely exhausted, so as to obviate delay in the submission of the statements at the prescribed period, or the necessity of having recourse to manuscript forms.

* The Court prescribed the submission of the following form on the 1st October of every year, for forms that will be required for the ensuing year, to allow of the timely despatch of the requisite supply.

FOR THE PREPARATION

OF

SESSION JUDGE'S STATEMENT NO. I.

MONTHLY AND ANNUAL.

PART I.

Officers Employed.

1. THE rules detailed in paragraphs 1 to 5 of the remarks relating to the magistrates' statements, regarding the reports to be made and the forms to be observed on the occasion of changes of officers, will be equally applicable to the session judges.

" 23rd Jany. 1835, " W. P.

2. Whenever a session judge delivers over charge of the current duties of his office to an officer, not authorised to act as judge, he will call the attention of the relieving officer to the rules which define and limit the functions he is competent to discharge, as well as to the preparation and transmission of such statements and reports as the session judge may, under the rules in force, be required to submit to the Nizamut Adawlut, or to Government, as the case may be.

C. O. 6th February, 1835, No. 161, L. P. and W. P.

Columns 1, 2, 3 and 4.

3. These columns should present a transcript of columns 22, 23 and 24, of the statement relating to the period preceding that under report.

Column 5.

4. This column should be an exact counterpart of column 12, part 1, of the magistrates' Statement No. I, part I.

Session Judge's Statement No. 1—Monthly and Annual.

5. Until the receipt of the roobukaree, which the magistrate is required, by paragraph 24 of the rules prescribed for his guidance, to send at the close of each month to the session judge, that officer should not prepare his Statement No. I.

6. Session judges are required, on first taking up a trial, carefully to compare the written charge on which the prisoner is committed, with the facts of the case as stated in the magistrate's roobukaree of commitment, and, in that stage of the proceedings, to cause the latter to rectify errors or supply omissions. When, therefore, it may be necessary to direct any alteration of the charge on which a prisoner may have been committed, the session judge will distinctly indicate, in his order to the magistrate, the specific heading and number under which the case should be included in his Statement No. I, Part I ; and the session judge will postpone entering the case in his own Statement No. I, until he receives intelligence from the magistrate of the order having been carried into execution. [See rule 63.]

C. O. 22nd Feby. 1833, No. 135.

7. A case is to be considered as pending before the sessions court, from the date of the commitment, of which the magistrate is required to give immediate notice to the session judge. The case should be regularly entered in the calendar of postponed trials, until finally disposed of by an order for conviction or acquittal, or by a reference to the Nizamut Adawlut. The same rule will apply whether the decision of the case may have been delayed, in consequence of further proceedings having been called for, or owing to the session judge not having entered upon it, or not having had time, after commencement, to complete it before the close of the month, or by the operation of any other cause.

Columns 6 and 7.

8. Cases remanded for further investigation or from other cause, and the persons appertaining thereto, will be entered in these columns.

9. Whenever a case originally referred to or called for by the Court, has been sent back to a session judge, he will report in the next letter submitting his monthly jail delivery statements, whether the further inquiry has been completed or not, and, if not, explain the causes which have prevented its completion ; and he will continue to do so every month, until the further investigation has been completed, and the proceedings transmitted to the Court, which fact will also be duly noticed.

11. Will show the aggregate of columns 3, 4, 5, 7 and 9.

Columns 11 and 12.

12. It has been determined that, under the spirit of the Regulations in force, session judges are competent, under certain circumstances, to cancel commitments made by the magistrates of their respective zillahs; but they are required to use the greatest caution in exercising this power, and, on each occasion of having recourse to it, to submit an English report, detailing their reasons for following that course, to the Nizamut Adawlut.

Columns 22, 23 and 24.

19. The principle contained in paragraphs 29, 30 and 33, of the magistrate's rules, should be followed, so far as they are applicable, in filling up these columns.

PART II.

Under Trial.

20. The entries under this head will, during the month and at the close, be governed by the principle laid down in paragraph 74 of the magistrates' rules.

PART III.

Convicted and Sentenced.

21. The 1st and 2nd of the items, in the detail of years, given in this part, are intended to provide for cases in which the session judge may direct an additional period of imprisonment, in lieu of corporal punishment, beyond the extreme limit of imprisonment which he is competent to award under the law.

22. The total of this part should correspond with the total of convictions in column 14, part I.

PART IV.

23. In this part will be entered the total amount of fines imposed, under Regulation II. of 1834, during the period to which the statement has reference, and the whole amount of fines realized under the Regulation cited, in whatever month they may have been imposed.

PART V.

24. With the exception of abridging the headings, no alteration has been made in this statement.

25. The session judges, who have more than one magistrate or joint magistrate possessing separate jurisdiction, subject to their authority, will, with statement No. I, which includes the commitments of all the lower tribunals, Abstract of Sessions Operations.

31. This statement supersedes the memorandum contained in the letter reporting the close of sessions.* The entries in the first column will represent the number of cases on the file of the sessions court in the course of the month, the number decided during that period, and number pending at its close. The entries in column 2 will correspond with the aggregate of columns 3 and 4, the totals of columns 5, 7, 9, 10, 12, 14, 16, and 18 to 21, and the aggregate of columns 23 and 24 of statement No. I, part I, and the total of column 3, with the aggregate of columns 2 and 3, heading No. 5, statement No. I, part II.

SESSION JUDGE'S STATEMENT No. VI.

MONTHLY.

Column 1.—Prisoners punished without reference to the Nizamut Adawlut.

32. This statement, with the exception of columns 1 and 3, which have now been added, is the same as that which has hitherto been in use. The object of column 1, (the numbers entered in which should represent the numerical order in which the trials were decided at any given jail delivery,) is to enable the Court to identify a case in statements Nos. 6 and 7, in which some of the prisoners may have been convicted and others acquitted or referred: the number borne by any case of this mixed character, will accordingly be the same in each of the statements.

Session Judge's Statements Nos. 6 and 7—Monthly.

Column 2.

33. In column 2 should be inserted the number borne by the prisoner in the session judge's record of trial, and, being intended more precisely to indicate the individual regarding whom explanation may be required by the Superior Court, on inspection of the statement, or whose cases may be called for, the greatest accuracy is essential in the entries of this column. [See also rules 56 to 61.]

Column 3.

34. Column 3 is inserted for the purpose of tracing the case in the session judge's statement No. 1: accordingly, the number entered in this column will correspond with the number of the offence under which the prisoners may have been brought on in statement No. 1. The total number of persons shown in this statement should correspond with the number entered in column 14 of the session judge's No. 1. [See also rules 56 to 61.]

SESSION JUDGE'S STATEMENT No. VII.

MONTHLY.

Columns 1 to 3—Criminal Trials regularly referred to the Nizamut Adawlut.

35. The remarks contained in the two preceding paragraphs apply to the first three columns of this statement also. Those cases alone, in which the session judges are not competent under the law to pass a final sentence, but are required to submit the case for the final orders of the Nizamut Adawlut, are to be entered in this statement. Cases which may be called for by the Court on inspection of the monthly returns, or in the presentation of a petition, will not be entered in this statement.

Columns 15 and 16.

36. The final roobukaree of the trial of a case should invariably record the order for referring the case to the Superior Court; and the date of such roobukaree should be entered in the first of these two columns; and in the second should be entered the date of the letter which accompanies the references to the Nizamut Adawlut.

37. Session judges will enter the particulars in the first 16 columns of this statement, and leave the remaining columns to be filled up in the office of the Nizamut Adawlut.

39. Instances having occurred of functionaries in charge of the office of the session judge, forwarding statements of prisoners punished without reference, or acquitted by the session judge, with the column of "explanation and remarks" blank, in consequence of the absence of the session judge on leave; the Court direct that the session judges will in all possible cases prepare the statements before they avail themselves of their leave, or furnish the officer in charge with a certificate of the cause of their inability to do so, to be submitted with the statements.

Postponed Trials.

43. All trials in which the final sentence has not been passed up to the close of the month, should be entered in this statement, under the rule laid down in paragraph 7. Such entry should be regularly repeated until they may have been finally disposed of by an order for conviction or acquittal, or by a reference to the Nizamut Adawlut. The total number of persons, as shown in this statement, should correspond with the total number contained in columns 23 and 24 of the session judges' statement No. I., part I, and with heading 3, columns 2 and 3, part II., of the same statement, and with the total of column 3 of the magistrates' statement No. III., part I.

44. The session judge will annex his remarks, explanatory of any delay that may have occurred in disposing of the commitments.

45. It being necessary to provide against the prolonged confinement of prisoners, in cases postponed by session judges, and also to afford sufficient time to procure the attendance of the necessary witnesses, the Court direct that no criminal trial shall be postponed by a session judge beyond the session of jail delivery which may be held next after the expiration of the period of six months from the date of commitment, except when, for special reasons, the session judge may be of opinion that it should be again postponed, when he will report the circumstances under which it has already been postponed, and the grounds on which he has formed his opinion, for the orders of the Court.

SESSION JUDGE'S STATEMENT No. XII.

ANNUAL.

47. In this statement will be entered all cases recorded as disposed of in statement No. 3, but not the appeals from the magistrate and his subordinates. The headings of the several columns sufficiently indicate their application, and render any rules unnecessary.

SESSION JUDGE'S STATEMENT No. XIII.

ANNUAL.

48. This new statement is intended to exhibit the principle of selection of individuals to act as jury or assessors, under Regulation VI. of 1832, in the conduct of criminal trials, by a reference to the rank, profession, and other similar particulars, of persons so selected, calculated to illustrate the working of the system, and the degree of success attending the practical application of the law.

SESSION JUDGE'S STATEMENT No. IX. A.

MONTHLY AND ANNUAL.

49. Session judges with more than one magistrate subordinate to them, will embody the information in the several returns No. 9, of the magistrates, in the form given in statement No. IX. A. for submission to the Nizamut Adawlut; and session judges with only one magistrate under them, will require that officer to submit two copies of No. 9, one of which will be recorded in the sessions court and the other submitted to the Court.

General Remarks.

50. It is incumbent on session judges carefully and promptly to revise the statements submitted to them by the magistrates, and immediately to notice any irregularity or excess of power exhibited in those returns, calling for, and demanding, explanations when necessary, and pointing out any errors that may be apparent in them; and in forwarding the explanations of the magistrates or joint magistrates, session judges must invariably state whether they consider them to be sufficient or otherwise.

C. O. 15th Jany 1836, No. 190, L P.

51. In regard to the statements submitted to the Nizamut Adawlut through the session judges, those officers should not consider themselves as merely the channel of transmission. The statements, after revision, should not only convey the necessary local information, but afford proof of the revising officer's attention having been vigilantly directed to the proper use of the information so supplied, which consists in the timely notice of those errors or excesses of authority that it may bring to light; and the Court request, therefore, that the session judges will note upon the statements any orders they may have issued in regard to them, and submit copies of any correspondence which may have taken place with the magistrate or joint magistrate on the subject.

C. O. 9th June 1837, No. 234, L. P.

52. If session judges do not act thus, they not only fail to discharge the functions belonging to their office, to the detriment of their local utility in controlling the magistrates; but the correction of the errors is retarded until the inspection of the statements by the Nizamut Adawlut, and until the issue and transmission of the orders required on them. The time and attention of the Nizamut Adawlut are thus occupied by topics which, though in themselves of high importance, can be more effectually treated and disposed of by the local authorities.

53. Session judges will take measures to secure the punctual despatch of the statements at the prescribed periods: the main object of reports of this nature is defeated by their not being submitted to the authority by whom they are to be revised, immediately after the close of the period to which they refer; and it is expected that in future the monthly and half-yearly statements will be submitted within fifteen days after they have become due (vide paragraph 5 of the magistrates' rules) and the annual ones on or before the 1st of February of each year.

C. O. 27th Nov. 1835, No. 185, para. 14, W. P.

54. In submitting their monthly statements, the session judges will continue to accompany them with a letter reporting the close of the session, in the form given below,* which, with a slight modification, is the same as the one heretofore in use. The information formerly contained in the memorandum appended to the letter, being now furnished in statement No. V., will be omitted here. [See rule 62.]

To the Register of the Court of Nizamut Adawlut, Lower (or North-Western) Provinces.

SIR,

I have the honor to report, for the information of the Court of Nizamut Adawlut, that I held sittings in the sessions court on the 10th, 11th, 18th, 24th, 25th, 26th, 27th, 28th and 29th, a period of nine days of the month

Supplementary Rules.

55. Appeals instituted under Act IV. of 1843, from orders passed by magistrates in the exercise of the powers vested in them by Act 53, George III. Chapter 155, and also from those passed by them as justices of the peace, will be included in the first section of statement No. IV. ; and with a view to the eventual information of Government, respecting the working and effects of the law first cited, a note will be appended in the column of remarks distinguishing those two classes of appeals from ordinary cases.

Statement No. IV.

56. It appearing to the Court that the rules* regarding the numbers to be borne by the prisoners and cases, respectively, in the session statements, are defective, and that a want of uniformity is the result, the following instructions are supplied.

These instructions supersede the Circular Orders of the presidency Court, dated 14th July and 24th November 1843, and 23rd February 1844.

57. All prisoners committed by a magistrate, in any one month, are numbered by that officer in his calendar of commitments in one continuous series, commencing and terminating with the month, the last serial number indicating the number of persons committed during that period. These numbers should be carefully retained by the session judge in column 2 of his statements Nos. VI. to IX., and column 1, statement No. X., as the case may be.

Statements Nos. VI. to X.

Each magistracy will have a separate monthly series of numbers for prisoners committed to the sessions court, so that, if a session judge has three magistracies under him, there will be three series of numbers for prisoners. In districts where there may be two or more officers, vested with the full powers of magistrate, the magistrate of the district will number in one series the whole of the prisoners committed by himself and his subordinates in any one month, and, to enable him to do this, will require the officers who have the power of making commitments, to furnish him with a report of the number of commitments made by each and the number of prisoners in each case.

58. With the object of bringing the particular series, to which such prisoners belong, more distinctly into view, session judges will note under each case, in column 1 of statements Nos. VI. to IX., the month in which it was committed.

59. The disposals by the session judge in any one month will prescribe the serial numbers to the cases, each series commencing with the first and terminating with the last case decided in each sessions, and the last number of the series being equal to the number of cases disposed of in the same period.

Statement No. X.

60. Under the above rules, the cases entered in statement No. X. will be necessarily unprovided with numbers, and hence no column is assigned to that purpose.

61. It is essential to the formation of a just estimate of the discretion exercised by the several officers, vested with the power of making commitments to the sessions, that the name of the committing officer should be recorded in each case, and this not only in one statement, but in all in which such case may appear. This practice, however, has not been strictly and generally observed, owing, it is apprehended, to the absence of specific direction to that effect in the rules framed for the preparation of the session statements, which assume that the session judges are familiar with the scope and object of such record. To leave no doubt on the subject, the Court are pleased to direct that session judges, when preparing their returns for submission to the Court, will invariably specify in each of their statements, i. e., in column 9 of statements Nos. VI. and VIII., in column 13 of statements Nos. VII. and IX., and in the 1st section of column 3, statement No. X., not only the official designation, but the name also of the committing officer.

62. The Court are pleased to direct that, when there may be no matter for entry in any of the session forms, submitted to this Court, session judges will pass their pen through the designation of such statement or statements in the letter prescribed by paragraph 54 of the rules, and that they will discontinue the transmission of blank returns, as heretofore usual in some districts.

Statement No. I.

63. The entries under headings Nos. 3, 31 and 32, of statement No. I., part I, will be governed by the principle laid down in paragraph 135 of the magistrates' rules.

Supplementary Rules.

64. The use of the subjoined form of Statement is prescribed in order to show the manner in which Act XVI. 1850 is applied, and will occupy the space below part 4, No. 1. [L. P. 13th May, 1851, No. 58.]

RULES

OF

THE MAGISTRATE'S STATEMENTS.

MAGISTRATE'S STATEMENT No. I.

MONTHLY AND ANNUAL.

PART I.

Officers Employed.

1. UNDER this head should be entered the name of the officer emlpoyed and his official designation, and, if any changes have taken place, the date of each officer's entering on office, and the date of his delivering over charge. [See rules 112, 113.]

2. Each such change should be immediately reported direct to the Nizamut Adawlut, by the magistrate or joint magistrate delivering over and receiving charge; and the magistrate will, in like nmaner, report the occurrence of all such changes among his assistants.

3. A copy of the order under which an officer may deliver over charge of his office, need not accompany the report; but the authority for so doing, the date of order, and the nature of the power vested in the relieving officer, should be stated in the report.

C. O. 5th Dec. 1834, L. P. ,, 7th Nov. 1834, W. P. ,, 23rd Jany 1835, } No. 157.

4. Magistrates and joint magistrates, on delivering over charge of their offices, are required to furnish the relieving officer with a list of all unanswered letters, and of all periodical reports and statements which, having become due, have not been forwarded to the Court. A certificate of this list having been severally given and received, will accompany the report required by paragraph 2.

C. O. 25th Sept. 1835, No. 179.

5. Periodical reports and statements are to be considered as due immediately on the expiration of the month, quarter, half year, or year, to which they relate.

Magistrate's Statement No. I.—Monthly and Annual.

Description of Crimes.

6. The Court have had frequent occasion to notice the loose and immethodical manner in which magistrates enter an offender in this statement. Instead of recording him under the heading provided for his offence by the statement, he is frequently entered under a new heading introduced into the miscellaneous class, in terms unnecessarily detailed. For example, the designation "killing by shooting with a matchlock with previous intent to kill," is perhaps resorted to, when the term "wilful murder" both represents the offence with greater accuracy and precision, and is more consonant with usage. By increased attention to the systematic classification of offenders,* with reference to the offences with which they stand charged, the Court are of opinion that the catalogue of miscellaneous offences is susceptible of being much reduced.

7. From the vague and ill-expresed wording of the headings meant to designate miscellaneous offences, it is moreover apprehended that these entries are often the result of a merely literal translation from the Urdu catalogue of offences made in the office of the magistrate, who ought, however, to satisfy himself that such translations represent the offences in an idiomatic and intelligible way.

8. It not unfrequently happens that a party, brought before the magistrate for a particular offence, on investigation by that officer, is ascertained to have been guilty of another of a graver character on which the magistrate convicts or commits him; but there does not appear to be any uniform and fixed principle of entering such cases in the periodical statements. To supply this defect the Court of Nizamut Adawlut are pleased to direct that the statements shall be prepared in accordance with the following rules.

9. When, out of several individuals apprehended and sent in, in any one case, some are convicted or committed for various offences, and some are acquitted, the whole of the prisoners implicated in the case should be entered in the 10th and preceding columns, under the heading which designates the gravest offence for which one or more of them may have been sent in; the acquittals being noted in column 13 under that offence, and the convictions in column 11 under the lesser offence or offences of which they may be respectively found guilty by the magistrate, a note being also furnished under the head of "remarks," indicating the particular heading under which the offender originally appeared, and the commitments in column 12 under the gravest crime for which it may be thought proper to commit one or more individuals in the case. [See rules 90 and 135.]

10. In like manner, when one or more offenders stand charged with more than one offence, partaking of the same character, they should be entered in the 10th and preceding columns under the graver offence, regard being had to the rule contained in paragraph 9, concerning the mode of exhibiting them after disposal.

11. When one or more persons are concerned in two or more cases of different characters, they will be entered in the 10th and preceding columns, under the distinct headings applicable to such cases, the mode of entering them after disposal being the same as that indicated in paragraph 9.

12. When the crime in all the cases is identical, the number of entries of the persons will correspond with the number of cases. [See rule 95.]

Column 2.—Number of Crimes ascertained to have been committed.

13. In this column should be included the whole of the crimes ascertained to have been committed during the period to which the statement relates, whether the offenders have been apprehended or not; and magistrates are not to confine themselves for information on this point to the reports of their police officers, but ought to acquire a more accurate knowledge from other channels; and landholders and farmers and their local agents should especially be encouraged to furnish immediate intelligence of all heinous crimes committed within the limits of their respective estates and farms. C. O. 15th Augt. 1809, No. 54.

Columns 3, 4 and 5.—Under trial at the commencement of the month or year.

14. These columns should exactly correspond in details and totals with columns 17, 18 and 19, respectively, of the statement for the period preceding that reported upon.

Columns 6 and 7.—Number of cases and persons brought to trial.

15. In these columns should be entered all cases of complaint lodged in the magistrates' court during the period embraced by the statement, whether the individuals concerned may have been under personal restraint, held to bail, at large on their own recognizance, or merely attending on summons; and the total of column 7 should correspond with the third or total column of statement No. I., part II. [See rules 91 and 94.]

Magistrate's Statement No. I.—Monthly and Annual.

Columns 8 and 9.—*Received by transfer.

16. These columns should exhibit such cases and prisoners as may have been made over by the authority of another jurisdiction or power, to the magistrate, for disposal; and in the "remarks" the names of the districts, jurisdictions, or powers, should be carefully noted, to enable the Court to ascertain that they have been correctly entered in the statements of the transferring district, if within the jurisdiction of the Court, or that the discrepancy may be accounted for if transmitted by an authority not under the control of the Court.

Column 10.—Total number of persons under trial.

17. The aggregate of columns 4, 5, 7 and 9, should be exhibited in this column.

Column 11.—Convicted.

18. In filling up this column, regard should be had to the rule contained in paragraph 9, whenever the same may be applicable. [See also rule 151.]

Column 12.—Committed.

19. The remark in the preceding paragraph applies to this column also. Some magistrates are in the habit of committing prisoners on a charge of "affray with murder;" but if the offence be attended by any aggravating circumstances, rendering it doubtful whether the killing did not amount to murder, the commitment should be for "murder," the charge of "affray with homicide" furnishing a second count.

,, 15th Jany. 1836, No. 190, ,, 13, L. P.

20. Others, again, enter cases of "killing thieves" in the detail of heading 41 (miscellaneous of the former statement.) Such cases, however, except when accompanied by aggravating circumstances warranting a commitment for murder, (in which event a note should be given under the head of "remarks," stating that the party killed was a thief, slain in the act of committing a burglary, or theft, as the case may be,) should be entered under heading 5, or "culpable homicide."

21. Where there is any doubt as to whether the accused is guilty of a higher or lower grade of an offence of the same character, the commitment should be for the higher grade. Thus if it be doubtful from the evidence before the magistrate whether the offence amounts to murder or only to culpable homicide, the commitment should be for murder. On the other hand, where a doubt exists as to whether a commitment should be made for knowingly receiving plundered property or for the actual robbery, the prisoner should be committed on both counts, and entered under the heading of the more heinous charge of robbery.

22. Magistrates are required, whenever they may commit a prisoner for trial, immediately to intimate the same to the session judge; and the observance of this rule, the Court remark, is of importance, as it is calculated to ensure uniformity between the magistrate's statement No. I., and the session judge's No. I. (submitted to the Nizamut Adawlut). The roobukaree containing this information, which should be written and despatched as soon as the commitment has been made, should specify the precise charge on which the prisoner or prisoners have been committed, the number that the offence bears in the statement, and an abstract of the grounds of the commitment.

23. Should the session judge see reason to direct any alteration of the charge on which a prisoner may have been committed, he will distinctly state in his order the heading and number under which the case should be included in the statement; to which order the magistrate will conform, by removing the prisoner from the heading under which he was originally committed in column 12, and entering him in the same column under the heading indicated by the session judge; but no alteration must be made in any of the other columns. The magistrate will give immediate notice to the session judge that he has carried the order into execution.

Column 13.—Acquitted.

25. The rule contained in paragraph 9, in regard to acquittals, should be observed in making the entries in this column.

Cases of zemindars and other landholders, burkundazes, chowkeedars, and other officers of police, who may have been summoned to the sudder station to answer for neglect of duty, and discharged after admonition, as well as those of persons released on mochulka when not convicted of any specific offence, shall be entered under the head "acquitted," a note being added in the "remarks" to distinguish the number of prisoners so discharged, from those who may have been otherwise acquitted. [See rules 92, 93 and 151.]

Column 14.—Died.

26. The deaths of such offenders as may die prior to a sentence being passed in their cases, are to be recorded in this column, under the heading designating the crimes with which they stood respectively charged.

Prisoners who may have effected their escape, as well as offenders who, being at large on bail, recognizance, or under summons, may have absconded prior to the decision of their cases, should be entered in this column under the headings appropriated to the crimes with which they were respectively charged.

Column 16.—*Transferred.

28. Prisoners apprehended in the district and made over for trial to another district or authority, whether within the jurisdiction of the Nizamut Adawlut or beyond its control, should be entered in this column, and the names of the districts or authorities, to whom they have been transferred for trial, should be carefully noted in the remarks, to enable the Court to ascertain that such offenders have been duly accounted for in the statement of the receiving authority, if under the control of the Nizamut Adawlut, or, if not subordinate to the Court, that the cause of the discrepancy necessarily arising, may be apparent.

Column 17.—Cases under trial at the close of the month or year.

* As commitments made by Officers in charge of thannahs of several zillahs are sometimes transferred for trial to a zillah other than that in which the crime was perpetrated, the Court direct that such commitments be entered in column 16 ("transfer") of statement No. I. of the district in which the crime was committed, and in columns 8 and 9 ("received by transfer") and 12 ("committed") of statement No. 1 of the district in which the commitments are to be tried, a note being added in each statement explanatory of the circumstances of the case.

Column 18.—Prisoners in Jail at the close of the month or year.

30. The number of prisoners in duress at the close of the month, whose cases were still pending, is to be shown in this column. The total however will not invariably represent the actual number of prisoners in confinement, (which will be shown in part VIII,) but may frequently be in excess of that number, in consequence of one or more prisoners being implicated in more than one case.

31. When the true number of prisoners under trial in jail, as shown in part VIII, statement No. I, may exceed 50, an explanation of the cause should be given under the head of "remarks."

32. In all complaints for offences which are clearly bailable, the magistrate is required to apprise the party that security will be received for his appearance, and at the same time to state the amount; and whenever any persons charged with bailable offences are detained in jail, the grounds of their detention should be stated under the head of "remarks."

C. O. 10th Jany. 1823, No. 272.

Column 19.—Persons on Bail at the close of the month or year.

33. All persons whose cases were pending at the close of the period reported on, whether the individuals had been released on bail or personal recognizance, or were simply attending on summons, are to be entered in this column. The nominal excess, noticed in paragraph 30, may frequently occur here also. Persons who have given bail or mochulka to keep the peace, or to refrain from any act, in cases finally disposed of, are not to be entered in this column.

C. O. 15th Jany. 1836, No 190, L. P. para. 22.

34. Magistrates will submit explanations whenever the real number of persons in attendance to answer charges on bail, mochulka, or summons, as shown in part VIII, statement No. I, may exceed 100.

General Remarks.

35. It will be observed that the aggregate of columns 11 to 16 and columns 18 and 19 will correspond with the total in column 10 as regards each crime, except where persons, having been charged with one offence and convicted or committed on another, are transferred under the rule contained in paragraph 9; but the aggregate of columns 4, 5, 7 and 9, must always correspond with the grand total of column 10.

36. Complaints by petition rejected, on whatever grounds, by the magistrate, without apprehending or summoning the party complained against, will not be entered in this part.

PART II.

Column 1.—Apprehended and Summoned by the Police Officers.

37. The first column of this part should exhibit the total number of persons apprehended and sent in by the police officers, or from whom bail may have been taken by them of their own authority.

Column 2.—By the Magistrate and his Subordinates.

38. All persons attending on summons before the magistrate or his subordinates, as also such persons as the police officers may have been ordered to send in, in consequence of information received by the magistrate independently of those officers' reports, (in which latter case a note to that effect should be furnished in the column of "remarks,") should appear in this column.

Column 3.—Total of apprehensions and attendances on Summons.

39. This column should exhibit the total of the two preceding columns, and should correspond with the grand total of column 7, part I.

PART III.

40. The object of this part is to enable the magistrates and the superior courts to exercise a more efficient supervision and control over the proceedings of the police officers in the performance of the very important duty entrusted to them, of taking cognizance of criminal offences, to which subject the Court request the particular attention of the officers concerned.

43. The object of this part is to show the quantity of work performed by each grade of officers. The total of column 2 will correspond with the aggregate of columns 11, 12 and 13, part I.

Column 1.—Cases disposed of.

44. The number of cases in which the persons entered in columns 11, 12 and 13, of part I, were implicated, should be distributed among the several grades of officers enumerated, in the proportion of their decisions, being entered under their respective designations in this column.

Column 2.—Persons disposed of.

45. A similar distribution to that prescribed in the preceding paragraph should be made of the persons contained in columns 11, 12 and 13, and entered in column 2.

PART V.

Section 1.

46. The total of column 1 should correspond with the total of column 17, part I; the total of column 2 with the total of column 18, part I; and the total of column 5 with the total of column 19, part I.

Section 2.

47. In this section, to which the above rules apply in every respect, should be entered a distribution, with reference to time, of the whole of the cases and persons contained in the 1st section, the totals of the two sections coinciding with each other.

48. The magistrate will always explain briefly, under the head of "remarks," the causes of delay in disposing of the cases of such of those as may have been in any of the above predicaments for a period exceeding three months.

PART VI.

Convictions.

Columns 1 and 2—2 to 3 years.

49. Persons who may have been sentenced to additional imprisonment above two years, in lieu of corporal punishment, should be entered in these columns.

Columns 3 to 5—below 2 years.
Column 7—Security.
Column 8—Dismissed from Office.
Column 9—Flogged.

50. The use of these columns being sufficiently indicated by their respective headings, no remarks appear to be called for. [See rule 139.]

Column 6.—Fined.

51. Prisoners sentenced to fine only, without any additional punishment, should be exhibited in this column. Those in whose cases the fine forms only a part of the punishment, are not intended to be inserted here.

Column 7.—Security.

Column 10.—Total of Convictions.

52. The several totals comprised in this column should denote the number of persons convicted and punished by each grade of officers, and should correspond with the aggregates of columns 1 to 9 in detail; and the grand total of this column should correspond with column 11, part I.

Columns 11 to 14.—Details of Acquittals.

53. The headings of these columns being sufficiently indicative of their use, no directions are necessary.

Column 15.—Total of Acquittals.

PART VII.

Columns 1 to 12.—The number of persons fined and the amount of fines.

55. The headings of these columns afford sufficient directions for filling them up. [See rule 138.]

Columns 13 and 14.—Total of persons fined and the amount of fines.

56. The aggregates of columns 1, 3, 5, 7, 9 and 11, and 2, 4, 6, 8, 10 and 12, should correspond, as regards each grade of officers, and also in total, with columns 13 and 14, respectively, of this part.

Column 15.—Amount realized.

57. In this column should be entered the amount of fines realized from the persons entered in column 13, and, supposing the whole amount imposed to be realized, its total should correspond with the total of column 14. [See rule 97.]

Columns 16 and 17.—Fines imposed in addition to other punishment. Amount realized.

58. All fines imposed as an additional punishment, together with such portion thereof as may have been realized during the period embraced in the statement, should be severally exhibited in these columns. [See rule 98.]

PART VIII.

Column 1.—Under trial during and at the close of the month.

59. Under this head, in the appropriate columns, should appear the number of males and females who have been brought before the magistrate during the month, and those whose cases were still pending at the close of the period, the total corresponding with the total of column 10, part I., which number, minus the number of persons who may have been repeated in consequence of being implicated in more than one case, will show the true number of individuals brought up before the magistrate during the period, and those whose cases were pending at the close of the period. For example, suppose there were

MAGISTRATE'S STATEMENT No. II.

MONTHLY AND ANNUAL.

PART I.

61. In this part should be entered, under the same rules as are prescribed for part I of statement No. 1, every description of crime not enumerated in the catalogue given in that part, for which no specific heading is provided, such, for example, as sodomy; assaults not attended with wounding or personal injury; inconsiderable affrays, i. e., affrays not attended with violent breach of the peace; vagrancy; trespass, &c. &c. The letters of the alphabet in the usual consecutive order should be prefixed to these entries in the "index" column, and the totals of the several columns should be transferred to their corresponding columns in statement No. I. part I., heading 41. [See rules 125 and 143 to 150.]

Magistrate's Statement No. II.—Monthly and Annual.

PART II.

62. Attempts to commit crimes of whatsoever description, both those included under the first 40 headings of statement No. I., part I, and those entered in part I of this statement, (the aggregate of which is shown under heading 41,) should be exhibited in part 2, the former being distinguished by the same numbers as are severally borne by those headings: thus to "attempt at burglary with wounding," No. 17, should be prefixed ;—to "attempt at theft by administering dhatoora," No. 22, &c. &c. The totals of the columns in this part will, in like manner, be transferred to statement No. I., part I., heading 42. [See rules 149 and 150.]

PART III.*

Columns 1, 2 and 3.

63. These columns are intended to show the disposition of the prisoners on the date at which the statement closed, in the several proportions in which they slept within the walls of the jail, or in hospital, or on the roads on that date.

Column 4.

64. Prisoners sent by the magistrate to other districts, but intelligence of whose arrival at their place of destination may not have reached him at the period of the statement being closed, are to be entered in this column under heading 1 or 2, as the case may be.

Column 5.

65. This column will be the aggregate of columns 1 to 4, and will show the total number of prisoners in the actual charge of the magistrate, whether appertaining to his own or other zillahs.

Column 6.

66. The magistrate shall only account for, and include in his monthly statements, such casualties as may occur among prisoners (whether of his own or other districts) under his actual custody or charge. Prisoners in progress to other districts, for work on the roads, or for other reasons, shall be borne in the 4th column of this

A similar rule will apply to such prisoners returning from detached duty; and on this principle, deaths happening among convicts in transit, either going or returning from detached duty, will be accounted for in the returns of the districts they are leaving; and, in respect both to casualties in transit and after arrival, the magistrate to whose district the prisoners may be sent, on obtaining information thereof, will forward the warrant sent with the individuals so deceasing to the magistrate from whose district they came, endorsed with a certificate of death under his official seal and signature.

67. Whenever the mortality may exceed one per cent. per mensem, the magistrate will require the medical officer in charge of the jail to put on record, in the column of remarks, his explanation of the cause of the excess, adding his own comments thereon; and, in cases of very extraordinary mortality, he will make a special report on the subject, for transmission to the Nizamut Adawlut, through the session judge, who will append his own observations on the subject.

Column 8.

69. All convicts, whether belonging to the district to which the statement refers, or to other districts, who may have been sent from the former elsewhere, and notification of whose arrival at the place of destination may have been received, are to be included in this column, under the heading which may be applicable to their cases.

Column 9.

70. Convicts of all descriptions who may have been released, will be entered in this column, under the proper heading.

PART IV.

71. In this part will be entered persons confined in default of furnishing the security required by Regulation VIII. 1818.

PART V.

72. The names of persons who have been confined for a period exceeding three years, on requisition of security, should be entered in this part;—the date of the original or first requisition, the date of the last renewal of the order, and the designation of the revising authority, being inserted in the appropriate columns. The total number of persons exhibited in this part, should correspond with the number in the 7th column of part IV. [See rule 136.]

PART VI.

73*. In this part are to be entered, with the particulars indicated by the headings of the several columns, persons who may be required to furnish security, or penal recognizances, to keep the peace on conviction of any specific offence, conformably to the provisions of Clause 1, Section II., Regulation IV. of 1825, and the interpretation of that enactment contained in Construction No. 831.

MAGISTRATE'S STATEMENT No. III.

MONTHLY AND ANNUAL.

PART I.

74. Herein will be entered all prisoners remaining in custody of the magistrate, whose cases were pending before the sessions court at the close of the period treated of; and the number shown in this statement will correspond with the session judge's statement No. I., part II., columns 2 and 3, heading 5.

MAGISTRATE'S STATEMENT No. IV.

MONTHLY AND ANNUAL.

76. This statement is meant to show the operation of Act IV. 1840; and magistrates should note, in the column of remarks, the number of suits which may have been pending more than three months, with an explanation of the cause of delay in their disposal.* [See rule 141.]

MAGISTRATE'S STATEMENT No V.

MONTHLY AND ANNUAL.

77. The object of this statement is to bring to the notice of the Court all regular criminal trials referred for their orders, the final sentence in which has not been recieved by the magistrate on the last day of the month. It should, therefore, embrace all crminal cases, regularly tried by the session judges, (or commissioners in special cases,) the proceedings in which have been submitted to the Court, and the sentence in which had not been received on that day, whether the same have been regularly referred by the session judge, (or commissioner,) or called for by the Court on inspection of the jail delivery statements, or on petition; as well as cases of either description, which may have been sent back for further evidence or explanation.

MAGISTRATE'S STATEMENT No. VI.

MONTHLY AND ANNUAL.

79. This statement will exhibit the whole of the work disposed of by the magistrate and his subordinates, during the period to which it refers, as also the quantity of business pending before each individual at the close thereof. Columns 1 to 4 will be restricted to the exhibition of cases which appear in the magistrate's statement No. I., part I.; and the remaining columns will embrace all other cases.

* With reference to Act XXVII. of 1845, the Circular of the 2nd July 1847, L. and W. P., prescribed a modified form of this statement from the 1st January 1848.

Magistrate's Statements Nos. VI., VII. and VIII.—Monthly and Annual.

The aggregate of columns 1 and 3 will correspond with the total of column 1., part IV. of the magistrate's statement No. I.; and the aggregate of columns 2 and 4, with the total of column 17, part I., of the same statement. [See rule 111.]

MAGISTRATE'S REMARKS.

80. Under the head of "remarks," will be entered all observations and explanations, illustrative of the statements, which the magistrate may have occasion to make, or which may be required by the foregoing rules.

81. To facilitate reference, the numbers of the particular statement, part, heading, and column, respectively, to which the remarks may bear reference, should invariably be prefixed thereto. [See rules 105 and 106.]

MAGISTRATE'S STATEMENT No. VII.

ANNUAL.

82. The proportion of disposals by each officer should be given, and the totals of columns 2, 4 and 6, should correspond with the totals of columns 11, 12 and 13, of statement No. I., part I., and with the grand totals of columns 1 and 2, statement No. I., part IV., respectively.

MAGISTRATE'S STATEMENT No. VIII.

ANNUAL.

83. It has been supposed by some magistrates that this statement should comprise a record of all their operations of every kind for the year; and accordingly the computation of the average time has been made to include proceedings from other zillahs and other miscellaneous applications and petitions; but this is an error. Cases in which the magistrate acts in his judicial, as distinct from his ministerial capacity, should alone form the subject of this statement; and no cases should appear in it which do not enter into statement No. I., part I., with which it should correspond.

84. Cases in which the agency of the police has been employed should be kept distinct from those in which the accused may have been summoned to appear by the magistrate. [See rules 102 to 104, and 126 to 133.]

Magistrate's Statement, No. IX.—Monthly and Annual—General Rules.

MAGISTRATE'S STATEMENT No. IX.

MONTHLY AND ANNUAL.

85. The magistrate, or other officer in charge of the office of magistrate, will submit this statement, the nature of which is sufficiently indicated by the respective headings, to the session judge, at the close of each month and year, for transmission to the Nizamut Adawlut.

GENERAL RULES.

86. No alterations should on any account be made in any form directed by the Sudder Court to be used; and none but lithographed forms should be made use of, except with their express permission.

C. O. 7th July 1337, No. 235, L. P.

87. The monthly and half-yearly* statements will be submitted by magistrates and joint magistrates, in duplicates, within 10, and the annual, within 15 days after they become due, under rule 5, to the session judges, who will forward one copy to the Court.

C. O 24th Feb. 1837, L P. No. 224.
„ 9th June 1837, L. P. No. 234.

88. The Court have observed that it is not unfrequently urged by the magistrates, that the occupation of their time, in more important duties, prevents the submission of these statements within the prescribed period; and from the terms of the remarks on some of the statements, the preparation of them would appear to be often left to clerks possessing but an imperfect knowledge of the English language. To ensure greater accuracy and punctuality in their despatch, the Court suggest that, where it may be practicable, the duty of superintending them be entrusted to a covenanted assistant, under, of course, the control and responsibility of the magistrate himself; and the duty, they conceive, might be considerably lightened by anticipating arrangements instead of being postponed to the last hour.

C. O. 15th July 1836, No. 201, W. P.

* The half-yearly statements are now sent to the Government.

Supplementary Rules.

SUPPLEMENTARY RULES.

89*. The crime of a prisoner, whose case is pending from a former month, or year, is not to be entered in this column, which is to be exclusively devoted to the exhibition of the crimes ascertained to have been committed within the month, or year, to which the statement relates.

Statement No. I. Part I Column 2.

90. When the case of a party, charged with a lesser offence, lies over to a succeeding month, in which his crime assumes a graver aspect, (as in the case of a prisoner being charged with wounding in one month, and the wounded person dying, in consequence of his wound, in a subsequent month,) he should be entered in column 4 or 5 (as the case may be) under the original charge, and on conviction, or committal, the entry should be made under the heading designating the graver crime of which he may be found guilty, or on which he may be committed (vide rules 9 and 35.)

Statement No. I. Part I.

91. It appears to be the opinion of some officers that, as parties held to bail at the thanna are often unconditionally released by the magistrate on receipt of the thanna reports, without such parties being personally brought to trial by that officer, they should not be entered in column 1, part II, and consequently not in column 7, part I, the heading of which implies only persons "brought to trial." The Court, however, observe, that if it were practicable to frame the headings of statements and forms with a degree of precision fitted to meet every case, there would be no necessity for separate explanatory rules by which to construe the spirit and meaning of such headings; but it is found impracticable to arrive at such precision, and accordingly the number of persons brought to trial in any month is explained, by rule 15 to be identical with the number apprehended or attending on summons. Before bail (which includes moochulka) can be demanded by a thannadar, there must be some antecedent criminal charge, and although the parties released by him on bail may not, strictly speaking, be formally arraigned and tried by the magistrate, yet, when that officer directs their unconditional release, they are constructively tried and acquitted by him.

* The following Circular to the criminal authorities in the Lower and Western Provinces, was issued with the supplementary rules 89 to 105.

With the view of removing doubts, which appear to be entertained, on certain points connected with the preparation of the criminal statements by the magistrates, and of correcting certain errors discovered in the printed rules for the direction of magistrates and their subordinates, the supplementary clauses 89 to 105 are circulated for the information and guidance of the criminal authorities, who are directed to append the present to the rules before prescribed.

Supplementary Rules.

Rule 42 requires that persons of this class shall be comprised in the number entered in column 1, part II; and rule 39, that the aggregate of columns 1 and 2, of this part, shall correspond with the total of column 7, part I.

92. The large proportion which the number of persons bailed by the police officers bears to the integral number of all other descriptions of cases in some zillahs, and their subsequent unconditional release by the magistrate on inspection of the thanna reports without the attendance of the parties, indicate a precipitancy and want of sound discretion which demand the serious attention of the superior authorities. The police officer, who unnecessarily demands bail, from large masses of the population, fails in the due discharge of his duty, equally with the officer who, through neglect, suffers criminals to elude justice. The Court, therefore, after full consideration of the subject, see no reason to make any alteration in rules 15, 39 and 42.

93. When parties released on bail by the police officers, are unconditionally liberated by the magistrate without summoning them before him, they should be entered in column 13, part I, statement No. I, and under the heading, in part 4, statement No. I, of the officer who, after a consideration of the thannadar's report, may direct their unconditional release. If their cases are disposed of after attendance on the magistrate, they should be entered in column 11, 12, or 13, according to the nature of the order passed in the case of each person, and, in the column of remarks, the magistrate may specify the number of persons who have been liberated after trial, and of those who have been released without being summoned before the magistrate. [See rule 134.]

94. A person apprehended and brought to trial in the zillah, for a crime committed in a foreign territory, will be entered in part II, column 1 or 2, as the case may be, and consequently in column 7, part I.

Statement No. 1, Part 1 Col. 7, Part 2.

95. When the crime in all the cases is identical, the nominal number of persons will correspond with the aggregate of the nominal number of persons in each case.

Explanatory of rule 12.

96.* For "Column 14, Transferred," read "Column 16, Transferred."

they were realized, and this without reference to the time when they were imposed.

Statement No. I. Part VII, Col. 16. 98. Fines imposed in lieu of labour, being a punishment in addition to imprisonment, should be entered in this column.

Explanatory of rule 59. Statement No. I, Part VIII. 99. In the 1st column of this part should appear the number of males and females, who have been brought before the magistrate during the month, inclusive of those whose cases were still pending at the close of the former statement, the total corresponding with the total of column 10, part 1, which number, minus a number corresponding with the number of times that one or several persons may have been entered more than once, in consequence of being implicated in more than one case, will show the true number of individuals brought up before the magistrate during the period. In like manner, those whose cases were pending at the close of the period, will appear in the 2nd and 3rd columns.

Rule 56. 100. For "Columns 1 to 11 and 2 to 12," read columns 1, 3, 5, 7, 9 and 11, and columns 2, 4, 6, 8, 10 and 12.

Rule 73. 101.* For the words "preferred against them," which occur in the 3rd line of rule 73, read "proved against them."

Statement No. VIII. Class 1st—Cases in which the agency of the police was employed. 102. The time passed in transit from the thanna to the magistrate's court, will be included in the time entered in the 3rd column of statement No. 8.

Class 2nd—Cases in which the agency of the police was not employed. 103. Cases received from other zillahs will appear in the 2nd class of statement No 8.

Classes 1st and 2nd. 104. Cases, if sent in by the military authorities with the aid of the police, will appear in the 1st class of statement No. 8; if without their aid, in the 2nd class, in which class also will appear cases arising in the jail and cases received from other zillahs.

C. O. 16th Sept. 1842. No. 118, W. P. 105. Magistrates will furnish a note, in the subjoined form, under the heading of remarks on statement No. 1, showing how many burglaries and thefts unattended with personal violence were left uninvestigated under the operation of Clause 2, Section 2, Regulation II. 1832.

"NOTE.—Out of the total number of entries in column 2 under headings 18, 23, 26 and 42 (say 152) 125 were uninvestigated with reference to Regulation II. 1832, viz. under heading 18, 55 cases; under heading 23, 58 cases; under heading 26, 11 cases; under heading 42, 1 case."

106.* Magistrates or officers in charge of magistracies will append a note in the column of remarks, distinguishing the number of cases brought before them as justices of the peace, and any which may be brought before them under Act 53, George III. Chapter 155, the number decided, and the number, if any, removed by writ of certiorari to Her Majesty's Supreme Court in Calcutta.

Statements Nos. I and II.

107.† With advertence to Clause 17, Section 19, Regulation XX. of 1817, the heading "unconditionally released," is hereby discontinued; and the fifth heading will, in future, be appropriated to the exhibition of persons whose cases may be pending investigation at the thanna, at the close of the period to which any given statement may refer.

Statement No. I. Part III.

108. It having been suggested to the Court that, in the absence of specific instructions, magistrates may fall into the error of entering under heading 2 of part III, persons who may have been released on bail and accounted for under heading 4 of this part, in a preceding statement, the Court are pleased to inform those officers, that a bailed prisoner once entered in statement No. I. part III. who will necessarily be transferred to the magistrate's statement No. I, part I, on receipt of the thannadar's report, is not again to appear under the 2nd heading of part III, merely because the magistrate requires his attendance through that officer. The rules which apply to prisoners bailed in the first instance by the magistrate himself, will be applicable to the prisoners bailed by the thannadar from the time they are brought on the magistrate's statement.

109.‡ In order that the Court may be kept informed of the application of Acts III. and V. of 1844, and that materials may be collected to serve as data for judging of the general effects of the enactments in question, at a future period, magistrates will add two tables (to be called parts IX. and X. respectively) to their statements No. I, at the place and in the form indicated by the following exemplar.§

110. It will be observed that the materials for the preparation of part IX, will be drawn from column 9, part VI, and of part X, from column 6, part VI, of which they will respectively be components.

Column 3 of part X will not be confined to the exhibition of the recovery of fines imposed during the period to which the statement

111.* Two additional columns, to be respectively numbered 11 and 12, will be introduced in statement No. 6, for the exhibition of cases prepared by the subordinate for the superior officer. In these columns, respect being had to the officer for whose decision the preliminary investigations were made, and opposite to the designation of the officer who conducted such investigation, will be entered the cases prepared by each subordinate.

Statement No. VI.

112.† With reference to rule 1 for the preparation of the magistrates' statements, the Court observe with satisfaction that the information thereby required to be submitted in part I, statement No. 1, is with a few exceptions correctly furnished. It is however desirable that there be no exception, and that the rule above quoted be made applicable to every officer exercising magisterial functions of whatever degree, whether magistrates, joint magistrates, assistants, principal sudder ameens, law officers, moonsiffs, or deputy collectors. Officers in charge of magistracies are requested to be specially careful in recording the dates of assumption and resignation of each incumbent with accuracy, as the correctness of the annual reports will be tested by this criterion.

113. It being desirable to exhibit in one view the changes in the agency, magistrates are directed to attach additional paper in the manner and at the place shown in the accompanying sample, when the space allotted may not suffice for furnishing the information required by rule 1.‡

114,§ Paragraphs 63 to 70, inclusive, and the jail return designated "statement No. II, part III, disposal of the prisoners and casualties," to which those rules refer, are hereby cancelled.

115. For the statement and rules cancelled by the preceding paragraph, the statement and rules 116 to 124, are substituted.

116. The following statement‖ will be neatly pasted on the old or cancelled statement.

117. The first section of this statement is intended to bring under the observation of the Court instances of undue detention of such witnesses, from their homes, as may have been dismissed prior to the expiry of the period reported on, as well as to furnish data for comparing the management of one magistracy with that of another. Accordingly, all witnesses who may have been in attendance during any part of the period reported on, but who had obtained their discharge before its close, should be entered in the appropriate columns of this section.

118. The longest period any person may have been detained before obtaining his discharge, should be entered in column 15, but no witnesses should appear in this section who may be in attendance at the close of the period to which the statement refers.

Section 2. 119. This section will be appropriated to the exhibition of witnesses in attendance at the close of the period reported on. These individuals, it will be observed, are not to be included in the number entered in the first section.

Section 3. 120. The totals of the several columns of sections 1 and 2, will be exhibited in this section, and the grand total of column 14, will show the exact number of witnesses who may have been in attendance during any portion of the period embraced by the statement.

121. The reasons for the detention of all witnesses beyond eight days should be explained in the column of remarks.

122. In order to illustrate the instructions contained in the four preceding rules, and to prevent the possibility of misapprehension on the part of the clerk who may be charged with the preparing of the statement, the following facts are supposed, and the results noted in the statement given at rule 116.

One witness was in attendance from the 2nd to the 9th April, when he was discharged, consequently he was detained eight days from his home, and should, therefore, appear in the 9th column of section 1.

Two witnesses attended from the 22nd March to the 8th April, when they were discharged, they were consequently eighteen days from their home, and should be entered in the 11th column of section 1.

Four witnesses attended from the 8th to the end of April, without having obtained their discharge, and thus being detained thirteen days, should appear in the 12th column of section 2.

Three witnesses were detained from the 20th March to the end of April, without obtaining their discharge, and ought therefore to appear in column 13 of section 2.

123. At the close of each month the aggregates of columns 8 to 14 of the magistrate's diary, the form of, and the rules applying to which, are circulated under this date,* will be exhibited in columns 2 to 8, section 1, of the abstract (vide rule 116) required to be submitted to the Court, and the total number shown in the 15th column of the former statement will be distributed in columns 9 to 13 of the latter, and the number of persons in attendance on the last day of each month will appear in the columns of section 2 which indicate the time they may respectively have been detained up to that date.

124. In preparing the annual returns nothing more will be necessary than to sum up the totals of columns 2 to 14 of the monthly returns, and enter them in the corresponding columns of the annual statemant, noting the longest period any person may have been detained in column 15; observing the same rule with regard to sections 2 and 3, as is prescribed for the 2nd and 3rd sections of the monthly abstract.

Fractions of days are accounted entire days. Section 3, being nothing more than the aggregate of the 1st and 2nd sections, needs no illustration beyond what is given in rule 120. (See rule 137.)

125.* In order to show the degree in which the responsibility of zemindars is enforced, the magistrates will be pleased in future to enter cases of zemindars and chowkeedars brought up for neglect of duty, under separate headings in statement No. 2, part I.

Statement No. II, part I.

126.† In the magistrate's statements No. VIII, for some districts, the totals of columns 5, 6, 7 and 12 do not show the average time occupied, but the aggregate of the particulars entered for the 12 months, while the statements of other districts are erroneous in regard to columns 8, 9, 13 and 14. With a view, therefore, to the correct preparation of the statements in question for the future, the Court request attention to the following rules:

Statement No. VIII.

127. Column 5 should exhibit the result of dividing the number in column 2 by that in column 1.

128. Column 6 should exhibit the result of dividing the number in column 3 by that in column 1.

129. Column 7 should show the totals of columns 5 and 6 added together.

130. Columns 8 and 13 should exhibit the longest period mentioned in the 12 months, not the totals of all the periods.

131. Columns 9 and 14 should exhibit the shortest period in the 12 months.

132. Column 12 should exhibit the result of column 11, divided by column 10.

133. The average time should not be given in years, or parts of years, but in days, omitting fractions.

134. The 93rd rule for the preparation of the magistrates' statements, provided for the insertion of a note to distinguish the persons released after trial, from those released without being summoned before the magistrate. The Court direct that, in future, the number of persons released after trial be distinguished from those summoned by the magistrates, and those sent in by the police of their own authority. This may be done conveniently by adopting the following form, which comprehends the whole number of persons released :

135.* The practice which has heretofore prevailed of entering Statement No. 1. "riots attended with murder, homicide, or violent breach of the peace," under heading 41 of the magistrate's criminal statement No. I, part I., being considered objectionable, the Court are pleased to direct that riots attended with murder, shall be entered under the heading (No. 3,) appropriated to the exhibition of the latter offence, a note being added in the column of remarks, to distinguish such cases from others of simple murder, and that riots attended with homicide or with violent breach of the peace, shall be aggregated with "affrays," to which they bear some affinity, under headings 31 and 32 of statement No. I, part I., agreeably to the formula given in the margin. This alteration shall take effect from and after the 1st January 1846.

31 Affrays and 32 Riots. { With homicide. / With violent breach of the peace.

136.† Whenever any individual, having been acquitted of a penal act on the ground of insanity, and detained in confinement in default of security, may be entered in part V. of statement No. II, magistrates will be pleased to append a note in the margin distinguishing him from others exhibited in the same part and statement.

137.‡ That the Court may be enabled to ascertain to whom delay in the examination of witnesses may be attributable, the magistrates will be pleased to make the following addition to statement No. II, part III., exhibiting the number of witnesses examined by each magisterial agent, and the periods during which they were detained in attendance by each. The responsibility of delay, and the duty of explaining its cause, will rest on the officer, whether magistrate, assistant, or other, before whom it may occur.

144. The proper arrangement of this class of offences is a very important matter, to which magistrates must, in the preparation of Statement No. II, Part I, direct their personal attention, and class each offence under its appropriate heading. Likewise the sessions judges are required to subject the Statement in question to close examination, and to call upon the magistrate for a general and succinct description of the several cases which may be placed by him under one head, should they have reason to suppose that their classification is incorrect and vague.

145. The offences have been arranged and numbered alphabetically, and in their entries in the column of "description of crimes" in the Statement No. II, Part I. magistrates will be careful to use the terms here applied to each offence, citing marginally the letter and the number belonging to it.

146. Whenever a Magistrate may think it impossible to bring any particular offence under any one of the definitions now published, he will make use of such additional specification as he may think appropriate, reporting the same briefly to the session judge in sending up his monthly statements. The session judge will either note his approval in submitting them to the Nizamut Adawlut, or will direct the magistrate to alter the specification as he may think fit. But whenever a new definition, not included in the list now published, is made use of, it should be written in red ink.

147. The Schedule now published will probably be found imperfect; offences may be brought forward not sufficiently indicated in it. But the Court have no doubt that if magistrates and session judges will give their attention to define carefully any such exceptions, the list will ere long be perfected without difficulty. Session judges are requested in their annual reports to note what new specifications of crime it has been found necessary to adopt, and the Court propose to publish an amended schedule, should such be found necessary, after receiving the suggestions of the judges.

148. The entries, under No. 9 of letter A, and No. 8 of letter S, in the Schedule of offences referred to in Rule 142, viz. "attempts to commit any of the offences detailed in this statement." and "suicide, attempt to commit," having led to a difference of practice in the entry of attempts to commit offences not specified under the first 41 headings of Part I, Statement No. I, in Statement No. II, the Court direct that those entries be struck out of the number of the offences enumerated under the letters A. and S. of the schedule above referred to, and the following rules observed. TO THE SEVERAL CRIMINAL AUTHORITIES IN THE LOWER AND WESTERN PROVINCES.*

Lower and Western Provinces, 6th January, 1842.

No. 99.

Certificates of execution of capital sentences to state the occurrence or non-occurrence of accidents, &c.

I AM directed to communicate, for your information and guidance, the following observations and rule.—

2. The Court observe, that in the execution of sentences of capital punishment in this country, accidents proceeding from the breaking of ropes made use of to hang criminals, are by no means of unfrequent occurrence.

3. In the generality of instances such contingency is without doubt the result of a want of management and due care and foresight, on the part of the officers charged with the execution of the sentence, to whom it cannot but be regarded as exceedingly discreditable. Its effect is equally injurious and to be deprecated, whether the accession of physical suffering caused thereby, or the disturbance of the solemn impression meant be conveyed, and of the operation of the spectacle as a moral example, be considered.

4. The Court are accordingly pleased to direct that in future each certification of the execution of a capital sentence shall include an announcement of no accident, error, or other misadventure having occurred; any occasion of the occurrence of such contingency, with a statement of its cause, of the party to whose fault it was owing, and of the steps taken in consequence, being duly notified in the return warrant.

Instructions given, consequent on Act XXXI. 1841.

IN directing the attention of the officers concerned to the provisions of Act XXXI. 1841, as regards criminal appeals, the Court request they will observe—

† First.—That every order of an assistant to a magistrate not vested with special powers, of a principal sudder ameen, sudder ameen, or law officer, passed in a criminal trial, or proceeding, is appealable to the magistrate, or other officer exercising the powers of magistrate, whose decision on the appeal is final.

Secondly.—That every sentence, or order of a magistrate, joint magistrate, or assistant, vested with special powers, awarding a higher

* Thirdly.—That the law allows no appeal to the session judge from the sentence of a magistrate, joint magistrate, or assistant vested with special powers, awarding a punishment within the limitation prescribed by the above-mentioned enactments.

Fourthly.—That every order of a magistrate, joint magistrate, or assistant possessing special powers, passed in any judicial proceeding, other than a criminal trial, is appealable to the session judge, whose decision thereon is final.

Applicability of rule in paragraph 4 of Circular Order No. 53, 12th June, 1840, to cases of assault.

IT is hereby notified that the principle of the rule in paragraph 4, of Circular Order of the Nizamut Adawlut, No. 53, dated 12th June, 1840, has been held to apply to cases of assault by the Courts of Calcutta and Allahabad, who observe that, while certainly the character of the offence of the assault may frequently be more grave when committed with deliberation, and so far differ from the prevalent descriptions of affray arising from sudden quarrels, still it may safely be left to the discretion of the magistrate to commit or dispose of the case himself, with reference to the nature of the injury, and the apparent intent of the aggressor.

The Court, therefore, direct that, as laid down for the civil department by paragraph 9, of Circular Order, No. 28, dated, Lower Provinces 7th, and Western Provinces 21st December, 1838, the session judges will invariably, prior to delivering over charge of their offices on quitting a district, record a minute to be made over to their successors, containing the particulars referred to, and any other observations or results of experience, they may deem necessary or useful. The above rule is also applicable to magistrates under similar circumstances.

2.* The following extract of the orders of Government is, at the same time, appended relative to the responsibility of magistrates, as explained in the Circular issued by order of Government in the judicial department to commissioners, under date 19th, and published in the Gazette of 27th April, 1841, to which the particular attention of those officers is called. "His honor deems it right to take this opportunity of intimating to the magistrates generally, through the Court, that they will not be exonerated from the responsibility, which attaches to their office, by urging, in extenuation of mal-administration, that the criminal duties were intrusted to the joint magistrate. On this subject a Circular was addressed to commissioners on the 19th April, 1841, and the Court are requested to press the purport of the admonition it contains on the attention of all the judicial functionaries under their control."

TO THE SESSION JUDGES, MAGISTRATES AND JOINT MAGISTRATES IN THE LOWER AND WESTERN PPOVINCES.

Lower and Western Provinces, 18th March, 1842. No. 106.

Instructions with reference to Section V. Act XXXI. 1841.

With reference to the provision in Section V., Act XXXI. 1841, for the sessions and magisterial authorities being empowered to call for and examine the records of courts immediately subordinate to them, to satisfy themselves as to the proceedings of such courts being regular, but without power to alter any sentence or order of such courts, save on appeal regularly made under the Act, the Court notify that it is the duty of the authorities alluded to to report any cases, the circumstances of which, on revision, may suggest the propriety of interference, to the Nizamut Adawlut, in order that that Court may proceed respecting them as shall appear proper.

2. Such reports will always be accompanied by the record of the case to which the reference relates, and by an English letter commencing—"Under Section V., Act XXXI. 1841, and Circular Order of the Nizamut Adawlut, dated 18th March, 1842, I herewith transmit the record of the case, noted in the margin, to be laid before the Nizamut Adawlut, with the following report."—Thereafter will follow a concise account of the irregularity, or other matter, on which the interference of the Court is sought. The magisterial authorities will send these reports, for submission to the Court, through the office of the session judge, to whom they may be subordinate.

3. In thus apprising the local officers of the duty devolving on them under the Act recited, the Court abstain from entering into any detail of the particular occasions on which such reports may require to be made, or attempting to define what descriptions of grave irregularity of procedure, undue severity of punishment, &c., may call for the adoption of the course. It is deemed sufficient to enjoin the officers in question, generally, to exercise a sound discretion in making references to the Court under this rule, so that neither important errors and omissions may escape correction, nor the time of the Court be needlessly engrossed by matters not demanding their interference.

4. Session judges, in referring trials under Section VI. of the Act above quoted, will always indicate the same in the commencement of their letter in form following: "I herewith transmit, to be laid before the Nizamut Adawlut, under Section VI., Act XXXI. 1841," &c. &c.

Lower and Western Provinces, 20th June, 1842.

Prohibition of Government against native judges and law officers trading.

THE Court are pleased to re-publish for general information, the subjoined notification of Government, dated 29th December, 1835, interdicting the engagement of the native judges of all grades and of the law officers of the courts, in any trading speculations; and they request the judges will direct to that order the particular attention of all the officers concerned.

NOTIFICATION.

JUDICIAL AND REVENUE DEPARTMENT,

The 29th December, 1835.

The principal sudder ameens, sudder ameens, and moonsiffs, and the Mahomedan and Hindu law officers of the zillah and city courts, and of the Sudder Dewanny Adawlut under this presidency, are hereby prohibited, under pain of dismissal from office, from being engaged in any trading speculations.

If any principal sudder ameen or other of the officers abovementioned shall be now engaged in trading speculations, or any such speculations shall devolve on him by inheritance, it shall be incumbent on him, within one month, to make known the circumstance to the zillah or city judge, or to the register of the Court of Sudder Dewanny Adawlut, and terminate his connection with such transactions at the earliest practicable period. Should he be unable to do so, within one year, he shall either resign his situation, or submit a report of the circumstances of the case to the judge or register, who will forward it to the Government, or Court of Sudder Dewanny Adawlut, as the confirmation of the officer may be vested in one or other of those authorities, with his own opinion as to the propriety of allowing the officer a further period for the purpose of bringing his transactions to a close. If any of the officers abovementioned shall fail to conform to the above rule, the same penalty shall attach to him as if he had engaged in trade subsequent to the publication of this order.

Candidates for any of the offices abovementioned shall certify in their applications that they are not engaged in any trading speculations; and in the event of their being appointed, and of its being subsequently discovered that they were so engaged at the time of making their application, they shall be liable to be dismissed from office.

Rules of practice fixed by the Nizamut Adawlut, N W. Provinces, with reference to Act XXXI. 1841, regarding the power of the sessions courts to interfere with certain orders of the magistrates.

VARIOUS references have from time to time been made to the Court of Nizamut Adawlut since the passing of Act XXXI. 1841, as to the competency of a judge of sessions, under the terms of that law, to direct the apprehension, with a view to commitment for trial, of a person, the charge against whom has, either with or without the arrest of the party, been investigated and dismissed by the magistrate, on the ground of the insufficiency of the proof against him, or from other cause, in cases which would, if proceeded with, be respectively within or beyond the magistrate's power to dispose of on trial by a final order.

2. In respect to cases of the former description, viz. those which the magistrate could decide of his own authority, the Court have communicated their opinion that the order of that officer for dismissal of the charge must be viewed as a legal acquittal; and could not, in any view, be considered tangible by the sessions court.

3. As regards the other sort of cases, viz. those beyond the magistrate's competency to try, the Court deemed it expedient temporarily to adopt (under protest, and holding themselves a different opinion) the view of the Nizamut Adawlut in Calcutta against the power of interference of the sessions court, pending the result of a reference on the subject which they had requested might be made to the Legislative Council; and instructions of a corresponding tenor were accordingly issued in reply to the references made.

4. The remarks of the Supreme Government having been recorded in the matter, the Court of Nizamut Adawlut, North-Western Provinces, resolve to maintain their view of the power of interference of the sessions court, in the case stated in paragraph 3, and they intimate the same, as a rule of practice; further observing that session judges, in exercising this power, should use caution and discretion, and never subject to commitment and trial, without good grounds, a person in such case released by the magistrate.

TO THE SEVERAL SESSION JUDGES IN THE LOWER AND WESTERN PROVINCES.

Lower and Western Provinces, 29th December, 1842. No. 124.

Regarding the extent to which the provisions of Act IV. 1840, are applicable.

THE Courts circulated the following Resolution for the information and guidance of the criminal authorities.

Resolution of the Presidency Nizamut Adawlut under date the 21st October, 1842.

PRESENT.

R. H. RATTRAY,
C. TUCKER, and
J. F. M. REID, Esqrs., } Judges.

It having been brought to the notice of the Court that a session judge has overruled the proceedings of a magistrate in which he held the provisions of Act IV. 1840, to be applicable to a case involving disputes for the possession of land between a landlord and putneedar, on the ground that by the rule laid down in Construction No. 579, of the 17th December, 1830, such cases could not be brought under Regulation XV. of 1824, and because he conceived the zemindar entitled to the privileges of an auction purchaser, and therefore entitled to oust the putneedar,—they deem it proper to record the following Resolution explanatory of their construction of Act IV. of 1840, for the future guidance of the several session judges within their jurisdiction.

RESOLUTION.

With reference to the very general terms of Act IV. 1840, the Court are of opinion that its applicability cannot be confined within the narrow circle of Regulation XV. 1824, which has been repealed by the present law, by which it is evidently intended to empower the magistrates to inquire into disputes, relating to the possession of lands, of which, before the passing of that enactment, they were not competent to take cognizance.

Construction that contradictory statements on a material point constitute perjury, and form of charge in such cases.

THE Court, having had occasion to take into consideration the state of the law of perjury as ruled by precedent† at page 282, of the 1st Volume of the Nizamut Adawlut Reports, are of opinion, that the mere fact of a witness having wilfully given two statements directly at variance with each other, on a point material to the issue of the case in which he gives his testimony, must be held to be perjury, and that the deponent, on conviction, is punishable accordingly. This opinion is in conformity with the exposition of the Mahomedan law given in the paragraph at the bottom of page 21 of the 2nd Volume of Constructions.

2. Under this construction of the law, the precedent cited will of course be held as superseded, and indictments for perjury in cases of the kind described will in future be drawn out after the following form:—"Charged with perjury in having, on the 25th April, 1840, and on the 5th May, 1840, given contradictory statements on affirmation before the magistrate and session judge of zillah ——— on a point material to the issue of the case."

I have the honor to inform you, that in the execution of my duty of chemical examiner to Government, I have several times been put to much inconvenience by no report or detail of cases being forwarded with substances sent for examination and supposed to contain poisonous matters. When the quantity of material requiring to be analysed is small, and no intimation or clue to its nature afforded by the symptoms it may have produced, some portion is necessarily expended in determining the class of poisonous agents to which it may belong, before any particular experiments can be undertaken with a view to establish its individual nature and composition, and in one or two cases the residue has been so minute as to prevent my being able to give a positive opinion on the subject. In all cases, it is a matter of interest and importance in a professional point of view to have a detail of every case of poisoning to illustrate the chemical examination, and afford such other evidence as may form a useful guide in future and doubtful cases of the same nature.

2. I have the honor therefore to request that all judges and magistrates who may have cases requiring chemical examination, be directed to furnish every detail that can be obtained, both from the civil surgeon and those persons who may depose to the facts of a case, for the information and guidance of the chemical examiner. TO THE MAGISTERIAL AUTHORITIES IN THE LOWER PROVINCES.

Lower Provinces, 16th June, 1843. No. 138.

Rules for abridging the proceedings of the magistrates and police officers in the investigation of criminal offences.

PURSUANT to the wishes of Government, for the abridgment of the proceedings of the magistrates and police officers in the investigation of criminal offences, which are recorded in the subjoined extracts, the Court, after communication with the superintendent of police, circulate the following rules and forms of roobukarees for the guidance of magistrates :—

1st.—In all cases investigated by the magistrate, no intermediate proceedings of length are to be admitted. In the event of its being necessary to require further investigation by the police, or the attendance of further evidence, it will be sufficient to pass an order to that effect in as many words, without entering into any detail of the facts of the case.

2nd.—In cases disposed of by the magistrate by conviction, a short record of the grounds of conviction and a clear statement of the charge, are to be entered in the final roobukaree, together with a list of the witnesses examined ; but it will not be necessary to preface the order with any lengthened details of the facts of the case (all of which may be gathered from the record,) or to make abstracts, as is sometimes done, of the reports and proceedings of the police officers in the magistrate's roobukaree of conviction.

3rd.—In cases of acquittal, it will be enough for the magistrate to record that, in his judgment, the charge has not been proved, and the prisoner consequently acquitted. In heinous cases, an addition may be made to the effect that, in the event of other evidence being produced against the person discharged, proper orders will be passed in the matter.

4th.—In cases committed to the sessions, all that is necessary to be recorded is, the charge preferred, a list of the witnesses examined, and the charge on which the prisoner is committed by the magistrate.

2. Forms of final roobukarees, to be used by the magisterial authorities, in cases of conviction, acquittal, and commitment, are subjoined.

3. The following rules, framed by the superintendent of police, are to be communicated by magistrates to the police officers for their observance :—

1st.—In all cases cognizable by the police, the depositions of the informant or plaintiff, or of both, are to be immediately taken at length ; the police officers being careful, particularly to inquire from them what they saw themselves—what they learnt from others—who the persons were from whom they learnt it—the prosecutor's witnesses, and what evidence each witness is supposed to be capable of giving. In cases of dacoitee, highway-robbery, theft and burglary, the list of property lost must invariably accompany the plaintiff's deposition, and the above papers must be forwarded to the magistrate immediately on being received.

2nd.—The soorut'hals required in Sections 14 and 15, Regulation XX. 1817, or in cases of dacoitee describing the appearances presented, and the facts brought to light in a primâ facie inquiry, to be sent to the magistrate, in place of a report, the moment they are drawn up.

3rd.—Confessions of prisoners to be taken at length. No persons employed about the thannahs, or chowkeedars, doosadhs or chummars, or of such other descriptions, to be made subscribing witnesses to the same by the police, under penalty of forfeiture of situation. These must always be respectable men of the place ; and such, if possible, as can read and write ; and they should be required to question the prisoner themselves, whether he has confessed voluntarily to the facts stated.

4th.—The depositions of witnesses are not to be detailed in the papers sent to the magistrate ; and the summary of it to be given in the simplest form.

For example, in a case of highway-robbery with murder;—

Nuzzer Allee, Peer Bux and Govindram deposed to having witnessed the deed—

Doorga, Ewoz Jan and Ruttun recognize the property—

Sheolal and Gooroo Dass witnessed the search of prisoner's house—

Sujut Allee and Gungadeen saw prisoner running off with a drawn sword in his hand—

Janokia Dosadh chowkeedar arrested the prisoner and saw marks of blood on his clothes.

5th.—At the bottom of this summary, the darogah is to enter the names of those witnesses whom he examined, but who professed ignorance, or gave evidence so unimportant as not to require their being sent in.

6th.—In sending in the prisoners, at the close of an inquiry, the darogah to enter his grounds for so doing (without any recapitulation of evidence) in the column for remarks of the chullan No. 2, of Appendix to Regulation XX. of 1817.

7th.—No precise rules can be laid down for the returns to purwannahs; but any police officer, unnecessarily taking up the time of the magistrate with long reports, will be entered in the minor register, and such conduct, if persisted in, will cause dismissal.

8th.—The darogahs are informed that all excuses for delay in preparing and copying out voluminous reports being obviated by the above rules, any breach of the Regulations in the detention of arrested persons, or any slowness in the inquiry, will be severely dealt with. They are also to report concisely, but clearly, all important occurrences which may take place within their jurisdiction, considering that an important part of their duty.

9th.—In cases when the darogah may not think the case sufficiently proved to warrant the transmission of the accused parties to the magistrate, he is to send in the substance of the evidence of each witness, the statements of the plaintiff and defendants, the latter taken at length, and a clear statement (without recapitulating any evidence) of the grounds of his opinion for releasing the accused.

EXTRACTS REFERRED TO IN THE 1ST PARAGRAPH OF THIS CIRCULAR.

Extract from the Report of the Superintendent of Police, Lower Provinces, for the Second Six Months of 1840, dated 16*th November*, 1841.

Para. 812. I am aware that I am not expected, by the Honorable the Court of Directors, to do more in these reports than exhibit the results of the system as it exists; and I trust that I shall not be considered as going beyond this rule, in pointing out the inutility of employing the police in recording all their mofussil inquiries, in the voluminous manner required by Regulation XX. of 1817. This is really not the business of the police; and whilst it interferes much with the performance of their proper duties, it affords them every excuse for delay in sending in witnesses and offenders, and it places no check whatever on the compulsory extortion of confessions and evidence, or on the maltreatment of those from whom they may desire to procure declarations of any kind.

813. I believe the system of extorting evidence, &c., alluded to above, to be carried to a very great extent in many parts of the country; and it would be well to remove from the police all excuse for the delay which enables them to carry on this practice with impunity, whilst the abolition of the practice of the police recording any thing beyond the charge, the names of the witnesses, what they depose to, and the confessions of any persons, in a very concise manner, would place the magistrate's courts on a much better footing as being the judicial tribunals in the first instance, and render them not so dependent, as they are now, on the proceedings of their police, conducted without any proper control, constantly denied by the persons whose statements have been written down, and always suspected by the superior courts. If the whole detailed proceedings in a case of a dacoitee were to be placed before the Right Honorable the Governor of Bengal, I am sure that he would be surprised at the extraordinary quantity of written evidence judicially taken, and sent in by the police officers.

Extract from the Resolution of the Honorable the Deputy Governor of Bengal, dated 8th August, 1842, on the Report of the Superintendent of Police, Lower Provinces, for the last Six Months of 1840.

Paras. 812 and 813.

Para. 14. What Mr. Dampier here recommends was strongly advised by the police committee in paragraphs 70 to 74 of their printed Report, dated the 18th August, 1838, and the Supreme Government, in the Resolution* passed upon the Report, approved entirely of the committee's suggestions, apparently intending that they should be carried into effect. It would, however, appear that an alteration in the existing law would be a necessary preliminary. The subject being now again revived, the Deputy Governor will consult the Sudder Court thereon.

Extract from the Report of the Police Committee, dated the 18th August, 1838.

Para. 70. The first point is that the proceedings both of the magistrates and at the thannahs, require to be considerably abbreviated. In regard to the former, the records of a trial need contain only the examinations and the depositions of the parties, together with the final order of the magistrate, and the reasons for passing it. But according to practice, the record contains a great deal more. The final roobukaree, and often the intermediate proceedings, are swelled by a recapitulation of the depositions of all parties examined, although the original depositions immediately precede it. This at best is a needless waste of time and labour, while it affords the amlah an opportunity to distort and misstate the evidence, in order to magnify to the parties their own influence and importance. In the judgment of the committee, the final roobukaree or proceeding should contain merely the order or sentence in the case, and the reasoning on which it is founded. Those who are acquainted with the length, to which, by the present practice, a final roobukaree in the most trifling cases is extended, will know how great a saving of ill-employed time and labour, and therefore how desirable an improvement, would be effected by the proposed abbreviation.

71. In regard to the thannah reports, it appears to us that they are susceptible of much simplification and improvement. The practice in this respect may be described as follows. On receiving intelligence of an occurrence, requiring local investigation, the darogah forthwith transmits to the magistrate a report of the information, containing generally an abstract or a copy (sometimes both) of the depositions of the prosecutor or informant, with notice of the reporter's intention to proceed himself, or to depute one of his subordinates, to the place of occurrence, for the purpose of local investigation. After the completion of the investigation, the darogah or other investigating officer forwards what is called a soorut'hal, or statement, with or without prisoners, witnesses, and prosecutors, as the case may be. This document is a voluminous compilation in the native language of all depositions taken on the spot, from such persons as the police officer chooses to examine,—the examinations of accused parties,—an account of the police officer's own proceedings during the investigation,—and a summary of his opinion on the charge preferred, as to the guilt or innocence of the accused, whom, if deemed guilty, he forwards for trial, and if innocent, releases on bail, or recognizance at his discretion. This bulky report is not unfrequently accompanied by the original depositions of the parties, besides the abstract. It is evident that no such long report was intended by the framers of Regulation XX. 1817, (vide Section 13, Clause 2,) but in the hands of an unskilled mohurir it always becomes what is above described.

72. The soorut'hal, even when faithful to facts, is of small use to the magistrate, by whom it is seldom looked into with much attention. The chief object of it is to point out to the officers, whose duty it is under the present system to take the depositions for subsequent production before the magistrate, the kind of information or evidence to be given by such of the persons, prisoners, or witnesses, sent in by the police officers, and in accordance with it the foujdarry mohurirs shape their examinations. But, in practice, the soorut'hal is not unfrequently drawn up by the police officer to suit his own private views, and represents the case, not as it has occurred, but as he is desirous it should appear. The depositions and examinations are written studiously with a view to support the opinion which he desires should be adopted by the magistrate, and can never be relied on as a trustworthy representation of facts. It has occurred to one member of our committee to receive, at the same time, through an oversight, two soorut'hals of the same occurrence written by one officer. In one, the opinion given was, that the parties were guilty, and the evidence was studiously shaped to favor the conviction. In the other, the witnesses were made to give evidence exactly the reverse of that contained in the former, and the opinion recorded was, of course, in favor of the accused. These had been, as is supposed to be often the case, both prepared for transmission, with the intention of sending off the one or the other, according to the inducements held out by the parties concerned.

73. Though such signal detections can occur but rarely, yet every magistrate is well aware that little or no dependence is to be reposed on soorut'hals, and they are treated accordingly; while therefore they are of little or no use in promoting the elucidation of truth, they furnish excuses for delay and waste of time in completing investigations which is turned to account in fabricating false evidence, in tampering with prosecutors and witnesses, and in extorting money.

74. It appears to the committee that no inconvenience, and probably much good, would result from the discontinuance of these soorut'hals, and the adoption of a system like that in use in the Calcutta police. The darogah, or other police officer, should make summary inquiry, without recording depositions, and at the conclusion should merely send in the prosecutor, all witnesses, and prisoners, (if the case in his judgment require further investigation,) with a brief summary of the charge, and list of the persons sent in to the magistrate. If the case, in his opinion, be unsubstantiated, he should send in a similar list of the parties examined, stating shortly that on his view of the merits of the case, he has released the accused on bail, or on recognizance. In the latter case the prosecutor, if he deemed himself wronged, might of course apply to the magistrate for a trial of the charge. But the power of thus primarily releasing should, in the judgment of the committee, be restricted to misdemeanors, and not extend to felonies and larcenies.

Extract from the Resolution of the Hon'ble the President in Council, dated 15th June, 1839.

Para. 27. The remaining recommendations of the committee, in regard to the abbreviation of the proceedings both before the magistrate and at the thannahs, and the treatment of the suspected persons, should, the President in Council is of opinion, be approved. In regard to the latter especially, there can, he thinks, be no difference of opinion. The principle laid down in the 82nd paragraph of the committee's report is one which cannot too forcibly be impressed on every public officer; for there is none, the observance of which is of greater importance, nor is there any other country in which the principle in question is so systematically disregarded.

TO THE CRIMINAL AUTHORITIES IN THE LOWER PROVINCES.

Lower Provinces, 7th July, 1843. No. 141.

Prohibition of general warrants.

WITH advertence to a case which has recently come under their consideration, the Court request the magisterial authorities to conform strictly to the rules laid down in Regulation IX. 1807, regarding the issue of warrants, and to be careful that none are issued for the apprehension of persons not expressly named therein. The sessions courts are at the same time requested to notice any instances in which the rule may be inadvertently violated.

TO THE SEVERAL CRIMINAL AUTHORITIES IN THE LOWER AND WESTERN PROVINCES.

Lower Provinces, 25th and Western Provinces, 30th August, 1843. No. 142.

It rests with the surgeon to decide whether wounded persons, sent to him for examination, shall be placed in the hospital for treatment or not.

To remove doubts which may exist, the Court are pleased to direct, that when a wounded individual is sent by the magistrate for examination as to the nature and extent of his or her wounds, it shall rest with the surgeon to decide whether such person shall be placed in the hospital for treatment, or not; and that the surgeon's order on the point shall be conclusive.

TO THE SEVERAL MAGISTRATES AND JOINT MAGISTRATES IN THE LOWER AND WESTERN PROVINCES.

Lower and Western Provinces, 16th August, 1843.

No. 144.

Prescribing the adoption of two general and six subordinate registry books, with a registry of decided cases, to facilitate reference to the records of cases.

THE Courts of Nizamut Adawlut for the Lower and North-Western Provinces, have had before them the returns to their Circulars, dated for the Lower Provinces, 18th June, 1841, and for the Western Provinces, 23rd July, 1841. The magistrates in the Lower and North-Western Provinces having in general signified their unqualified approval of the forms of registers as circulated, and having in some instances already introduced them, and the emendations which have been suggested by some functionaries being mostly of a trifling and unimportant nature, the Presidency and Western Courts direct that the registers be brought into use throughout all the districts within their respective jurisdictions.

2. The remarks which were circulated with the forms of registers, are here repeated for the information and guidance of magistrates.

3. The objects sought for, are facility of reference to the records of cases, and ready information (as far as facts and circumstances may have been ascertained) in regard to persons charged with offences, who have eluded the pursuit of justice.

4. For these purposes, two general register books and six books of subordinate entry, should be kept up in every magistrate's office.

1st.—A general register of all applications preferred direct to the magistrate.

2nd.—A general register of all reports received from the police darogahs.

The subordinate books are:

1st.—A book of heinous offences.

2nd.—A book of petty offences.

3rd.—A book of appeals preferred from subordinate courts.

4th.—A book of references or proceedings received from other districts.

5th.—A book of cases preferred under Act IV. of 1840.

6th.—A book containing all miscellaneous matters.

5. All criminal cases should be entered in the first instance in either of the general registry books, and then transferred to one of the subordinate ones for trial and disposal, excepting of course the cases referred to the subordinate tribunals. When cases are finally decided, they should be sent to the record-keeper, who should keep a general register, in which he should enter all cases thus received, giving the number of the case and nature of it, the names of the parties, the crime, the thannah, the month and year of the occurrence, and an abstract of the final order, with a column in which he should note in what part of the office he has placed the papers. As long as his plan is followed no difficulty can occur in tracing out a case. If, for instance, a magistrate wishes to know what has become of a petition presented by A, on the 1st March, 1840, he refers first of all to the general register of applications, and he there finds it was either tried by himself as a petty offence and entered in his book of petty offences decided on such a day, and sent to the record office, or else he will find that it was referred to the principal sudder ameen and disposed of by that officer. In like manner heinous offences will be traced from the general report book to the heinous offence book, and from thence to the record office or a subordinate court.

6. As regards Furarees, or persons who have eluded the pursuit of justice, the forms prescribed by Regulation III. 1812, if properly kept up, contain almost all the information that is requisite, the addition of a single column (which the magistrates are required to effect) will make them quite complete. The additional column should state the number of the case, the year in which it was preferred, and in what part of the record office the record is to be found.

7. These several forms, viz. two general registry books, six books of pending business, one of business disposed of, and the registers prescribed by Regulation III. 1812, amended as above directed, if properly kept up, would give every information. They are simple and easy of comprehension, and involve no additional trouble and expense.

Additional instructions regarding references to the Chemical Examiner.

It appearing that many magistrates, under a misconception of the object of the Circular Order No. 110, of 24th June, 1842, have referred all cases involving chemical examination to the chemical examiner to Government, instead of availing themselves of the aid of medical officers of their stations, I am desired by the Court to request, that such references be in future limited to cases of urgent necessity, in which the local medical officer cannot afford the required information, and to doubtful cases of poisoning, &c., regarding which there may be need of information for directing the researches of the police.

2. The magistrates are also requested not to call upon the chemical examiner to make affidavits before the chief magistrate of Calcutta, regarding any matter referred for examination, as such affidavits are not legal evidence.

Circulating a paragraph in substitution of para. 73 of Rules for the preparation of criminal statements.

I AM directed to inform you that the instructions contained in my Circular Letter dated 25th ultimo, [No. 148,] appearing to the Court calculated to induce a greater prolixity of detail, than is either desirable or necessary to the efficient supervision of the criminal administration, have been cancelled. You will be pleased accordingly to expunge from the copy of the rules furnished for the use of your office, both the 73rd paragraph, as it originally stood, and the emendation subsequently* directed, and to substitute the following paragraph.

PART VI.

"73. In this part are to be entered with the particulars indicated by the headings of the several columns, persons who may be required to furnish security or penal recognizances, to keep the peace on conviction of any specific offence, conformably to the provisions of Clause 1, Section 2, Regulation IV. of 1825, and the interpretation of that enactment contained in Construction No. 831."

Promulgates correspondence with Government on the subject of imposing fetters on native soldiers and camp followers, made over to the civil authorities, to undergo sentences of imprisonment adjudged by courts martial.

THE Court of Nizamut Adawlut promulgate, for the information and guidance of all officers in charge of jails, in the North-Western Provinces, copies of the correspondence, particularized in the margin, which has recently passed with Government, on the subject of imposing the restraint of fetters on native soldiers and camp followers, who may be made over to the civil authorities to undergo sentences of imprisonment, adjudged against them by courts martial.

Offg. Register to Secretary to Govt., N. W. P., No. 1256, dated 14th Sept., 1843.

From Secy. to Govt., N. W. P., No. 302, dated 23rd instant, with annexures.

From the Officiating Register of the Western Court to the Secretary to Government, North-Western Provinces, No. 1256, dated 14*th September,* 1843.

References have been occasionally made by magistrates, to whose charge native soldiers and camp followers, sentenced by courts martial to imprisonment "with labour," have been committed, requesting the instructions of the Court in regard to their competency under the terms of the sentence to impose the additional restraint of fetters; and the instructions issued by the Court, on these applications, have been hitherto wont to be regulated by the particular circumstances of each case, and the representations of the magistrate in respect of it: ordinarily, the imposition of "irons" forms a part of the sentence passed by the criminal authorities on persons, whose offences have rendered them liable to imprisonment "with labour," and it appears to the Court advisable, that some uniform principle should guide courts martial in recording their sentences, and that some corresponding rule of practice, with a view to the enforcement of that principle, should be promulgated for general observance by the military authorities.

2. In order to effectuate this object, it will only be necessary, the Court presume, that the pleasure of Government should be communicated to the Military Department, accompanied by a request, that if no objection, legal or other, exist, orders should be issued, fitted to secure the specification of "labour in irons" or the reverse, in every sentence of imprisonment passed by a court martial, whenever it may be intended that the prisoner shall undergo his punishment in any of the provincial jails under the control of this Court.

3. A discretion is of course vested in all magistrates to subject any prisoner, guilty of riotous conduct, or of an infringement of the rules prescribed for the management of jails, to the restraint of fetters, whatever his sentence, and by what court soever awarded, whenever such a step may appear indispensable to the maintenance of discipline and order, or the safe custody of the prisoner; but the object of the present address is to procure the promulgation of a rule which shall impose upon courts martial the duty of so framing their penal awards, as that no doubt of their intention regarding the imposition of irons shall remain, and which shall relieve the magistrates and other authorities in charge of jails from the responsibility, on the one hand, of inflicting upon prisoners committed to their custody, a degradation, which may not form part of the recorded sentence, and from their not unnatural repugnance, on the other, to afford to such convicts a facility of effecting their escape, by sending them to labour on the roads, without the ordinary restraint of fetters.

From the Secretary to Government, North-Western Provinces, to the Officiating Register of the Western Court, No. 302, dated the 23*rd January*, 1844.

In reply to your letter, No. 1256 of 1843, dated 14th September, I am directed by the honorable the Lieutenant Governor to forward, for the information of the Court, the accompanying copy of a despatch from the officiating Secretary to the Government of India, Military Department, dated 15th ultimo, deeming it unnecessary that any legislative enactment should be passed for ensuring the distinct expression of the intentions of courts martial in passing sentences on prisoners who have to undergo their punishment in any of the provincial jails under the control of the Sudder Court in these provinces.

From the Officiating Secretary to the Government of India in the Military Department, to the Secretary to Government, North-Western Provinces, No. 572, dated the 15*th December*, 1843.

Your despatch, No. 4775, of the 20th October last, relative to the distinct expression of the intentions of military courts martial, in passing sentences on prisoners who have to undergo their punishment in any of the provincial jails under the control of the Allahabad Court, having been referred to his excellency the Commander-in-Chief, I am directed, in annexing for the information of the honorable the Lieutenant Governor, copy of a letter No. 273, of the 4th instant, from the Adjutant General of the Army, to my address, which has been received in reply, to observe, that the honorable the President in Council deems it unnecessary that any legislative enactment should be passed on the subject, it appearing that the imposition of fetters on convicts is left to magistrates who exercise their own discretion in ordering their use, under the circumstances referred to.

From the Adjutant General of the Army, to the Officiating Secretary to the Government of India in the Military Department, No. 273, dated the 4th December, 1843.

I am directed by the Commander-in-Chief to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, No. 52, of the 3rd ultimo, with enclosures, relative to the expediency, or otherwise, of courts martial distinctly expressing in their sentences whether prisoners adjudged to suffer imprisonment with labour, are, or are not, to be subjected to the restraint of fetters, and to convey to you his excellency's opinion on the point in question.

Sentences of imprisonment with labour, passed by native courts martial, are passed either in conformity with the Regulations of Government, on trials for criminal offences, or under Act No. XXIII. of 1839, on trials for military offences. In criminal cases, the sentence directs the imposition of fetters, whenever the Regulations authorise its being done, and not otherwise; and, thus, the same law which guides the courts of session, or the Nizamut Adawlut, guides courts martial also.

In military cases, courts martial are empowered by the Act No. XXIII. of 1839, to award "imprisonment with or without hard labour," but as no authority is therein given, to direct that the prisoner be subjected to labour "in irons," or "on the roads," a court martial cannot legally, the Commander-in-Chief thinks, introduce the words into their sentence. By the authority conveyed in a circular from the Court of Nizamut Adawlut in Calcutta, No. 122, of the 11th March, 1813, the imposition of fetters on convicts would, his excellency remarks, seem to be left to the discretion of the magistrate.

If it be deemed advisable to confer on courts martial the discretionary power of awarding imprisonment, with or without hard labour in irons, or otherwise, such power must, his excellency conceives, be specially conferred by an Act of Government.

Orders passed by magistrates under Act XXI. of 1841, are appealable to session judges only.

IT has been ruled by the Courts of Nizamut Adawlut, for the Lower and Western Provinces, that all orders passed by magistrates for the removal of obstructions and nuisances on thoroughfares, or for other conservancy purposes, under the provisions of Act XXI. of 1841, are appealable to the session judges only,—who are accordingly required to take cognizance of all such matters, when brought before them.

Rule for calculating the period within which an appeal should be lodged or any official act done.

TO secure uniformity of practice regarding the mode of calculating the period within which an appeal should be lodged or any official act done, the Court desire it to be understood, that when the period consists of days or weeks, the full number of days or weeks mentioned in the order should be allowed, exclusive of the day on which the order is passed, and that when a month or a year is mentioned, the month or the year should be reckoned according to the English calendar, that is to say, the month should not be invariably reckoned at thirty days, and the year should comprise twelve English calendar months.

Western Provinces, 2nd March, 1844. No. 159.

Supersedes paragraph 1 of Circular Order Nizamut Adawlut, No. 100, dated 28th January, 1842, and declares all orders passed by assistants to magistrates and others under the provisions of Section 20, Regulation IX. of 1807, and Clause 3, Section 3, Regulation III. of 1821, to be appealable to the sessions judge.

THE Court, after consultation with the Nizamut Adawlut in Calcutta, have ruled, in supersession of paragraph 1, Circular Order, Nizamut Adawlut No. 100, dated (Western Provinces,) 28th January, 1842, that every order of an assistant to a magistrate not vested with special powers, of a principal sudder ameen, sudder ameen, or law officer, passed in a criminal trial or proceeding, adjudging a penalty of fine and imprisonment, agreeably to the provisions of Section 20, Regulation IX. of 1807, and Section 3, Clause 3, Regulation III. of 1821, which penalty exceeds the limitations enacted in Section 8, Regulation VI. of 1803, is appealable to the sessions judge.

2. In like manner, whenever in cases of petty theft, the extended powers conferred by Section 20, Regulation IX. of 1807, and Clause 3, Section 3, Regulation III. of 1821, upon assistants to magistrates not vested with special powers, principal sudder ameens and law officers, may be called into exercise by those functionaries, respectively, the orders of each, and all in such cases, have been held to be appealable to the sessions judge.

vinces, extract (paragraphs 2, 3 and 10,) from the orders of Government, dated 23rd ultimo, pointing out the measures which should be adopted, in all practicable cases, for providing means of daily ablution to the prisoners in their custody.

Extract (paragraphs 2, 3 and 10,) from the orders of Government, dated 23rd March, 1844, No. 1085.

Para. 2. As regards the general question, it appears that there is no plan so advantageous as that of a good sized tank in the immediate neighbourhood of the jail, but outside the walls. The practice of bathing within the walls, in the well from which water is drawn for drinking, is open to objection, on two accounts; part of the water runs back into the well, thus impairing its quality for drinking purposes, while the remainder is apt, unless a very good system of drains is established, to render that part of the interior of the jail wet and dirty.

Para. 3. It is thought that in most places a tank, 120 feet square, and 10 feet deep, would be large enough for the purpose, and would retain water throughout the year; such a tank would be dug by 100 prisoners in from two to three months without further expense to Government. In most jails there are convicts for life, whom it is not advisable to employ at a distance from their place of confinement, and whose labour might well be made available for such a work.

Para. 10. In conclusion, I am desired to observe that wherever difficulties still remain for procuring the means of ablution for the prisoners in the vicinity of the jail, it is almost always practicable to allow them these means during the interval of labour, which it is understood that they generally enjoy in the middle of the day.

THE Court call the attention of magistrates in the North-Western Provinces, to a Circular Order addressed, under this date, to the civil judges, regarding the practice to be in future pursued by moonsiffs and others, in transmitting records of monthly decisions to the sudder station, and request, that the police darogahs subject to their control, may be furnished with the requisite instructions for giving effect to the directions therein contained.

monthly decisions by the subordinate judicial officers to the sudder station.

The Court, having had under consideration, returns to their Circular Order, No. 492, dated 10th March, 1843, and published in the Agra Government Gazette of 28th idem, calling for information regarding the practice, observed by the several subordinate courts in transmitting the records of monthly decisions to the sudder station, are pleased, with the sanction of Government, to issue the following instructions for general observance.

2. By Clause 8, Section 10, Regulation XX. of 1817, police darogahs are required to forward by the thanna dawk or by their burkundauzes, "as occasions may offer," papers sent to them by the subordinate civil judges for that purpose; on the other hand, the transmission of the records of monthly decisions is directed to be periodically made, and cannot, if the rules prescribed by Circular Order, Sudder Dewanny Adawlut, No. 49, dated 20th September, 1839, are to be enforced, be allowed to depend on the occasional opportunity which a police darogah may think fit, either to improve, or, on the other hand, to leave unheeded; independently of this, the Court observe the increased bulk of the records of the subordinate tribunals, arising from the enlargement of their powers, and the consequent accession of judicial business before them, opposes a serious obstacle to the employment of the thanna dawk, as a means of conveying them to the sudder station.

3. The Court, however, adverting to the occurrence which gave occasion for the Circular Order of this Court, dated 10th March, 1843, are not disposed to dispense with the attendance of a police burkundauze, which is authorised by law and affords some security for the safe arrival of papers in transit; and they are pleased accordingly, with the permission of Government, to direct that the subordinate judicial officers forward the records of monthly decisions by a specified date, to the nearest thanna, for transmission to the sudder station, taking a receipt from the darogah, or in his absence, from the head officer present at the thanna. It shall be the duty of the police darogah to despatch the papers in question, without delay, to the sudder station, under charge of a burkundauze, indenting on the magistrate for the expense incurred in their conveyance, and submitting to the judge a duplicate of the account for his information. The items of expense thus incurred, will be charged in the monthly contingent bills of the magistrate's office.

4. The judges are requested to determine the period, within which each moonsiff shall be required to have his records of monthly decisions delivered to the police darogah, with due advertence to the necessity of enforcing the provisions of Circular Order, Sudder Dewanny Adawlut, No. 49, dated 20th September 1839, and with reference to the distance of each receiving thanna from the sudder station.

No. 163. Lower and Western Provinces, 6th May, 1844.

In supersession of Construction, No. 816, interference by magistrates in the election, recognition, or removal of chowdhrees, prohibited.

By the Construction of the Nizamut Adawlut, No. 816, dated the 23rd August, 1833, magistrates were declared competent to "remove the chowdhrees of the several trades and professions." The Court having re-considered the subject of this Construction, and the principle which it involves, are persuaded that it is based on an incorrect view of the chowdhree's position, and of the relation in which he stands towards the members of the trade or profession on the one hand and the Government on the other.

2. The chowdhree is the head of the profession, selected and appointed by its members in the exercise of their free choice, with which the Government have no power to interfere, and with them rests the option of dispensing with his services, whenever he may have forfeited their confidence, by abusing the influence incident to his position, or acting detrimentally to their interests.

3. The Court are pleased therefore, with the sanction of Government, to declare Construction No. 816 superseded, and to prohibit any interference on the part of the magisterial authorities in the election, recognition, or removal of chowdhrees, of whatever trade or profession.

Circular Order, No. 110, dated 29th June, 1832, having fallen into partial disuse, and the inconvenience, which it was designed to remedy, having been thus revived, the Court are pleased to direct the attention of the session judges to the said order, and to request, that in forwarding the proceedings in criminal trials, &c., called for by the Court, they will invariably annex thereto, an extract from the sessions statements, containing whatever information was conveyed in them, relative to the case called for.

WITH reference to the Circular Order of this Court, No. 842, dated 19th June, 1843, the Court notify, for the guidance of the sessions judges, in the North-Western Provinces, and for general information, that Section 2, Act XXXI. of 1841, has been held, by the concurrent opinion of the majority of the two Courts of Nizamut Adawlut, to confer upon every convicted offender the privilege of demanding a re-hearing of his case, or, in other words, a second trial; it has been, on the same principle, determined, that the mere reception of a petition cannot be considered equivalent to the "appeal permitted" by the Act, but that it is incumbent on the appellate authorities to call for, and examine the proceedings of the lower courts in every case, whether it be a "criminal trial," or a "judicial proceeding other than a criminal trial," from the sentence or final order in which an appeal may be preferred to the superior courts.

2. The Court accordingly inform the appellate authorities, enumerated in Section 2, Act XXXI. of 1841, that they are incompetent to reject petitions of appeal of what kind soever, presented to them, within the prescribed time, without a revision of the proceedings held in the lower court, and that it is incumbent on them, however manifest the legality or the propriety of the decision passed by the court of first instance may be, to call for, and examine the proceedings of the said court, in every instance of an appeal being instituted before them.

Resolution regulating the future practice of the Nizamut Adawlut, N.W. P., in receiving petitions of appeal from sentences in criminal cases of lower courts.

THE Court publish, for general information, a resolution agreed upon, under date the 17th instant, regulating the future practice of the Nizamut Adawlut for the North-Western Provinces, in the matter of receiving petitions of appeal from sentences passed in criminal trials by the lower courts, and request, that the sessions judges and magisterial authorities will take measures to make the purport thereof known to all whom it may concern.

2. The rule of practice resolved upon, will come into operation on the 1st July next ensuing.

Resolution.

At a Court of Nizamut Adawlut held at Agra on Friday, the 17th of May, 1844—

PRESENT:

B. Taylor,
G. P. Thompson and
J. Davidson,
} Esqrs. } Judges.

Read a letter from the register of the Nizamut Adawlut in Calcutta, No. 294, dated 23rd February last, relative to the practice pursued by that Court in the reception of petitions of criminal appeal, under Act XXXI. of 1841, from third parties, calling themselves relatives of the prisoners, without authority from the real appellants.

Resolved, that the said practice, which is found to have been observed by this Court from its first institution to the present time, is beyond the requirements of law, and in practice objectionable, and that it be forthwith discontinued.

Resolved, further, that henceforth no petition of criminal appeal, even though preferred within the limit of time prescribed by Section 2, Act XXXI. of 1841, shall be considered admissible, unless presented by the appellant in person, or by a duly authorised representative; and that all petitions presented in opposition to this rule, shall be rejected, as of course, and put into the record office, without any order being recorded thereupon.

Ordered, that this resolution be adopted as a rule of practice in the reception of petitions of criminal appeal in this Court, and be brought into operation on the 1st July next ensuing.

Ordered, further, that the said resolution be published in the Agra Government Gazette for general information.

Remarks on the meaning and application of Act III. of 1844.

DOUBTS having been expressed, regarding the meaning and application of certain parts of Act III. of 1844, it is notified, for the information and guidance of the criminal authorities, that, by the concurrent opinion of the Courts of Nizamut Adawlut for the Lower and Western Provinces, it has been determined that "magistrates," "joint magistrates," and "persons lawfully exercising the power of a magistrate," are alone competent to award corporal punishment, relatively to the definition of the term "magistrate," given in Section 4, Act II. of 1839.

2. By Section 1 of the Act, magistrates are declared competent, in certain cases, to inflict corporal punishment on adult offenders, and are at liberty, therefore, whenever they may deem such a course preferable, to sentence such offenders when convicted of theft of property not exceeding rupees 50 in value, to the other penalties prescribed by pre-existing laws for that offence. Section 2, on the other hand, leaves no discretion whatever to the magistrate as regards juvenile offenders—imperatively enacting that he shall punish such in cases of the nature under notice, rather in the way of school discipline, than ordinary criminal justice, by sentencing them to undergo corporal punishment with a light ratan.

3. A question has arisen regarding the course to be pursued towards persons convicted a second time of theft of property not exceeding rupees 50 in value, whether corporal punishment should be repeated, or other regulations, providing for such contingencies, enforced. Referring to the above construction of this law, which leaves the infliction of corporal punishment, or the imposition of other penalty on adult offenders, in cases falling under its provisions, discretionary with the magistrate on primary conviction, the Courts of Nizamut Adawlut have ruled, that, as regards those offenders, a similar discretionary power is vested in the magistrate, relatively to secondary convictions, and, further in maintenance of the broad distinction between the cases of adult and juvenile offenders, have determined, that if a juvenile offender who may have been once sentenced to corporal punishment be still, on the occasion of his re-apprehension, and second conviction of theft of property, not exceeding rupees 50 in value, of such tender years, as to require, in the opinion of the magistrate, that he should be punished rather in the way of school discipline than ordinary criminal justice, it will be incumbent on the magistrate to pass sentence of corporal punishment.

4. From the definition of "magistrate," contained in the 1st paragraph of this order, it will, of course, be understood that corporal punishment must be inflicted in the presence of the "magistrate," "joint magistrate," or other "person lawfully exercising the power of a magistrate."

TO THE MAGISTERIAL AUTHORITIES IN THE NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES.

Western Provinces, 24th August, 1844.

No. 176.

Interdicts the practice of pressing tradespeople and artisans to follow military camps, with or without remuneration, by magistrates.

It is believed, that commissariat officers, on the formation of large camps, and the aggregation of large bodies of troops, have been in the habit of requiring the intervention of magisterial authority in procuring the attendance of tradespeople and artificers, of various denominations, to accompany such camps without remuneration, asserting, that they must trust to their chance of private employment while with the camp, for their recompence; with such requisitions, magistrates have ordinarily complied without objection, and without reference to the illegality and injustice of such impressment.

2. The subject having been recently brought to the notice of the Court, and represented to Government, the Military Board were requested to prevent the magistrates being called upon to enforce the attendance of artificers and tradespeople in military camps, or to explain the principle, on which the practice rested, and they have in the subjoined letter (which is published for general information,) disclaimed all participation therein, adding that "the impressment of men, whether for bazars or other purposes, is strictly prohibited."

3. Magistrates are accordingly requested to observe, that all requisitions of the nature above described, are discountenanced by the Military Board, that compliance therewith is denounced as "illegal and unjust," and that the responsibility of withholding such compliance from applications for the illegal exercise of their authority devolves upon them solely and entirely. The practice of pressing tradespeople and artisans to follow military camps, with or without remuneration, is hereby strictly interdicted, and the magisterial authorities will be careful in future to exert their official influence, in aid of the commissariat officers, only in such mode and measure, as may be consistent with the requirements and directions of law.

Copy of a letter, No. 1, dated 16*th July,* 1844, from the Military Board to the Hon'ble the Lieutenant Governor, North-Western Provinces.

Hon'ble Sir,—"We beg to acknowledge the receipt of Mr. Secretary Thornton's letter, No. 2275, of the 15th ultimo, with its accompanying copy of a communication from the Court of Nizamut Adawlut and enclosures, on the subject of compelling artisans and tradespeople to follow military camps, and in reply to state, that we consider the practice brought to notice altogether illegal and unjust, and one in which we beg to disclaim any participation. The impressment of men, whether for bazars or other purposes, is strictly prohibited, and it is not our wish, nor we may safely assert that of the commissariat, that it should be continued any longer.

2. "The magistrate of ——— states that the practice in question is illegal, and yet acknowledges, that he or his predecessors have, for a series of years, been in the habit of so acting illegally, on the mere request of a commissariat officer. We would suggest, that the magistrate be advised, that it rests entirely with himself to refuse compliance with any application for the illegal exercise of his authority."

I am directed by the honorable the Deputy Governor of Bengal to forward the accompanying copy of a resolution passed by the Government of India, in the Home Department, under date the 17th ultimo, authorising jailors when duly qualified, by service and good conduct, to be included in the list of public servants entitled, under the existing pension rules, to a superannuation pension.

No. 151.

Home Department, the 17th August, 1844.

Read again a letter from the Secretary to Government of Fort St. George, No. 368, dated the 10th June last, with its enclosure, recommending that jailors may be included in the list of public servants entitled to a superannuation pension.

Read again a letter to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal, No. 350, dated the 6th ultimo, inquiring whether jailors, under the Bengal Presidency, are entitled to superannuation pensions.

Read a letter from the Under-Secretary to the Government of Bengal, No. 1202, dated the 25th idem, stating that the pension rules of the Bengal Presidency contain no provision for the grant of retiring allowances to jail darogahs, although police darogahs are included in the list of public servants to whom the rules are applicable, and conveying the opinion of the honorable the Deputy Governor that the responsibility attaching to the situations of jailors entitles them to some reward for long and faithful services.

Read again the pension rules passed on the 4th January 1831.

Resolution.—The Governor General in Council concurring in opinion with the Governments of Madras and Bengal, that this class of public servants should be permitted to share in the benefit of the rules in question—

Ordered—That the Governments of Bengal, Madras, Bombay and the North-Western Provinces be authorised to include jailors in the list of public servants, entitled, under the existing pension rules, to a superannuation pension.

Ordered also—That a copy of this resolution be sent to the Financial Department, whence the necessary communication will be made to the offices of audit and account.

Regarding security bonds executed by the sureties of the judicial treasurers and other officers, entrusted with the charge of money, whether public or belonging to private individuals.

THE Court are induced to presume, that the security bonds, executed by the sureties of the judicial treasurers, and other officers entrusted with the charge of money, whether public or belonging to private individuals, are drawn up in terms so vague and indefinite, as to impair their sufficiency, and that, notwithstanding the instructions contained in Circular Orders Sudder Dewanny Adawlut, cited below,* and the check imposed by the periodical submission of the statement and certificate thereby prescribed, the securities are not annually examined and revised with that careful scrutiny which has been strictly enjoined.

2. The several judicial officers were desired in taking securities, to be careful that the sureties should bind themselves and their heirs to make good all losses sustained by the default or fraud of the officer, for whose conduct they became responsible, and to secure the pignoration of property on the part of the surety, the amount of which should be determinable by the value of the property or the amount of money likely to be left in hands of the officers, from whom the security was demanded.

* No. 34, dated 23rd September, 1831. No. 150, ditto 3rd July, 1835. No. 193, ditto 20th January, 1837.

3. The Court, having reason to believe, that the terms of the security bonds executed by the sureties of judicial treasurers and other officers above indicated, do not express the full measure of the liability, implied in the instructions above cited, are pleased to subjoin a form of bond which sufficiently comprehends all the obligations assumed by sureties, and to direct, that the judicial authorities, in inquiring into the sufficiency of the security of the officers on their establishments at the approaching termination of the year, will be pleased to compare carefully the phraseology of the bonds, (which on this and every other occasion of the like nature should be invariably subjected to their inspection,) with the terms of the annexed formula, in the event of the former being deficient in clearness and comprehensiveness, or essentially different from that contemplated by Circular Order of the 23rd September, 1831, No. 34, to cause new security bonds to be executed by the sureties, corresponding with that which is appended to this order.

4. In reporting the result of the prescribed revision, according to the prescribed form, the judicial authorities are hereby required to certify, that the bonds have been carefully examined, and found to correspond in their terms with the annexed formula, and that memorials thereof have been registered in pursuance of the instructions conveyed in Circular Order, Sudder Dewanny Adawlut, No. 15, dated 2nd May, 1843.

5. It will be of course understood that the obligation, resting on the judicial authorities, of instituting the necessary inquiries to establish the validity and sufficiency of the security furnished by those of their subordinates who hold offices of pecuniary responsibility, remains unimpaired, and that the certificate, prescribed by Circular Order, Sudder Dewanny and Nizamut Adawlut, No. 193, dated 20th January, 1837, must be invariably inserted at the foot of the annual statement, which they are directed, by orders above referred to, to submit.

Attention directed to Government orders, dated 31st March, 1834, regarding contingent charges.

THE Court, finding that the orders of Government, dated 31st March, 1834, on the subject of contingent charges, incurrible by the civil and session judges, are frequently overlooked, are pleased to publish an extract (paragraphs 1 and 2) from the same, for general information, and direct, that the authorities to whom they are applicable, will henceforward follow the practice thereby prescribed, and cease to submit applications for the disbursement of money through the intervention of the Court.

Extract (paragraphs 1 and 2) from the orders of Government, dated 31st March, 1834.

Para. 1. In modification of the existing rules, on the subject of the contingent charges of the office of civil and sessions judge, and commissioner of circuit, the honorable the Vice President in Council is pleased to determine, monthly statements of such charges incurred by them shall in future be forwarded by the civil and sessions judges, and by the commissioners respectively, to the civil auditor. The duty of examining and checking the statements being vested in that officer, who will possess authority to pass without further reference, all such items of charge as he may think usual and unobjectionable, whatever their amount, reporting those which may not be of that character, in quarterly statements, for the consideration and orders of Government.

2. It is to be understood, that it will not be necessary to apply for the sanction of the civil auditor, previously to incurring any contingent charge. Disbursements may be made in the first instance on the responsibility of the civil and sessions judges, or the commissioners, as the case may be.

TO THE MAGISTRATES IN THE LOWER PROVINCES.

No. 192.

Lower Provinces, 17th January, 1845.

Police darogahs are to give effect to the rules issued regarding transmission of moonsiffs' records monthly to the sudder station.

THE Court call the attention of magistrates in the Lower Provinces to a Circular Order addressed under this date to the civil judges, regarding the practice to be in future pursued by moonsiffs, and others, in transmitting the records of monthly decisions to the sudder station, and request that the police darogahs, subject to their control, may be furnished with the requisite instructions for giving effect to the directions therein contained.

Circular issued to the Civil Judges, under date the 17th January, 1845.

The Court are pleased to issue the following remarks and orders, regarding the transmission, by the several subordinate courts, of the records of monthly decisions to the sudder station.

2. By Clause 8, Section 10, Regulation XX. 1817, police darogahs are required to forward, by the thannah dâk, or by their burkundauzes, as "occasions may offer," papers sent to them by the subordinate civil judges for that purpose. On the other hand, the transmission of the records of monthly decisions is directed to be periodically made, and cannot, if the rules prescribed by Circular Order, Sudder Dewanny Adawlut, No. 49, dated 20th September, 1839, are to be enforced, be allowed to depend on the occasional opportunity, which a police darogah may think fit, either to improve, or on the other hand to leave unheeded. Independently of this, the Court observe, the increased bulk of the records of the subordinate tribunals, arising from the enlargment of their powers, and the consequent accession of judicial business before them, opposes a serious obstacle to the employment of the thannah dâk, as a means of conveying them to the sudder station.

3. The Court, however, are not disposed to dispense with the attendance of a police burkundauze, which is authorised by law, and affords some security for the safe arrival of papers in transit; and they are pleased accordingly, with the permission of Government, to direct that the subordinate judicial officers forward the records of monthly decisions by a specified date, to the nearest thannah, for transmission to the sudder station, taking a receipt from the darogah, or, in his absence, from the head officer present at the thannah. The judicial officers will provide the requisite coolies for the conveyance of the records, and indent on the judge for the expense incurred thereby. It shall be the duty of the police darogah to despatch the papers in question without delay to the sudder station, under charge of a burkundauze. A chelan, under the signature of the judicial officer, exhibiting the date of transmission to the thannah, and the number of misls, will accompany the records, and serve to show whether there has been any delay on the part of the police in forwarding them to the sudder station.

4. The judges are requested to determine the period, within which each moonsiff shall be required to have his records of monthly decisions delivered to the police darogah, with due advertence to the necessity of enforcing the provisions of Circular Order, Sudder Dewanny Adawlut, No. 49, dated 20th September, 1839, and with reference to the distance of each receiving thannah from the sudder station.

No. 194.

Attention of the magisterial officers directed to the pro-

THE Court have reason to apprehend, that witnesses in general are required to be in attendance for a much longer period than is either desirable, or requisite. Their detention arises sometimes from longed detention of witnesses; and the means of preventing the same pointed out. Form of diary prescribed.

the postponement of their examination for some days after their arrival in the magistrate's court, and sometimes from the omission of the magistrate to peruse the depositions as soon as they are recorded by the mohurirs, or from his neglecting, in heavy and complicated cases, to examine the witnesses on points, which may appear to have been insufficiently elucidated. But, to whatever cause attributable, it is obvious that the prolonged detention to witnesses must, in the case of indigent individuals especially, prove highly distressing, and tend, in general, to create a reluctance on the part of private parties to attend the criminal courts, and aid, by their testimony, the efforts of magisterial authority for the detection of crime, and of those engaged in its commission.

2. The adoption of a methodical plan will, the Court believe, have a beneficial effect, by directing the attention of the magisterial officers in a special manner to this part of their duties, and thus preventing the prolonged detention of witnesses, except for good and sufficient reason. With this object the Court circulate a form of diary, which has been in actual use in the North-Western Provinces, and which the magistrates are hereby desired to introduce in their own offices and in those of their subordinates.

3. The several headings of the diary are so clear, that the brief directions annexed to the form will suffice to show the manner in which it should be prepared.

Promulgates extract from a despatch of the Court of Directors, suggesting a cautious exercise of the powers conferred on the criminal authorities by Act XXIV. 1843.

In pursuance of instructions from the Government, the Court circulate the subjoined extract from a despatch from the Honorable the Court of Directors, for the information and guidance of the criminal authorities.

Extract from a Despatch from the Hon'ble the Court of Directors in the Legislative Department, dated the 4th September, 1844, No. 21.

Para. 32. It is represented that the crime of dacoity is followed professionally by considerable numbers, as a means of livelihood, in our own territories, and in those of Native States; and that the robberies are committed by regularly organized gangs acting under the direction of recognized leaders. The object of the present Act is to apply to dacoits the special provisions which have proved very efficacious in suppressing the crime of thuggee under similar circumstances. Persons proved to have belonged to any gang of dacoits are made liable to transportation for life, without the necessity of proving their participation in any act of dacoity; and persons accused of that offence, wherever committed, may be brought for trial before any court of competent jurisdiction.

33. We do not withhold our sanction even of an enactment of so great severity for an object of such incalculable benefit to society, as the effectual suppression of dacoity; but we must earnestly call your attention to the caution addressed to you in our judicial despatch of the 28th August, 1839, to be on your guard against the abuse and oppression to which the systematic and exclusive employment of approvers for the conviction of accused persons is necessarily liable. The testimony of men, by their own acknowledgment stained with the same crimes which they lay to the charge of others, stands always in need of some corroborative evidence; and if it be received with favor or without distrust, may, from vindictive or selfish motives, or even from mere wantonness, be turned equally against the innocent and the guilty. We regret that you should have thought it necessary to make the act retrospective in its operation, as under a strict interpretation parties who have ceased to belong to gangs of dacoits, may be rendered liable to its penalties. You will be careful to guard against such evil consequences from the new enactment; and if your precaution should prove ineffectual, you will not fail to rescind it.

No. 200. Western Provinces, 16th April, 1845.

In cases instituted under Act IV. 1840, absolute proof of actual forcible dispossession is an indispensable condition to the restoration of the party complaining to possession.

THE Court, having reason to believe, from a comparison of the statistical returns from different districts, that Act IV. 1840, is variously administered, and that to this diversity of legal interpretation, rather than to any local or peculiar circumstances, the very remarkable difference in the number of suits instituted under its provisions, is attributable, desire to point out, for the guidance of the criminal authorities, that absolute proof of actual "forcible" dispossession is an indispensable condition to the restoration of the party complaining to possession; the mere assertion of an apprehension, that a breach of the peace will ensue, and that dispossession will follow, is insufficient, under the terms of Section 4 of the Act, to legalize the reception and investigation of such complaints, it being obviously the intention of the law, that the complaint of having been "without authority of law forcibly dispossessed" of the disputed property, shall be substantiated by "the examination of the necessary witnesses and documents,"—or, in other words, by the abduction of direct evidence, before any order can legally issue for the re-instatement of the party complaining in possession of the subject of dispute.

2. The several criminal authorities, competent to try and determine suits under Act IV. 1840, will be careful to observe the legal obligation above recited, and to remember that, in complaints of the nature adverted to, the only point to be established by the complainant is the fact of forcible dispossession, on proof of which the magistrate is directed to "record a proceeding, ordering the party complaining to be put again into possession of the subject of dispute, and maintained in possession, until the right to possession be determined by a competent court." In like manner, the Court observe, the only point to be tried on revision of the case in appeal, is, whether such forcible dispossession has been established or not; and any endeavour to ascertain and record the "right to possession" is not only irrelevant, but constitutes in fact an illegal and undue arrogation of authority on the part of the deciding officer: evidence of forcible dispossession carries with it, as a matter of course, proof of antecedent possession, the maintainance of which, without reference to right, is the object of the law, and the utmost limit of authority conferred by the Act under consideration.

3. Session judges are desired to enforce a strict adherence to the foregoing principles in the decision of cases under the provisions of Act IV. 1840, and to correct any departure therefrom, which may fall under their observation.

character of the police, serves only to increase the bulk of the annual reports, without effecting any useful purpose.

2. The sessions judges are requested to confine their attention to the several subjects, denoted in paragraphs 5 to 11 of Circular Order, Nizamut Adawlut, No. 98, dated 27th June, 1842, being careful particularly to note such information in regard to the condition of their respective districts, "as local experience and observation will readily supply, but to convey which the most elaborate figured statements would be inadequate."

Instructions regarding sessions judges' statement No. 12.

WITH a view to the correct preparation, in future, of the sessions judges' statement, No. 12, which is intended to show the average duration of cases in the sessions' courts, I am directed to notice certain errors in some of the statements for 1844.

2. In the statements of certain districts the totals are given and not the details. As indicated by the headings, the particulars of each case should be separately entered therein, thus :—

Col. 1.	Col. 2.	Col. 3.	Col. 4.	Col. 5.
1	10	6	0	16
2	7	6	1	14
3	11	1	0	12
Total, .	28	13	1	42

3. If the number of cases be too numerous to be conveniently entered in the lithographed form, the total number of cases of each month, and the total number of days occupied by them, may be entered thus :—

Col. 1.	Col. 2.	Col. 3.	Col. 4.	Col. 5.
January, 7 cases,	70	60	24	154

To certain session judges.

4. The period between the date of commitment and the date of commencement of trial, should have been given in every case, without reference to the cause which occasioned delay in taking up a commitment, any needful explanation being entered under the column of remarks.

Attention called to Construction 857, and instructions communicated regarding the wording of charges for receiving stolen or plundered property.

THE Court deem it necessary to call the attention of the criminal authorities to Construction No. 857, which prohibits the employment of the term "Thangeedaree" in charges for knowingly receiving stolen or plundered property, and enjoins the use of the words دیدہ و دانستہ گرفتن و داشتن مال سرقہ یا مغروتہ

2. The Court further direct that an addition be made to the charge in such cases, to show distinctly whether the property illegally possessed, was acquired by theft, burglary, dacoity, highway-robbery, or thuggee.

Session judges to note, on the record of trials held without the aid of a law officer, the law applicable to it.

3.* The reason of such addition is, that the magistrate of any district is competent under Acts XVIII. 1839 and XXIV. 1843, to commit for the crime of receiving property any where obtained by dacoity or thuggee, and the commitment may be tried by the session judge without the aid of a law officer or assessors; whereas charges for the guilty receipt of property acquired by theft, burglary, or highway-robbery, can only be tried in the district in which the property was found, and the trial cannot be held without recourse to a law officer, or to the provisions of Regulation VI. 1832.

4.† The Court direct that session judges who may try a case without the aid of a law officer or assessors, will denote on the face of the record the Regulation or Act under which the trial is held.

* The 3rd para. of the Western Court's Circular was thus worded:

"The reason of such addition is, that persons accused of receiving property stolen or plundered by Thuggee or Dacoity, may be committed under Acts XVIII. of 1839, and XXIV. of 1843, by any magistrate within the territories of the East India Company, and may be tried by any court which would have been competent to try him had his offence been committed within the zillah where that court sits, whereas in the trial of charges for the guilty receipt or purchase of property acquired by theft, burglary, or highway-robbery, it is essential to its legal validity that regard be had to the jurisdiction within which the offence was perpetrated, and to the competency both of the committing and trying officer to take cognizance of the same."

IT having come accidentally to the knowledge of the Court, that convicts are frequently in the habit, with a view to obtain their liberation from jail, of causing temporary, and possibly permanent, loss of vision, by applying lime and other injurious substances to their eyes, the Court deem it proper, with the sanction of the Government,* to warn the officers having charge of jails, of the prevalence of this practice; and direct that whenever applications for the release of prisoners afflicted with blindness be submitted to the Government,† the civil surgeon be required to record his opinion as to the origin of the calamity, and to state distinctly, whether from the appearance and nature of the malady, there is any reason to suspect, that it has been designedly produced, or is purely the result of misfortune.

Applications for the release of persons convicted of having committed penal acts while laboring under insanity.

APPLICATIONS for the liberation of persons, convicted of having committed penal acts, while laboring under insanity, and directed to be kept in confinement until their restoration to reason, are frequently received by the Court, unaccompanied by those details of the prisoner's mental variations and progress towards recovery, which alone can enable them to judge whether the party in question can be released without danger to the community.

2. The Court are pleased, therefore, to direct that applications of the nature mentioned shall be invariably accompanied by a medical history of the prisoner's case, from its coming under the notice of the local medical authority, of its peculiar features, together with an account of the patient's mental variations, his improvements, relapses, and final recovery, and a specification of the period during which he may have remained free from any return of the malady, or of symptons denoting its approach, and further, to intimate that, unless this history be in every respect satisfactory and conclusive as to the restoration of the prisoner to a state of sanity likely to be permanent, they will consider themselves bound, for the sake of the public safety, to disallow the application to which it may relate.

3. Magistrates should require the civil surgeon, or other medical officer having charge of the prison or the lunatic asylum, in case of his removal, to put on record a professional history of the nature described respecting each prisoner laboring under mental derangement, in order that the object proposed by this Circular Order, may not be frustrated by mutations of incumbency in the situation of civil surgeon.

Civil officers, countersigning plans and other documents relating to public works, are not responsible for any statements contained in them, but may offer any remarks they consider necessary regarding public works connected with their respective departments, without detaining the papers sent to them.

PURSUANT to the orders of Government of the 17th ultimo, I am directed by the Court to forward to you, for your information, copy of a letter, No. 2207, of the 17th idem, addressed by the Under-Secretary to the Government of Bengal to the Military Board.

From the Government of Bengal to the Military Board, No. 2207, dated the 17*th December,* 1845.

It was deemed advisable to invite the opinions of the civil authorities before coming to a final determination in regard to Lieutenant Colonel Garstin's suggestion for amending the existing system of countersignature by civil officers, of plans and other documents relating to public works, and I am now directed by the Deputy Governor of Bengal to state, for the information of your Board, that the majority of the officers so consulted concur in the view expressed in your letter, No. 8243, of the 18th April last, as to the expediency of allowing such officers an opportunity of offering remarks regarding public works connected with their respective departments.

2. Such a check, His Honor doubts not, is useful, especially in regard to works executed at stations seldom visited by the executive engineers. Adverting, however, to the misapprehension so generally prevalent among civil officers in regard to the object of countersignatures (which are deemed by some as implying a tacit approbation or confirmation of the statements contained in the documents to which they are affixed), His Honor desires that the present mode of obtaining such attestations be discontinued, and that a separate heading be introduced in all documents requiring countersignature for the remarks, if any, of civil functionaries, and, when they have none to make, for the simple record of the fact. But whether any observations are recorded by civil officers or not, they will be given to understand distinctly, that no papers are to be unnecessarily detained by them, and, for the purpose of ascertaining upon whom the blame of delay may rest, the executive engineers should be required invariably to note the dates of despatch, and civil officers those of receipt and return.

3. Orders to this effect will be issued to the heads of departments under this Government, and your Board are requested to address corresponding instructions to the executive engineers within the same circle.

2. In such cases, it will be no longer optional with the civil courts, as implied in the several Constructions and the Circular Orders hereby revoked, either to commit the accused for trial before a special sessions, or to direct a prosecution for forgery, or to declare the party aggrieved by such forgery, at liberty to institute a prosecution in the criminal court, as to them may seem fitting; but it will be incumbent on those courts, in all cases of forgery brought to light in the course of judicial proceedings, to conform strictly to the rules prescribed for adoption in cases of perjury by Section 2, Regulation III. of 1801, by Section 3, Regulation VII. of 1813, Section 14, Regulation IV. of 1793, (corresponding with Section 8, Regulation III. of 1803,) and Section 14, Regulation XVII. of 1817.

THE Court of Nizamut Adawlut for the North-Western Provinces hereby notify, that Construction No. 959, which rules that the power of a sessions judge to fine is unrestricted as to amount, having been issued without the concurrence of this Court, must be considered to have operation and effect in the Lower Provinces only.

The names of those only in regard to whom a trial is referred.

THE Court desire that sessions judges, in referring trials for the final orders of the Nizamut Adawlut, will insert in the marginal note, prescribed by the 10th paragraph of Circular Order, Nizamut

Adawlut, No. 54, dated 16th July, 1830, the names of those prisoners only in regard to whom the reference is made; the inclusion of others, who have either died or escaped prior to the termination of the trial, or been acquitted or sentenced by the sessions judge, being calculated only to create confusion and mislead without being productive of any corresponding benefit.

red, are to be mentioned in the letter of reference; and no papers are to be sent which relate exclusively to those who are acquitted, &c.

2. It will be unnecessary, under the operation of this rule, to submit transcripts of such portions of the record as may relate exclusively to the prisoners in regard to whom the trial, for whatever reason, may not be referred to the Nizamut Adawlut, such, for instance, as the defence of such prisoners, or the deposition of witnesses called on their behalf.

Circular No. 130, 24th February, 1843, superseded. But sessions judges to record their reasons for recommending imprisonment for life not in transportation.

THE Court are pleased to intimate that the rule prescribed by Circular Order, No. 130, dated 24th February, 1843, that the sessions judges shall invariably recommend that a prisoner be sentenced to transportation for life instead of imprisonment for life, is no longer required to be observed, in consequence of the enactment of Act XIV. of 1844, which authorises a single judge of the Sudder Court to pass sentence of transportation beyond sea for life, against a prisoner recommended to be imprisoned for life. They however direct that the sessions judges, when proposing a sentence of imprisonment for life in the Allipore jail, record their reasons for not recommending one of transportation beyond sea.

TO THE SEVERAL CRIMINAL AUTHORITIES IN THE LOWER AND WESTERN PROVINCES.

No. 281.

Lower and Western Provinces, 12th June, 1846.

Explanatory of the nature of the assistance to be rendered to the sheriff's officers charged with writs of capias.

PURSUANT to the orders of Government, the Court publish, for the information of the criminal authorities, the accompanying copy of a correspondence regarding the nature of the assistance which magistrates are expected to afford sheriff's officers, entrusted with the execution of writs of capias issued by the Supreme Court against parties residing in the mofussil.

From A. Campbell, Esq., Magistrate of Darjeeling, to F. J. Halliday, Esq., Secretary to Government of Bengal, Fort William.

Dated Darjeeling, the 29th April, 1846.

SIR,—I have the honor to request that you will procure for me the opinion of the Advocate General on my proceedings as noted in the margin, and such opinion as may guide me in deciding on any further steps that may be taken before me in the matter by the sheriff's bailiff, either with or without a "writ of assistance," or other process issued by the Supreme Court.

Letter of sheriff's officer, dated 27th April, with order thereon.
Letter of ditto, dated 28th, with order thereon of the 29th.

2. I have grounded my proceedings, in the absence of any sanction in the Regulations to compliance with the sheriff's officer's requisitions, on decisions of the Sudder Courts noted underneath.

1. Construction No. 765, dated March 8th, 1833.

A. Campbell, Esq., Magistrate of Darjeeling.

SIR,—I am in receipt of your order passed upon my letter of yesterday's date, requesting the assistance and protection of your police force in the execution of my duty in conveying ——— under civil arrest to Calcutta.

I have the honor to observe that I consider it necessary to call upon you for a police force to protect and assist me in the execution of my duty in conveying ——— under civil arrest to Calcutta, on account of the position I stand in with ———, he having threatened to break every bone in my body if I went over to his house.

If you require an affidavit to the facts, I am ready (at any time you think proper) to give it.

I request the favor of your reply, and respectfully beg to call your attention to the sheriff's official letter of the 5th ultimo.

I have, &c.,

Order on the letter of Mr. Grant, Sheriff's Officer, dated Darjeeling, 28th April, 1846.

The magistrate does not consider the sheriff's letter to his address of the 5th March, tantamount to a "writ of assistance," issued by the Supreme Court: he will not afford protection to the sheriff's officer in the invasion of premises; and the Regulations do not authorise him to assist at all in conveying a prisoner under civil arrest to the sheriff.

OPINION.

Mr. Campbell seems to labor under considerable misapprehension as to the authority under which the sheriff's officer is acting.

The sheriff's letter is little more than an act of courtesy, important only as conveying notice to the magistrate that his assistance may be required.

The authority under which the sheriff, or his bailiff in his place, is acting, is a writ of capias issued out of the Supreme Court on its common law side, directed to the sheriff and commanding him to seize the body of ———, and to have it at a certain time and place before the Court, &c.

A writ of assistance, the execution of which the magistrate seems to admit he would be bound to aid, is a writ issuing out of the Supreme Court on its equity side directed also to the sheriff, and commanding him to put a certain person into the possession of certain premises.

It seems to me that a magistrate in the mofussil is bound to aid the due execution of the former writ, upon precisely the same principle as that on which he is bound to assist in the execution of the latter. The only difference between them in respect of authority is, that whereas doubts may have existed heretofore as to the power of the Court to decree possession of lands in the mofussil, none has ever existed as to its power to take, either on mesne process, or in execution, the bodies of British subjects within the local limits of its jurisdiction.

Now upon referring to Mr. Advocate General Pearson's letter of the 21st of July, 1820, which appears to have been ever since very properly acted upon, (see Circular Orders of the Sudder Dewanny Adawlut, vol. II. No. 31, and Constructions by the Sudder Dewanny Adawlut and Nizamut Adawlut, vol. II. No. 636, the last being one of the authorities referred to by Mr. Campbell,) it will be found that the obligation of the mofussil authorities to lend their aid to the execution of a writ of assistance does not depend upon the peculiar nature or terms of that writ, but upon the force of the 39th section of the Charter of Justice, and the analogy between the power of the sheriff to call for assistance under that section, and the power of a sheriff in England to call upon the posse comitatus.

Applying that principle to the present case, it seems to follow that whereas in England the sheriff, where assistance is required, is, in the execution of a capias ad satisfaciendum, bound, and is, in the execution of a capias ad respondendum, at liberty to call upon the posse comitatus, so here if he has occasion to call upon the magistrate for assistance, the magistrate ought to render it.

That assistance ought of course to be confined to the legal execution of the writ; for instance, the police officers furnished by the magistrate ought not to aid the bailiff in breaking into a house, but they accompany him if he enter the premises without breaking in, and ought to prevent any breach of the peace when the arrest is made, or rescue after it has been made.

I do not see that the obligation upon the magistrate extends so far as to make it necessary for him to furnish men to assist in the conveyance of the prisoner to Calcutta.

TO THE CRIMINAL AUTHORITIES IN THE LOWER PROVINCES.

Lower and Western Provinces, 10th July, 1846.

No. 232.

Explanatory of the nature of the assistance to be rendered to the sheriff's officers charged with writs of capias.

PURSUANT to the orders of Government, the Court publish, for the information of the criminal authorities, the accompanying copy of the Advocate General's further opinion on the subject of their Circular Order, No. 8, of the 12th ultimo, viz. the nature of the assistance which magistrates are expected to afford the sheriff's officers entrusted with the execution of writs of capias issued by the Supreme Court against parties residing in the mofussil.

OPINION.

My observations regarding Mr. Campbell's supposed misapprehension of the sheriff's officer's authority had reference to Mr. C.'s proposition (which distinctly appeared in the papers before me) that he was not bound to give the aid required because the writ was not a writ of assistance. It therefore seemed to be not wholly beside the question to show that, if the magistrate were bound to assist in the execution of the one writ, he was, by parity of reasoning, equally bound to assist in the execution of the other.

It now appears, though to the best of my recollection it did not appear from the former case, that the arrest has been effected, and, since no escape or rescue is mentioned, I conclude that the prisoner is still in custody. The simple question referred to me seems to be, is, under these circumstances, the magistrate to grant to the sheriff's officer, who is under apprehension of violence, a posse to assist in the conveyance of the prisoner to Calcutta? Mr. Campbell says that the two last paragraphs of my former opinion preclude him from complying with the bailiff's requisition. I do not think they go quite so far as that: the last but one would rather imply the contrary, for the writ cannot be said to be fully executed until the prisoner is conveyed to Calcutta. The last states only that " in my opinion the magistrate is not bound to furnish men to assist," &c., not that he would act illegally in doing so. By the opinion expressed in that paragraph, I abide, for the following reasons.

The obligation on the mofussil magistrates to assist in the execution of process issuing out of the Supreme Court, whether it be a perfect or an imperfect obligation, seems to arise out of the last clause in the Charter of Justice, which contains substantially the same injunction as that contained in the patent of assistance granted to sheriffs in England, and in which their power to raise the posse comitatus is supposed to be implied (see Dalton's Office of Sheriff, pp. 5 and 8.) Now, according to the unanimous opinion of the judges, as delivered to the House of Lords in Miller versus Knox, 4 Bing. N. C. 574, the sheriff has power, even though there be only a show of intended resistance, to call upon such persons as are of proper age, and fit and able to travel, and especially ministerial officers, as constables, and the like, to assist him in the execution of the writ within the county, and such persons are punishable if they refuse to assist. It seems, however, very questionable whether this can be said to be the law of this country. In England the jurisdiction of the sheriff, and consequently the liability of those who are called upon to assist, is confined to the bounds of a county. Here the writs, which the sheriff of Calcutta executes, run through the whole of the vast province of Bengal, and it seems preposterous to contend that, in the absence of any express enactment and by the mere force of analogy, an individual at Delhi may be compelled to assist a sheriff's officer in the transport of a prisoner to Calcutta. Again, I am not aware that the obligation resulting or supposed to result from the last clause of the Charter has ever been enforced, or could be enforced by indictment or information, as the obligation to assist the sheriff might be enforced in England. Its performance therefore seems to depend mainly upon the instructions to be given by the Government to its magistrates and other subordinate officers; and though it would certainly not be very creditable to the Government of any country to permit the process of a competent court to be successfully defied, yet it seems rather too much to say that the Government is to undertake the expense of escorting persons taken on civil process from one end of the province to the other, or, supposing it indemnified against the expense, that it is to denude for such purposes a district of its requisite police force.

In the particular case in question, there seems to be no apprehension of a forcible rescue by numbers, but a mere apprehension of violence on part of the prisoner. I confess, I cannot see why, in such a case, the bailiff should not take steps before the nearest justice of peace to have his prisoner bound over in heavy penalties to keep the peace towards him, or why he should not himself hire a sufficient number of fellows to prevent the escape of one man, however powerful and violent he may be.

I therefore repeat my opinion, that the magistrate is not bound to furnish a posse of men to assist in the conveyance of the prisoner, but I cannot think that he would incur any legal responsibility in so doing, should he think that there is any thing in the special circumstances of the case which requires such extraordinary assistance; and if I were to venture to lay down any general rule of conduct for the guidance of magistrates in such cases, it would be this, that, when required so to do, they take such measures as may be necessary to insure the peaceable execution of legal process within the limits of their own district or local jurisdiction, not travelling beyond it. Such a rule, if applied to the present case, would induce Mr. Campbell to provide for the peaceable removal of ——— from Darjeeling, but not for his transport to Calcutta. I have given my opinion at this length, because, from all I can learn, the case, in all its circumstances, is a novel one.

WITH reference to the Constructions, noted in the margin, which communicate that, whenever the commitment of one prisoner may be requisite under the Regulations, all others implicated in the same offence should likewise be committed, the Nizamut Adawlut direct that, if such a circumstance induce commitment, the same shall be stated by the magistrates, and officers exercising the powers of magistrates, as other circumstances, necessitating commitment in cases otherwise within the magistrate's competence to pass sentence, are required to be stated by their Circular Order, No. 239, dated 1st September, 1820.

No. 235. Lower and Western Provinces, 13th November, 1846.

In modification of Circular Order, No. 1, vol. III, declares convicts sentenced to labour in irons punishable with stripes for offences, such as those enumerated in Section 5, Regulation XIV. 1816, as being opposed to the maintenance of jail discipline.

THE Courts of Nizamut Adawlut, for the Lower and North-Western Provinces, having re-considered their Circular Order, No. 1, dated Lower Provinces, 15th September, and Western Provinces, 10th November, 1837, are agreed, that it needs amendment, giving too restricted a meaning to the provisions of Section 6, Regulation II. of 1834. The Courts are of opinion that all offences which are opposed to the maintenance of discipline in the public jails, are, when committed by "convicts sentenced to labour in irons," punishable with stripes under the law cited, and they are pleased accordingly to declare that the exception, enacted in the said Section 6, Regulation II. of 1834, shall be held to extend to the several offences enumerated in Section 5, Regulation XIV. of 1816, as opposed to the maintenance of "good order and discipline" in the jails, whenever such offences may be established against "convicts sentenced to labour in irons."

2. The Court desire it, however, to be borne in mind, that "corporal punishment" must be "moderate," and that it should be inflicted only when it is thought to be "unavoidable for the maintenance of the discipline of the jails."

Act III. 1844, held to be inapplicable to attempts to commit theft.

THE opinion of the Court as to the applicability of Act III. 1844, to persons, convicted of attempting to commit theft, having been more than once solicited, it is thought advisable to notify that attempts to commit theft do not fall under the provisions of that enactment. The liability of a convicted offender to corporal punishment is determinable by the estimated value of the property proved to have been stolen: and as in cases of attempt it would be impossible to define, within any given limits, the value of the property that might have been stolen, had the attempt been successful, the law, it is clear, cannot in such cases be enforced. Further, the Court observe that, had it been the intention of the legislature to bring attempts to commit theft within the compass of the Act, the more precise phraseology which is used in Regulation XII. 1818, for instance, and which places attempts to commit in the same category with thefts actually perpetrated, would have been employed.

Private watchmen declared to be within the meaning of the rule in Clause 2, Section 2, Regulation XII. 1818.

DOUBTS having been entertained as to whether the implication of a private chowkeedar or watchman in a burglary, renders his commitment to the sessions court compulsory under the provisions of Clause 2, Section 2, Regulation XII. 1818, the Court are pleased to direct the attention of the criminal authorities to the terms of Clause 6, Section 11, Regulation XIV. of 1807, and Clause 9, Section 21, Regulation XX. of 1817, which declare that "private watchmen, entertained by individuals for guarding their houses, shops, or other premises," within the towns or villages where the darogahs of police or officers of outposts may be stationed, and within the cutwallee jurisdiction, shall be considered subject to the orders of the police officers, and are required to act in concert with them.

2. The provisions, however, of Clause 6, Section 11, Regulation XIV. 1807, being declared by Clause 4, Section 12, of the same Regulation applicable to "private watchmen, entertained by individuals for guarding their houses, &c., within the towns, gunjes, or other places forming part of any mofussil police jurisdiction," it follows that private watchmen, of whatever denomination and by whomsoever entertained, are "required by the Regulations to assist the police officers in preventing robbery or other crimes and apprehending offenders," and that being thus in the same category with the chowkeedars and others, described in Section 4, Regulation III. 1805, they come within the intent and meaning of the rule contained in Clause 2, Section 2, Regulation XII. 1818.

Mode of proceeding on the absconding of a party charged with forgery brought to light in the course of civil judicial proceedings.

THE Court, anticipating that prosecutions for forgery brought to light in the course of civil judicial proceedings, may become more frequent, as the expediency of using every lawful means for the suppression of that offence becomes more obvious, think it useful to notify that the provisions of Section 4, Regulation III. 1804, have been held by both Courts of Nizamut Adawlut to be capable of enforcement by the civil judges against any party who may abscond, being at the time under a charge of forgery brought to light in the course of civil judicial proceedings. It will be the duty of the civil judge, in such cases, to call upon the magistrate of the district to perform the acts described in Section 4, Regulation III. 1804, and the corresponding Section of Regulation XX. 1817, with a view to the apprehension of the absconding party; and it will be incumbent on the magistrate to obey such requisitions, and to proceed as he would do were the absconding party in question charged with a criminal offence primarily cognizable in his court. The principle set forth in the 3rd paragraph of Construction No. 648, is declared applicable to attachment of property directed to be made under the sanction of the law above cited and these instructions.

THE Courts of Nizamut Adawlut for the Lower and Western Provinces notify, for general information, that it has been ruled by them that assistants with special powers are competent to dispose of cases under Regulation VII. 1819.

TO THE CRIMINAL AUTHORITIES IN THE LOWER AND WESTERN PROVINCES.

No. 8. Lower and Western Provinces, 7th June, 1847.

Observations on the terms accessary, accomplice, and privity, with the corresponding terms in the vernacular.

THE Court, finding that the Circular Order, dated 21st August last,* has misled the criminal authorities, and induced the belief that the being "accessary" and the being "privy" to a felony are intended by the Court to be regarded as similar offences, are pleased to rescind it.

2. The Court desire, before prescribing the use of any corresponding terms in the vernacular, to observe that the act which constitutes what is called "privity" in this country corresponds with "misprison of felony" in English law, viz., the concealment or the procuring the concealment of a felony which a man knows but never assented to, or the observing silently the commission of a felony without using any endeavors to apprehend the offender; it is, therefore, strictly an offence of a negative kind, consisting in the concealment of something that ought to be revealed. Accessaryship, on the other hand, is an offence of a positive kind, and of a higher degree of criminality, implying an active participation, either by procuring, counselling, commanding, or abetting another to commit a felony, or, with a knowledge that a felony has been committed by another, by receiving, relieving, comforting, or assisting the felon. The distinction between the two offences is marked: the one is a misdemeanor in English law, the other is a felony: the one is in its kind negative, requiring nothing but silent, passive acquiescence in the commission of a felony to constitute it; the other is a positive participation in the commission of a felony, either by counsel and command before the fact, or by relief and assistance given to the felon after the fact.

3. It is therefore necessary that these offences should be represented by different terms in the vernacular language; but there is some difficulty in doing this, because accessaryship, as contradistinguished from complicity on the one hand, and from privity on the other, not being recognized by the Mahomedan law, there is no one word in the Arabic or Persian language by which it can be appropriately rendered: still, the Court think, the distinction will be sufficiently marked if, in selecting corresponding terms in the vernacular, regard be had to the fact that, as either the constructive or actual presence of the accused at the time when the crime is committed, is necessary to constitute complicity on his part, so the absence of the accused is essential to the charge of being an "accessary;" or, in other words, he who is present, aiding, and abetting in the commission of a felony, may be an accomplice, or a principal, but he cannot, in the legal sense of the words, be either accessary or privy to its commission. The following terms are therefore prescribed for general use, in translating the charges referred to:

Accomplice will be rendered by the words شریك بوقت وقوع جرم (সঙ্গী.) Accessary before or after the fact, or before and after the fact, as the case may be, will be rendered by the words شریک ماقبل وقوع جرم (অপরাধের পূর্ব্ব সহকারি) or شریک ما بعد وقوع جرم (অপরাধের পর সহকারি) or شریک ماقبل اورمابعد وقوع جرم (অপরাধের পূর্ব্ব ও পর সহকারি.)

"Privity" will be rendered by the word رازداري (জ্ঞাতসারিতা.)

To express "aiding and abetting" the term اعانت (সহায়তা) should be employed.

4. It only remains for the Court to remark that, accessaries before and after the fact being felons in consideration of law, the privilege of commuting labour to a fine should not be extended to them, as to those who may be convicted of "privity," which is misdemeanor only.

Course to be pursued on the institution of actions against the officers of Government for acts done by them in their public capacity.

THE following orders of Government are published, by authority, for the information of officers of the Government, as to the course to be pursued on the institution of actions against them for acts done by them in their public capacity.

Letter from the Secretary to the Government of Bengal, to the Superintendent of Police, Lower Provinces, under date the 12th April, 1848.

I am directed by the Right Honorable the Governor General to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 583, of the 17th ultimo, in which you draw His Lordship's attention to the position in which magistrates and other officers of Government are placed, when actions are brought against them in courts of law for acts done in the discharge of their official duties, in consequence of the system at present pursued of leaving them to defend themselves at their own expense in every case, and only reimbursing them after the conclusion of the trial, if from the facts then developed it should appear that they had conducted themselves legally and properly in the matters which occasioned the action.

2. After carefully considering the subject, His Lordship has come to the conclusion that it will be right that the officers of Government so situated, should be relieved from the necessity, which must often press heavily upon their means, of advancing the funds required for defending themselves against actions which may often be prompted by malice or litigiousness.

3. With this view His Lordship has determined, as the course to be pursued in such cases in future, that on the institution of any action against an officer of the Government for acts done in the discharge of his public duty, he should communicate the fact through the usual official channel, reporting all circumstances which may be necessary to enable the Government to arrive at a decision on the real merits of the case. If, on full examination into the case, and on a fair and reasonable interpretation of his proceedings, the officer shall appear to have acted rightly, he will be directed to take the necessary steps to defend himself, the Government advancing the funds necessary for that purpose, to be refunded after the issue of the action is known, in case the circumstances then brought to light should prove the officer to have acted improperly. If, on the other hand, upon examination of his case by the Government his conduct shall appear to have been clearly wrong, he will be informed that the Government will not interfere, and that he must defend himself at his own charge.

4. Under such a rule as this, His Lordship conceives that public officers will not be led to feel that they can fall back on the Government for defence in every case, whether their conduct may have been right or wrong. They will be sensible that they can look for assistance only when they may appear to have entirely deserved it, and therefore their sense of responsibility will remain as keen as heretofore.

5. Regarding the case which gave rise to your communication, His Lordship has been informed that the action against that officer has been nonsuited.

No. 13. Lower and Western Provinces, 5th June, 1848.

Definition of arson. Other acts of incendiarism may be disposed of by the magistrates or committed to the sessions. The special circumstances to be mentioned in the roobukaree of commitment.

ALTHOUGH the offence of arson, as defined in the Regulations,* is restricted to the setting on fire a house or other building, village, or town, it has been, the Court believe, a general practice with the magistrates to commit for trial to the sessions courts all persons charged with incendiarism, whatever may have been the property destroyed by such incendiarism or the circumstances by which the act may have been distinguished.

Cases in which sentence awardable by the sessions courts is insufficent, are referrible to the Nizamut Adawlut.

2. After a full consideration of the subject and a reference to the terms of the law, it has been ruled by the Courts of Nizamut Adawlut for the Lower and North-Western Provinces that the wilfully and maliciously setting fire to any 'village,' 'town,' 'house,' or other 'building,' constitutes the crime of 'arson,' which is punishable only by the sessions court, and that this definition includes the malicious and wilful burning of a boat laden with men or merchandize, and of a tent or other place used, for the time being, as a dwelling.

3. Acts of incendiarism other than the above do not, the Courts consider, fall within the definition of arson found in the Regulations; and the criminality of such acts will vary very much according to the presumed motives of the incendiary, the effect of his act, either actual or probable, and generally the circumstances which distinguish it. But there is nothing in the Regulations which precludes a magistrate from disposing finally of such cases, provided he consider the punishment which he is competent to award under Section 19, Regulation IX. 1807, adequate to the offence proved. The magistrates will be pleased to act in future according to this view of the law, bearing in mind that if, by any act of 'incendiarism' not coming within the above definition of 'arson,' lives should be endangered or valuable property destroyed, or if the act should be accompanied by other aggravation, they are at liberty to exercise their discretion in committing the accused to the sessions court. In such cases, however, the magistrates are required to state, specially, in the calendar or roobukaree of commitment, their reasons for making over the prisoners to the sessions court, in preference to passing sentence themselves; and any commitment of this kind, for which such special reason may not be assigned, will be liable to cancelment.

4. Those cases in which the sentence sanctioned by Clause 7, Section II., Regulation LIII. 1803, may be considered insufficient, will be referred by the sessions judges for the final orders of the Nizamut Adawlut under Section 6, Act XXXI. 1841.

Grounds of apprehension of prisoners to be inserted in the calendar.

THE Court of Nizamut Adawlut have observed, in the revision of criminal trials, that the grounds which have led to the apprehension of the prisoners can rarely be gathered from the proceedings, although a knowledge of these grounds is in many cases essential to enable the Court to come to a correct conclusion as to the guilt or innocence of the accused. They therefore direct the magistrates and other committing officers to state, in the calendar, the circumstances which first induced suspicion to attach to the prisoners, and ultimately caused their apprehension on the charge of committing the offence for which they have been put on their trial.

Correspondence on matters of form or of minor importance, not to be accompanied by originals or copies of the successive references made by subordinate officers.

IN consequence of instructions received from the Government of Bengal to reduce as much as possible the bulk of public correspondence, I am directed by the Court to request that, in cases of minor importance, and certainly in all cases where the mere report of an occurrence or solicitation of formal sanction is made, the reference should not be, as is generally the case at present, by the transmission of several enclosures, being the originals or copies of each reference from the several subordinate officers in succession, but by a single letter or endorsement, and this rule should be applied whenever it may be practicable. In cases which involve an important principle, or which may be intricate in their details, and which may have produced elaborate discussions, which cannot be rightly conveyed by any abbreviation, it will of course be proper that the mass of the papers should be forwarded, but this should be always avoided when practicable.

Instructions regarding executions.

THE Court have recently observed one or two instances, in which, according to the certificate endorsed on the sessions judge's warrant, the execution of capital sentences has been rendered revolting and cruel by undue haste or carelessness on the part of those charged with the duty, in taking down the body before life was extinct, and the consequent necessity of again suspending it, or resorting to other means for the causing of death. They are pleased accordingly to direct that, on future occasions, the body shall invariably be allowed to remain suspended for one hour at least, and that it shall not even then be removed until death shall be certified to have occurred by an officer of the medical department, who should always be required to attend, for that purpose, in every instance of the execution of a capital sentence.

Instructions and remarks regarding the rules for conduct of police officers in demanding bail from accused parties, and the due exhibition of results in the periodical statements.

UNDER instructions from the Hon'ble the Lieutenant Governor of the North-Western Provinces, and with the concurrence of His Honor, the Court of Nizamut Adawlut for the North-Western Provinces desire the attention of the local officers to the following instructions and remarks regarding the rules for the conduct of police officers, in demanding bail from accused parties, and for the due exhibition of results in the prescribed monthly and annual statements.

2. The Court have from time to time observed great diversity in the returns from different districts, as regards the number of persons discharged from bail by the police; and they believe that the following abstract of the rules contained in Regulation XX. 1817, on this subject, may serve to correct any misconception that may exist, and to introduce a more uniform practice.

3. There is one provision of the law which, the Court apprehend, has been very generally overlooked. Section 24, Regulation XX. 1817, expressly authorises the police officers, on receiving a complaint for any bailable offence declared to be cognizable by the native officers of police, to "issue a summons" upon the party or parties accused; but in practice, it is believed, this power has seldom or never been exercised. In now calling attention to this rule, the Court desire me to observe that in no part of Regulation XX. 1817, is it provided that parties thus summoned shall not be discharged without giving bail for their appearance before the magistrate. On the contrary, the parenthetical condition, which appears in the 4th Clause of the Section referred to, leaves it to be inferred that police officers may exercise their discretion in taking bail from parties summoned to the thannah on complaint for a bailable offence being preferred against them; and other parts of the same Section show that this privilege of summoning parties charged with bailable offences does not take away from the police officers the power of arresting the same parties, either in the first instance, if circumstances should "require the immediate apprehension of the accused," or subsequently, if the accused party should not answer to the summons; but in that case, as well as in all the cases provided for by Clauses 2 and 11, Section 20, Clause 3, Section 23, Clause 8, Section 25, Regulation XX. 1817, the general rule (to which all the others referred to are subordinate) contained in Clause 17, Section 19, of the same Regulation, will come into operation, viz., that "no person who may once be apprehended" (not summoned) shall be discharged except on bail, or under the special orders of the magistrate.

4. The Court need hardly add that the magistrates are bound to take care that their police officers understand and abide by the law enacted for their guidance, and submit correct returns of their proceedings, as well as that their sudder amlah follow the rules laid down for the preparation of the monthly and annual statements. Of those rules no explanation seems to be needed; they are sufficiently simple and detailed, and the headings of Part III, Statement No. I, (to which the foregoing remarks principally relate,) indicate clearly enough how they are to be filled up.

2. The sessions judges should avail themselves of every opportunity to point out to the magistrates any instances of neglect of the rules in question, which they may observe when they have occasion to refer to the proceedings of the police in cases committed to the sessions or called for by them.

Rules for the observance of police officers.

THE Court of Nizamut Adawlut, for the North-Western Provinces, are pleased, with the sanction of Government, to direct that the following rules be communicated by the several magistrates to their police officers for future observance.

1*st.*—In all cases cognizable by the police, the depositions of the informant or plaintiff, or of both, are to be immediately taken at length; the police officers being careful particularly to inquire from them what they saw themselves, what they learnt from others, who the persons were from whom they learnt it, the prosecutor's witnesses, and what evidence each witness is supposed to be capable of giving. In cases of dacoity, highway-robbery, theft, and burglary, the list of property lost must invariably accompany the plaintiff's deposition, and the above papers must be forwarded to the magistrate immediately on being received.

2*nd*.—The sooruthals required in Sections 14 and 15, Regulation XX. of 1817, or in cases of dacoity, describing the appearance presented and the facts brought to light in a primâ facie inquiry, to be sent to the magistrate, in place of a report, the moment they are drawn up.

3*rd*.—Confessions of prisoners to be taken at length. No persons employed about the thannahs, or chowkeedars, doosadhs, chumars, or of such other descriptions, to be made subscribing witnesses to the same by the police, under penalty of forfeiture of situation. These must always be respectable men of the place, and such, if possible, as can read and write, and they should be required to question the prisoner themselves whether he has confessed voluntarily to the facts stated.

4*th*.—The depositions of witnesses are not to be detailed in the papers sent to the magistrate, and the summary of it to be given in the simplest form.

For example, in a case of highway-robbery with murder :

Nuzzeer Allee, Peer Bux, and Govind Ram deposed to having witnessed the deed ;

Doorga, Ewaz Jan, and Ruttun recognize the property ;

Sheo Lal and Gooroo Das witnessed the search of prisoner's house ;

Sujut Allee and Gungadeen saw prisoner running off with a drawn sword in his hand ;

Janokia Dosadh, chowkeedar, arrested the prisoner, and saw marks of blood on his clothes.

5*th*.—At the bottom of this summary, the darogah is to enter the names of those witnesses whom he examined, but who professed ignorance, or gave evidence so unimportant as not to require their being sent in.

6*th*.—In sending in the prisoners, at the close of an inquiry, the darogah to enter his grounds for so doing (without any recapitulation of evidence) in the column of remarks of the chullan, No. 2 of Appendix to Regulation XX. of 1817.

7*th*.—No precise rules can be laid down for the returns to perwannahs ; but any police officer, unnecessarily taking up the time of the magistrate with long reports, will be punished by fine, and such conduct, if persisted in, will cause dismissal.

8*th*.—The darogahs are informed that all excuses for delay, in preparing and copying out voluminous reports, being obviated by the above rules, any breach of the Regulations in the detention of arrested persons, or any slowness in the inquiry, will be severely dealt with.

They are also to report concisely, but clearly, all important occurrences which may take place within their jurisdiction, considering that an important part of their duty.

9th.—In cases when the darogah may not think the case sufficiently proved to warrant the transmission of the accused parties to the magistrate, he is to send in the substance of the evidence of each witness, the statements of the plaintiff and defendants, the latter taken at length, and a clear statement (without recapitulating any evidence) of the grounds of his opinion for releasing the accused.

No. 33.

Criminal courts not to proceed to try and sentence a person, whom they may themselves have reason to regard as not subject to their jurisdiction, without due inquiry on the point.

In circulating for your information and guidance the accompanying judgment of Her Majesty's Supreme Court, in the case of a writ of Habeas Corpus applied for by V. Foy, the Court direct me to notify the rescission of Construction No. 759, founded on the principle declared in the case of Government versus Mandeville (Nizamut Adawlut Reports, volume 2, page 111) that the onus probandi as to his birth rests on a prisoner. The criminal courts are hereby directed not to proceed to try and sentence a person, whom they may themselves have fair reason from any cause to regard as probably not subject to their jurisdiction, without making all practicable inquiry to satisfy themselves on the point.

JUDGMENT.

The question to be decided is, whether the Court ought to issue a writ of Habeas Corpus to bring up the person on whose behalf it is applied for, in order that the subject of the legality of his imprisonment may be discussed before us. It appears that he has been sentenced and imprisoned for an offence by a Court of competent jurisdiction over the offence, and that he is now undergoing the imprisonment awarded him. The cause shown against the rule to show cause why the writ should not issue, is a want of jurisdiction in this Court to issue the writ.

It is stated on behalf of the applicant that he is a British subject; and the argument is that the Court which condemned and sentenced him, had not jurisdiction over him, and, therefore, that the sentence is a nullity, the proceedings being coram non judice. A Court of limited criminal jurisdiction, which has sentenced an accused person, must necessarily be understood to have included in its decision the question of his liability to its jurisdiction. If it decide on the presumption of his liability to its jurisdiction from the fact of his not contesting it, it is a point not the less involved in its decision. Its proceeding would not be the less judicial, even if it were erroneous. If it were returned to this Court, as it would be if a return were called for, that this party was sentenced and imprisoned under the sentence of a Court having competent jurisdiction over the subject matter, we could not liberate him merely because this return did not negative the fact of his being a British subject, which is stated in the affidavit. This Court has, undoubtedly, jurisdiction over all persons in the employment of the East India Company within Bengal, Behar and Orissa, and the annexed places thereto, in respect of torts; for that which was its originally granted jurisdiction is in no way abridged in respect of torts, therefore, whether a gaoler were a Native or an European, if he had the character of a servant of the East India Company, the Court would have jurisdiction over his wrongful act, of his unlawful imprisonment, and, as a British subject is entitled to the writ of Habeas Corpus as of right, he might bring thus the question of the legality of his imprisonment before this Court. Nor is there anything in the case of Sir John Grant's appeal at all at variance with this doctrine. Whether a gaoler did or did not fill the character of a servant of the East India Company would depend on circumstances of appointment, remuneration, and the like, such as in ordinary cases determine whether the relation of master and servant exists. There is not, therefore, necessarily a want of jurisdiction in this Court to issue the writ, merely because the party is detained in the mofussil and in the gaol of a Court of the East India Company; for, being a British subject, the writ is claimable by him of right, if it seem to the judge that there is apparent ground to ask it, and the gaoler may, as a servant of the Company, be subject to the jurisdiction.

The case of "In the matter of Brennan and another," furnishes the rule on this subject. This Court, though it has an appellate jurisdiction from the Courts of the Company to a limited extent in certain classes of offences committed by British subjects, has no jurisdiction generally over those Courts. It has. therefore, no power to rectify a decision if erroneous, or avert its consequences. Nor is a writ of Habeas Corpus the proper writ to rectify errors, it brings up the person only and the cause of commitment on the return; a certiorari must issue in addition to bring up documents; but this Court has no power to bring up by certiorari the proceedings of a Court of the East India Company generally: it follows, therefore, that we can interfere only in the case where the proceeding is wholly without a judicial foundation to support it, as it would be if the Court had no jurisdiction to try the subject matter. But the judge had jurisdiction of the cause, he had jurisdiction to summon the alleged offender, he could not know beforehand that the offender was a British subject, and the objection may be untruly made. It is a mixed question itself of law and fact, which must, if raised, be tried and determined judicially in the Court. The Court is, therefore, necessarily acting judicially in the determination of that question. This Court has also a limited jurisdiction. If a party is indicted here for an offence committed in the mofussil, it is necessary to prove our authority to try him by proving him subject to the jurisdiction. Let the issue then be whether the defendant is or is not a British subject, a jury must determine it, and if they decide it affirmatively though in fact erroneously, the proceeding cannot be treated as coram non judice. The question would have been decided though erroneously by a Court of competent jurisdiction to try that fact; if we could not, as we clearly could not, rectify that error by liberating the prisoner under a writ of Habeas Corpus, neither could we take that course if a like erroneous decision were come to by one of the Company's Courts. It is urged, however, that he is now admitted to be a British subject, and that the Court did not, in fact, try the question. We cannot, however, enter into the matters. The only matter which the party would be bound to return to us, if we issued the writ, would be that which in fact appears, the substance of the sentence as the authority for the detention. It is true as argued that no waiver or consent of the accused can give a criminal court jurisdiction. Its jurisdiction is limited by its constituent authority.

I do not acquiesce in the doctrine imputed to the late Mr. Sergeant Spankie, that, if a defendant does not in every case, in fact, allege and prove his exemption, the Court may safely go on. It is a dangerous doctrine, and calculated to mislead. The law is, that if a judge has not jurisdiction, and has the knowledge, or means of knowledge, of his want of jurisdiction, he is liable as a trespasser if he act—see Calder versus Halkett, and the cases there referred to. The duty of a Court is to walk in the course prescribed to it, and not to assume a jurisdiction which has not been confided to it. If a Court have reasonable ground to doubt its jurisdiction, it should take care to clear up the point, and to allow time for the production of the proper evidence. It is undoubtedly true that if a Court of limited jurisdiction exceed its jurisdiction by reason of the existence of a personal exemption, or other cause not communicated, not known to the judge, or of which he has not the means of knowledge in his reach, that the judge and its officers cannot be treated as trespassers. The case of the Marshalsea Court, cited in Mr. Baron Powell's judgment, shows that it is otherwise where the means of knowledge are in the power of the judge. It is, therefore, an unsafe doctrine to hold out to a judge that he may disregard an apparently bonâ fide claim of personal exemption from his jurisdiction, which he knows, or has good reason to believe, is well founded, on the ground of the absence of legal proof of the fact of the exemption, for in many cases no doubt can exist of the truth of facts, which a party incapacitated from giving evidence for himself is under a temporary inability to prove, and the question would be if the judge really believed that he had the jurisdiction which he exercised. The question would not turn on this, viz., on whom the onus of proof of the exemption would lie, if put in issue; but on the bonâ fide of proceeding upon the claim of exemption. The question before us, however, is unaffected by such considerations, for if there be error in the proceeding, it is not the less a proceeding of a Court of competent jurisdiction. It is not alleged that the Court knew that it wanted jurisdiction; that question might be tried in its appropriate mode of proceeding either by criminal or civil procedure. If a judge discovers at any stage of his proceeding that he has really no jurisdiction over the subject matter or the person, he would be utterly inexcusable if he proceeded further, and did not do his utmost to remedy what had been unwittingly done in the belief of jurisdiction. The immunity from suit is in respect of the judicial character, which, if a man assume over the subject matter, or the person when he knows that he has it not, he neither merits nor has the immunity.

Directing attention of the sessions judges to the necessity of exercising caution in ordering the committal for perjury of parties who have contradicted before the sessions court the evidence given by them before the magistrate.

THE Court of Nizamut Adawlut direct the attention of the sessions judges in the North-Western Provinces to the necessity of exercising great caution in directing the committal for perjury of parties who have contradicted before the sessions court the evidence given by them before the magistrate, especially where the contradiction benefits the party accused.

2. By an indiscriminate or injudicious use of the power vested in the sessions judge, witnesses would be forced to adhere to any perjury, which they may have committed before the magistrate, whereas by abstaining from the punishment of those witnesses who may appear to correct at the sessions the falsehood of their first evidence, and limiting the order of committal to those who manifestly make a false deposition before the sessions judge, the ends of justice would be more satisfactorily attained.

1. The presiding officer of any court on application being made to him in the usual form for leave to take a copy of any recorded proceeding of his court, for the purpose of being produced in evidence before Her Majesty's Supreme Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, shall, (provided there be no special objection to granting the copy, in which case a proceeding to that effect should be recorded by the presiding officer.) direct such copy to be made at the expense of the party applying for the same, and shall permit the same, when made, to be examined with the original proceeding by the record-keeper or other person intended to be produced as a witness, to the correctness of such copy, and, if any commission shall have been issued out of the said Supreme Court to such presiding officer for the examination of such person, shall examine him according to the tenor of such commission; or if the party applying for such copy shall be satisfied with such certificate, shall certify under his hand that such copy is a true copy of the proceeding whereof the same purports to be a copy.

2. The presiding officer of any court, on application being made to him in the usual form for directions for the production of any document in his court, which may be required to be produced in evidence before the said Supreme Court, shall immediately record a proceeding declaring whether there is, or is not, any objection to the production of the document in question, and a copy of such proceeding shall be given to the applicant. The objection, whether arising from the pendency of any case to the decision of which the document is necessary, or other cause, is to be fully stated in the proceeding, and the presiding officer shall in that case use his best endeavour to remove the objection by the decision of the suit, or otherwise as speedily as may be practicable. If the presiding officer shall record that there is no objection to the production of the document in question, or if any recorded objection shall afterwards be removed, then upon service upon the record-keeper of a subpœna duces tecum, and on tender of his expenses, the record-keeper or some subordinate officer commissioned by him, shall proceed with the document in question to Calcutta, and produce the same before the said Supreme Court according to the exigency of the subpœna.

The annual civil and criminal reports to be submitted by the 1st of February of each year.

Considerable delay having occurred in past years in the receipt of some of the annual zillah statements and reports on the administration of civil and criminal justice, your attention is now specially called to the subject, with a view to prevent similar delay at the close of the current year.

2. The Court are aware that the delay generally arises from the fact that the statements are often not received from the subordinate authorities, so as to admit of their being submitted within the time prescribed by the Circular Orders of the 21st December, 1838, Sudder Dewanny Adawlut, (paragraphs 4 and 5,) and that of the 27th June, 1842, Nizamut Adawlut, (rules 5 and 87 of the magistrate's statements,) or that they arrive in an imperfect state, and it is found necessary to return them for correction.

3. You are requested, therefore, to call the attention of your subordinates to the subject, and to direct them to commence the preparation and revision of their statements in December, so as to have them as far advanced as possible before the end of the year. The addition of the December returns to them will then be a work of comparatively little trouble, and their reports may be completed and sent in by the 15th of January, so as to enable you to submit your own by the 1st of February.

4. You will also impress on your subordinates the necessity of careful revision of the statements in order to ensure their correctness, and to avoid the necessity of their being returned, and will point out to them that the Court consider the punctual despatch of correct statements an important duty, the neglect of which will not be overlooked by the Court in the comparative estimate of their qualities as public officers.

5. You will consider these directions equally applicable to your own office, and will hold in mind that the utility of periodical reports is seriously impaired and often entirely destroyed by delay in the receipt of them.

Advocate General's opinion relative to the enforcement by the Company's judicial officers of the Acts of Parliament relating to India.

THE Court publish, for general information, a copy of the Advocate General's opinion relative to the enforcement, by the Company's judicial officers, of Acts of Parliament relating to India, enacted since the passing of the last Charter Act, which have not been promulgated by any Act of the local legislature.

QUESTION.

"With reference to the precedent laid down in the case of Mr. D'Souza versus Lieutenant Wroughton, Sudder Dewanny Adawlut Reports, 23rd February, 1827, volume IV., page 225, and to the terms of Regulation XX. of 1825, is the enforcement of the provisions of Act 3 and 4, Vic. Cap. 37, Section 36, relative to the punishment of persons buying clothes, &c., from the European soldiers in the Company's service, binding on magistrates in the Company's criminal courts, no Act of the local legislature having been passed with reference to, and for the promulgation of, the above cited Act of Parliament?"

OPINION.

"I am of opinion that the 36th Section of 3 and 4, Vic. Cap. 37, is binding on magistrates of the Company's criminal courts, although no Act of the local legislature has been passed for the promulgation of that Act of Parliament.

"By the present Charter 3 and 4, William 4, Cap. 85, a subordinate legislature was created, and it was expressly provided that the Governor General in Council should have power to make and alter laws, save and except 'any Laws or Regulations, which shall in any way repeal, vary, suspend or affect any of the provisions of this Act, or any of the provisions of the Act for punishing Mutiny or Desertion of Officers and Soldiers, whether in the service of Her Majesty or the said Company, or any provision of any Act hereafter to be passed in any wise affecting the said Company, or the said Territories, or the inhabitants thereof.' Since the passing of this Act, the Imperial Legislature has often passed Mutiny and other Acts applicable to India and its inhabitants, which have never been promulgated by any Act of the local legislature, and which nevertheless have been without question enforced in this country. I would refer to the Mutiny and Insolvent Acts as examples which have never been promulgated by any Act of the Indian legislature. If such promulgation were necessary the Charter Act would contain some enactment to that effect; but the Charter Act contains a provision that the Indian legislature shall not have power to suspend any Act of the British Legislature (passed since the Charter Act) applicable to this country. Now, if it be true that Acts of the British Parliament are not in force here until promulgated by the Indian legislature, then it must follow that such British Acts have no force in this country of themselves, and are suspended until the Indian legislature chooses to promulgate them, a state of things which the 43rd Section of the Charter Act was expressly framed to prevent

"I am also of opinion, upon the Construction of the whole of the Section 36 of 3 and 4, Vic. Cap 37, that the offence is one cognizable by the criminal courts, and that a magistrate has power to enforce the penalty.

"The 3 and 4, Vic, Cap 37, was a Mutiny Act for the Company's European forces, and although a great many of its provisions have been recently superseded by a new Mutiny Act (12 and 13, Vic Cap. 43,) yet the Act 3 and 4, Vic. has not been entirely repealed, and the 36th Section still remains in force.

"I am at a loss to understand the principle upon which the case of D'Souza versus Wroughton, IV., Sudder Dewanny Reports, was decided; but as that case occurred before the passing of the late Charter Act, it seems unnecessary to consider it more particularly."

No. 52.

Calling attention to Section 6, Regulation VI. 1803, which enjoins magistrates to satisfy themselves that all confessions made by prisoners are free and voluntary, and to other matters.

THE Court think it proper to remind magistrates, that by Section 6, Regulation VI. of 1803, they are "strictly enjoined to satisfy themselves that all confessions made by prisoners are free and voluntary," and are "further required to take special care that persons upon being apprehended are not made to suffer corporal punishment, or otherwise illtreated, under the pretence of compelling them to answer truly to questions which may be put to them, or any other pretext whatever."

2. Few young officers, they observe, are aware how often confessions are not spontaneous; and, therefore, the magistrates themselves, who are responsible for the discretion with which they entrust their duties to their subordinates and assistants, are bound to exercise a peculiarly watchful care and supervision in this important matter. In connection with this subject, the Court are pleased to direct that, whenever, in capital cases, confessions are taken by other than covenanted officers, the magistrates shall assign the special reasons which made such a measure necessary or advisable.

3. More attention than is now apparent should be paid to the record of confessions, in order to ensure the legibility and distinctness of such serious documents as they are. A few minutes more spent in writing would sometimes prevent the waste of hours in reading them, and obviate doubts as well as trouble. The handwriting of some confessions which have lately been before the Court is disgraceful.

4. Greater pains should be bestowed on the preparation of the sketches prescribed by Clause 3, Section 13, Regulation XX. of 1817. A scale should be adopted for the purpose of showing the relative distance of one object from another. A house and a tree need not be represented by precisely the same diagram.

5. The sessions judges are requested to remark that, in cases referred or appealed to the Nizamut Adawlut, such maps and a copy of the calendar, when they form part of the proceedings should always accompany them, and that without such maps it is frequently impossible to understand the English reports, or the contents of the Persian misl.

6. As the Court have also noticed, that the rules laid down in paragraph 6 of Circular Order No. 54, dated 16th July, 1830, regarding the transfer of certain essential papers from the magistrate's proceedings to the record of trial, and in Circular Order No. 211, dated 28th October, 1836, respecting the specification in the calendar of all documentary evidence produced in cases of forgery, embezzlement and the like, are now frequently neglected, they desire that in future they may not, on any occasion, be overlooked.

7. In conclusion the Court take the opportunity of notifying to sessions judges, that it is in their opinion highly inexpedient to compose a jury entirely of vakeels and mookhtears, or of less than three persons.

Promulgates Advocate General's opinion on the scope of Act 3 and 4, Victoria, Chapter 37.

THE following extract from a letter addressed to the Court by the Advocate General, with reference to the scope of Act 3 and 4, Victoria, Chapter 37, is published for general information :—

"I am of opinion that the 40th Section of the 3rd and 4th Victoria, Chapter 37, limits the operation of the Statute to the parties specified in that Section, and that persons not belonging to any of the classes of persons mentioned in the 40th Section are not punishable under the 36th Section. This Construction is somewhat strengthened by the 11th Clause, which shows that the parties (without any exception being mentioned) intended to be tried and punished under the Act, are the parties subject to its provisions according to the 40th Section.

"It is possible that this Construction may not be consistent with the intention of those who framed the Statute, but I can put no other construction on the enactment, which, being of a penal nature, must be construed strictly.

"The New Mutiny Act for the East India Company's Forces, (Statute 12 and 13, Victoria, Chapter 43), although it re-enacts with alterations almost all the Clauses in the 3rd and 4th Victoria, Chapter 37, does not alter, re-enact, or repeal the 26th Section of that Statute."

Extract of a letter, No. 140, dated the 21*st February,* 1851, to the Sessions Judge of Moorshedabad.

With reference to the question which you put in your 3rd paragraph, the Court are of opinion that the order of a sessions judge, directing the levy of a fine under the provisions of Act XVI. of 1850, should not be carried into execution until the period allowed for appeal has elapsed, and, in the event of an appeal being made, until the final sentence has been passed. I AM directed by the Court to send you an extract (paragraphs 8 and 9,) from a letter from the Secretary to the Government of Bengal, No. 908, dated 28th ultimo, directing the sessions judges to bring to the notice of the Court, for ultimate report to Government in serious instances, cases of palpable disregard of the forms of law in the proceedings of a magisterial officer, detected on appeal, or otherwise.

Extract (paragraphs 8 and 9,) from a letter from the Secretary to the Government of Bengal, No. 908, dated 28*th April,* 1851.

mate report to Government, in serious instances, cases of palpable disregard of the forms of the law officer in the proceedings of a magistrate, detected on appeal or otherwise.

Para. 8. For this reason the Deputy Governor requests that the Court will issue orders to the sessions judges, directing them to report to the Nizamut Adawlut every case of palpable disregard of the forms of law in the proceedings of a magisterial officer, which may come to their notice, on appeal, or otherwise. The Court will inform the judges that they will be held strictly responsible for the proper discharge of this duty.

Para. 9. When such a case is reported to the Court, in this manner, the Court will take such notice of it as may seem to them proper. And the Court will always report to Government every serious instance in which any magistrate is found by them to have made himself a second time justly liable to blame, for disregard of the forms of law.

No. 60.

Publishes extract of a letter from the Government of the N. W. P., explanatory of the Notification of the 7th March preceding, regarding charges against Native officers.

WITH a view to prevent misconception of the meaning of the notification in the Judicial Department, No. 824, dated 7th March last, which appeared in the Government Gazette of the 11th idem, the following extract from a letter, No. 1527, addressed to the Court on the 28th ultimo, by the Secretary to the Government, North-Western Provinces, is published for general information :—

"The Lieutenant Governor observes that it is evident, from the terms both of the Sudder Board's Circular, dated 11th October, 1844, and of the Government Notification, dated 7th ultimo, that the restrictions therein contained are only intended to apply to cases in which it might be desired to institute proceedings on the part of Government against the native officers referred to. There seems little reason to apprehend that the orders in question will be construed to prohibit the magistrates from entertaining bonâ fide complaints from individuals, which may be brought forward in regular course against such officers."

Prohibits drawing money for a specific object, and appropriating it, when the object has been otherwise provided for.

THE Court issue the following Circular, by order of Government, as communicated in the Under-Secretary's letter No. 673, dated 28th ultimo :—

"A case having recently occurred in which an officer continued many months to draw a sum of money for a specific object, when that object had been otherwise provided for, and thus appropriated to his own use a sum to which he had no title, inasmuch as it should have been saved to the state, I am directed by the Deputy Governor of Bengal to inform you that the Court of Directors, after severely censuring the conduct of the Officer in question, have intimated that any such delinquencies will in future be punished by dismissal from the service of Government."

Modifying Construction No. 1349, regarding jurisdiction of criminal courts to interfere with moveable property.

In modification of Construction No. 1349, the Courts of Nizamut Adawlut for the Presidency and North-Western Provinces have held that the criminal Courts can only have jurisdiction to interfere with possession of moveable property, when it has been acquired under circumstances which would authorise the laying of a direct criminal charge—such as theft, or fraud, or criminal trespass, and the like. The words "illegal and forcible dispossession" used in the Construction, imply a power in the magistrates to assert, on more general grounds, the title of any party to possession of moveable proporty,—a power which, in the opinion of the Courts, cannot legally be exercised by them.

With referrence to the Circular Order, No. 106, of March 18th, 1842, and the provisions of Section 5, Act XXXI. of 1841, I am directed to desire that, whenever you may have occasion to forward a report under the Circular Order in question, together with the record of a case, for the orders of this Court, you will, in the first instance, communicate a copy of your intended report to the magistrate, or other officer, whose order you wish to bring under the Court's notice, with a view to that officer submitting such explanation of the nature and grounds of his proceeding as he may think proper to offer.

Should you, on receipt of this explanation, continue to think it necessary that the case should be laid before this Court, you will then attach the explanation of the magistrate, or other officer, to your report, with any remarks in regard to it which may seem to you to be material.

"I am of opinion that a justice of the peace, acting in that office only, has no judicial power where a charge for an assault is preferred by one British subject against another British subject, and that he can only commit the party, if he think fit so to do, for trial by the Supreme Court."

Forwards Court's Resolution rescinding Construction No. 819, regarding review of criminal orders.

I am directed to forward to you, for your information, the following Resolution recorded by the Court on this date, rescinding Construction No. 819.

RESOLUTION.

The Court rescind Construction No. 819, and resolve that when review of a criminal order passed by a judge of the Court, present at the time of the application, is applied for, it shall be disposed of by him, without reference to the other judges of the Court. If the application be for review of an order passed by a judge absent on leave, or no longer attached to the Court, the provisions of Section 17, Regulation XXV. of 1814 shall be the rule of procedure.

TO THE CRIMINAL AUTHORITIES IN THE LOWER PROVINCES.

Lower Provinces, 26th September, 1851. No. 68.

Communicating instructions regarding the discretionary employment of pleaders on behalf of Government in criminal trials which may be thought especially to require it.

THE Court promulgate the following instructions, contained in a letter No. 446, dated 22nd May last, from Mr. Secretary Halliday to the address of the Secretary to the Government of Bengal, for observance by the magistrates regarding the discretionary employment of pleaders on behalf of Government in criminal trials, which may be thought especially to require it. All instances of pleaders being so employed, with the fee settled in each case, are, until further orders, to be reported by the magistrate through the sessions judge for the Court's information.

"The President in Council directs me to observe that the employment of a Government pleader in criminal trials in the session Courts, does not appear to be thought necessary by the Sudder Court, except in cases in which, under the Act of 1850, pleaders may appear on the part of prisoners. These cases may be expected to be few, and it will probably be only prisoners of some pecuniary means who are found to take advantage of the Act. But to prisoners of such means, the President in Council doubts if it would in the main be safe to oppose such vakeels as could be retained for the very small salary of 15 rupees a month, and it may at all events hardly seem necessary to pay these vakeels all through the year for services which will perhaps be seldom called into action.

"Until, therefore, the extent of the operation of Act XXXVIII. of 1850, is better known, the President in Council is of opinion that it will be sufficient to empower the magistrates, under proper checks, to employ good pleaders on behalf of Government in any particular cases which may be thought especially to require it, and to pay a suitable and sufficient fee on every such occasion for the service performed."

TO THE SEVERAL CRIMINAL AUTHORITIES IN THE LOWER PROVINCES.

No. 70.

Lower Provinces, 14th November, 1851.

Instructions (in rescission of Circular Order, No. 15, dated 7th July, 1848,) as to the course to be pursued in cases of defective commitments.

THE Court issue the following Circular Order in rescission of No. 15, dated 7th July 1848.

2. They are of opinion that there is nothing either in the spirit or the terms of Act XXXI. of 1841, which restricts the sessions judges from directing the re-commitment of a prisoner upon a higher or different charge from that on which he is arraigned, as they consider to be suitable to the facts proved by the evidence in the case.

3. The usual, and by far the most frequent occasion, for the alteration of charges by a sessions judge will arise on his first taking up a case, and "comparing carefully the written charge on which the prisoner is committed with the facts of the case, as stated in the magistrate's roobukaree of commitment," as set forth in paragraph 2 of Circular Order, No. 135, dated 22nd February 1833. If, however, the alteration should be required to be made upon the facts of a case, as derived from the evidence taken and well established before the sessions judge, (this being a power to be exercised only on the plainest and strongest grounds), the proceedings in the trial should at once be stopped, and the case remanded to the magistrate with the necessary directions for a fresh commitment. This latter mode of procedure will of course never be followed after the defence has, at the close of the evidence for the prosecution, been taken from a prisoner on the charge as laid against him by the magistrate.

4. Reference is directed to Constructions No. 782, (dated 12th April, 1833,) and No. 1122, (dated 29th December, 1837,) the former of which declares that the commitment may be cancelled in a case which the magistrate has power to dispose of, and the latter rules that a commitment cannot be cancelled merely on the ground of the evidence shown in the calendar appearing insufficient for conviction. In cases* too in which a magistrate is at liberty to exercise his discretion in bringing the accused to trial in the sessions court, the sessions judge cannot cancel the commitment, because he differs in regard to the tribunal before which the case should be brought, but the special reasons inducing commitment should be assigned by the magistrate, otherwise it will be liable to annulment.

5. There are various Circular Orders†, which prescribe rules for the proper framing of charges, due attention to which, on the part of the magisterial authorities, with a thorough scrutiny of all the facts of the cases sent up by them for trial, should prevent the occurrence of errors in the drawing of commitments.

6. In modification of the Circular Orders as at foot* the Court direct that reports be not hereafter made to them when a commitment is cancelled by sessions judges. The judges will exercise their discretion on this point, as in other parts of their duties, on their own responsibility, though they may of course make any special report to the Court, which they may, in particular instances, think necessary for its information.

Instructions for the classification of miscellaneous offences in the magistrate's monthly statement, No. II, part I.

THE attention of the Court has been drawn to the great want of regular and legal specification and classification of miscellaneous offences in the magistrate's monthly criminal statement No. II, part I. They, therefore, publish the subjoined list of miscellaneous offences, which was circulated by the Western Court with their Circular Order, No. 36, of 11th April, 1850, for general observance from the 1st January, 1852.

2. The proper arrangement of this class of offences is a very important matter, to which magistrates must, in the preparation of the statement No. II, part I., direct their personal attention, and class each offence under its appropriate heading. Likewise the sessions judges are required to subject the statement in question to close examination, and to call upon the magistrate for a general and succinct description of the several cases which may be placed by him under one head, should they have reason to suppose that their classification is incorrect and vague.

† The corresponding Circular of the Western Court being, with the exception of the first paragraph, which was not adopted by the Calcutta Court, embodied in this Circular, is omitted from this Edition. The first paragraph referred to, is—

"The Court of Nizamut Adawlut, North-Western Provinces, having had before them the returns to their Circular No. 83, dated the 23rd January last, issued with a view to the adoption of a uniform classified schedule of miscellaneous offences in the magistrate's monthly criminal statement No. II, part I., are pleased to publish the subjoined list of miscellaneous offences for general observance."

3. The following paragraphs 2, 3 and 4 from the Western Court's Circular, No. 36, of 11th April, 1850, above referred to, are published, that the directions therein contained may be duly attended to by the magistrates and sessions judges subordinate to the Presidency Court :—

(2). " The offences have been arranged and numbered alphabetically and in their entries in the column of 'description of crimes, in the statement under reference,' magistrates will be careful to use the terms here applied to each offence, citing marginally the letter and the number belonging to it."

(3). " Whenever a magistrate may think it impossible to bring any particular offence under any one of the definitions now published, he will make use of such additional specification as he may think appropriate, reporting the same briefly to the sessions judge in sending up his monthly statements. The sessions judge will either note his approval in submitting them to the Nizamut Adawlut, or will direct the magistrate to alter the specification as he may think fit. But whenever a new definition, not included in the list now published, is made use of, it should be written in red ink."

(4). " The schedule now published will probably be found imperfect, offences may be brought forward not sufficiently indicated in it. But the Court have no doubt that if magistrates and sessions judges will give their attention to define carefully any such exceptions, the list will ere long be perfected without difficulty. Sessions judges are requested in their annual reports to note what new specifications of crime it has been found necessary to adopt, and the Court propose to publish an amended schedule, should such be found necessary, after receiving the suggestions of the judges with the annual statements of the current year.*"

Calling attention to the careful and proper framing of charges of embezzlement, under Section 13, Act XIII. of 1850.

I AM directed by the Court of Nizamut Adawlut to call the attention of the magistrates and sessions judges to the careful and proper framing of charges of embezzlement under Section 13, Act XIII. of 1850. The charges, in various instances, which have come before the Court, do not set forth the nature and purpose of the trust, and it is important that the accused should be distinctly informed what trust he is charged with having abused. The distinction between embezzlement and theft being nice, in cases of embezzlement under the Act, a count for theft arising out of the same Act should be added, as a conviction for theft cannot be had in a charge of embezzlement only.

2. The Court are aware that, under Section 14 of the Act above-mentioned, power is given to make any amendments in the charge that may be necessary, and under the recent Circular Order, No. 13, of the 14th ultimo, sessions judges are competent to alter the charge from embezzlement to theft. What the Court desire to point out is that the insertion of both counts in the commitment by a magistrate, and, where this has been omitted, the correction of the error by the sessions judges, will prevent delay, and enable this Court, on appeal, to deal with either charge, accordingly as one or the other may appear to be the most strictly applicable to the facts of the case.

2. The Court further direct that, in future, all witnesses to confessions, whether before the police or magistrates, have their expenses paid for attendance on the sessions trial, at the rate laid down in Section 26, Regulation IX. of 1793, as they are generally of a class, to whom the assistance permitted by that law, may be very properly given.

From the Magistrate of 24-Pergunnahs, to the Register of the Nizamut Adawlut, No. 1415, dated 23rd December, 1851.

SIR,

I have the honor to submit the following case for the opinion of the Advocate General.

2. A British subject, of the name of Moran, was fined 400 Rupees by the joint magistrate, Mr. C. W. Mackillop, for an aggravated assault on one Rodrigues, a native of India, under Section 105, Statute 53, George III., Cap. 155. Failing to pay the fine, his property, consisting of a house in Entally, was attached; 15 days' notice of sale was given, and the rights and interests of the defendant Moran in the aforesaid house were finally sold at a public auction to a Mr. Cones, for 1,850 Rupees, which have been duly deposited with Mr. Mackillop, who, I may add, for the Advocate General's information, is vested with the full powers of a magistrate. Moran, however, refuses to give possession of the house, and it is said has put forward a third party to claim it as his own. Under these circumstances Mr. Mackillop has retained the purchase-money in deposit, and applied to me for advice. There are several points involved in the case, however, on which I do not feel competent to decide, and as the consequences of a mistake may be serious to Mr. Mackillop, and the question of the proper mode of levying fines on the property of British-born subjects is one of general importance, I would solicit the Advocate General's replies to the following queries:

1. In case of conviction under the Statute 53, George III., Cap. 155, Section 105, should the defendant be allowed any time for the payment of the fine, or should the warrant issue against his property, on his failing to pay the amount before he leaves the Court?

2. Has the magistrate any authority in a case under this Section to detain the defendant or take bail for his appearance until he can ascertain whether he is possessed of property within the district, or must he allow him to leave the Court, and take his chance of being able to apprehend him again, if it should eventually turn out that he has no property?

3. Is the magistrate bound to employ the police in searching for defendant's property, or may he commit him at once if the defendant fail to satisfy him before leaving Court that he has property upon which the fine may be levied?

4. Is the process which Mr. Mackillop adopted, necessary or correct; that is to say, is attachment and notice indispensable prior to the sale, and was Mr. Mackillop correct in limiting the sale to Moran's rights and interests?

5. Does the Statute contemplate the sale of real as well as of personal* property? It will be seen that the term employed is general.

6. Is Mr. Mackillop authorised to use force in dispossessing Moran and putting Cones in possession, or should he give the latter a certificate of sale, and leave him to establish his claim to the property in the Civil Court; or generally, in what way under the circumstances, should Mr. Mackillop give effect to the sale?

7. In the event of Cones' failing to obtain possession, would Mr. Mackillop be held responsible for the amount of the purchase-money, which Cones has paid in? If so, would he be justified in retaining the money until the result of these proceedings is known?

I have, &c.,

E. A. SAMUELLS,

Magistrate.

OPINION.

1. In ordinary cases, where the magistrate has authority to impose a fine, and in default of payment, imprison, the party convicted is called upon presently to pay, and in default is forthwith committed to prison. Under the Statute in question, the power to imprison is only given in default of "property" within the district in which the fine could be levied; so that unless it be at the time of conviction proved before the magistrate, or confessed by the party fined, that he has no property within the district, an attempt to levy by warrant must be made before the magistrate can commit the offender. I think that after conviction and demand of the fine the magistrate may, in default of payment, immediately issue his warrant to levy the fine, and that default will be incurred if the offender, after demand made of payment, shall quit the Court without making payment.

2. I am of opinion that the magistrate has no authority, after conviction passed, to detain the defendant, or require bail for his appearance, till it be ascertained whether there be property within the district on which the fine can be levied. He can only take bail under Section 105 in such cases as are therein specified. If, however, it be at the time of conviction proved before the magistrate, or confessed by the offender, that he has no property within the district, the magistrate (after recording the proof or confession last mentioned) may, in my opinion, at once commit for the fine.

3. The offender is, in my opinion, not bound upon conviction to disclose his property, or to declare whether he has property or not, but if he either is proved or confesses to have no property within the district, he may, as already mentioned, be at once committed. If he be known to have property, or if it be doubtful whether he have any within the district, the magistrate should issue his warrant to levy, and deliver it to his officers for execution in the usual manner. The offender may rebut the proof tendered of his having no property, and give evidence of his having property, to prevent immediate commitment as above, and the magistrate is bound to receive such evidence if tendered, and should call upon the offender to say whether he has anything to offer in contradiction of the evidence of no property.

4. I suppose by attachment is meant a warrant to levy the fine on the property of the offender within the district, for that is the only process given by the Statute.

Notice of the seizure and intended sale by public advertisement, and, if practicable, by service on the offender himself, should, in all cases, be given, and seems to me indispensable; and the shortest notice that should be given is such as is requisite in cases of distress for rent or the like.

5. The word "property" is comprehensive enough to include real as well as personal property. It is probable that personal or chattel interests only were contemplated in the framing of the Act; for at that time no British subject could hold real estate (property), except by license. But inasmuch as by the terms of the Charter, real property is subjected to fieri facias, and is saleable for debts in execution agreeably with personalty, I am of opinion that in default of sufficient personal property, the warrant of the magistrate to levy under the Act (Statute) in question, may be executed on the real property, if any, of the offender. I am, however, of opinion, that it should be in all cases executed, in the first instance, on the personalty, where any is to be found, for, as the Act makes no provision for the transfer of reality to the purchaser, difficulties may arise as to his title, especially if he sue for possession in Her Majesty's Court. It was correct to sell only the right, title, and interest, (or property) of the offender.

6. The magistrate, or his officer, may deliver over personal property, seized and sold under the warrant, to the purchasers; but has no authority to dispossess the party in possession of realty, or to deliver possession of it to the purchaser. He must leave him to recover possession by process of law. It may be that the offender has not the right of possession, but only the right of property. The magistrate should deliver to the purchaser the certificate or other document usually delivered in the Mofussil to purchasers under judicial execution, and there ends his duty.

7. If the executing officer has sold (as he ought) merely the right, title, and interest of the offender, the purchaser has no remedy against the magistrate, should that right, &c., prove to be moonshine. The risk of what property may be in the offender lies in the purchaser. Of course, I presume that no assurance of title or interest was held out to the purchaser at the time of sale. The magistrate having given no guarantee of title, can have no right to retain the surplus till title be ascertained.

Lower Provinces, 9th March, 1852.

No. 80.

Communicating instructions regarding the entry, and rendering in the Vernacular of the offence generally designated plundering (Loot-oo-Taraj), which does not amount to robbery by open violence, as defined in Clause 1, Section 3, Regulation LIII. of 1803.

THE Court, having had under consideration the description of offence generally designated by magistrates as "plundering" (Loot-oo-Taraj) which does not amount to robbery by open violence, as defined in Clause 1, Section 3, Regulation LIII. of 1803, in consequence of the absence of proof of the criminal intent of committing robbery at the time of going forth of the party, which is a necessary ingredient of the foregoing offence as declared in the above Regulation, publish for general information, the following questions, addressed to their law officer, and the futwa delivered by him on the subject :—

A number of persons are sent to commit violence in a house, for such a purpose as to beat the owner, or carry some person away by force, or to prevent a marriage or the like. Robberry or plunder of any property from any person is not a part of the intention with which they go to the house; but, being there, they seize and forcibly bring away and appropriate to their own use the articles of property they find in the house. How is plunder of this kind, committed not on any person, but yet committed openly, regarded by the Mahomedan Criminal Law?—Is it punishable as a crime, and under what head of the Mahomedan Law, and to what punishment is it liable?

State your opinion and name the authorities.

Question 2nd.

State the like opinion and authorities if the property be not carried away and appropriated, but wasted and destroyed?

Answer to the 1st Question.

The offence in question (i. e., plunder of the description mentioned in the question) is a crime under the head of ghusub, or usurpation, because ghusub in its literal sense means the forcibly taking a thing from another, and in law it signifies the taking of the property of another, (provided it be capable of being valued and be sacred,)* without the consent of the owner, in such a manner as to destroy the possession of the owner.

If the same is committed knowingly and wilfully, the act is held to be a criminal one, and the offender becomes responsible for a zuman, or compensation; and if it is committed erroneously, the act is nevertheless liable for compensation, because a compensation is the right of man, and it cannot be dispensed with owing to the actor not having wilfully committed the act, but in this case the act will not be a criminal one, as it is only an erroneous offence.

In the above case, the offenders will also be liable to punishment by tazeer, at the discretion of the hakim.

Answer to the 2nd Question.

In this case also the offender will be responsible for compensation of the property destroyed and wasted, and liable to punishment by tazeer.

* Sacred property are those which are regarded and respected as such under the Mahomedan Law.

They are the property of Mussulmans, of Zimmees, viz., foreigners, who have permanently settled themselves under the protection of the Mahomedan ruler, and of Moostamins, viz., foreign traders, &c., who have temporarily (for any period under one year) settled themselves under the protection of the Mahomedan ruler.

Quotes a well-known Arabic example to the effect that "whoever shall destroy another's property must be liable for compensation."

2. With reference to the above exposition of law, the Court direct that cases of the foregoing kind, not amounting to dacoity as defined in Clause 1, Section 3, Regulation LIII. of 1803, be entered in part I, Statement No. II, "as riotous assault with forcible plundering or destruction of property, not amounting to dacoity," and that the heading be added under the letter R. to the list specified in Circular Order, No. 71, dated 21st November, 1851.

3. The terms to be used in Oordoo and Bengalee are—

هنگامه و تاخت مع غصبًا لیجانے یا تاراج کرنے مال کے جوآئینًا ڈکیتي نهو

হঙ্গামা করিযা আক্রমন পূর্ব্বক বলে দ্রব্য লূট বা নষ্ট করণ কিন্তু আইন অনুসারে ডাকাইতি নয়।

4. In charging prisoners, should there be doubt as to the exact offence, whether dacoity or the riotous assault with plunder, the Court direct that they be charged on both counts, as that on failure of conviction on the one offence, it may be had on the other.

Promulgating instructions in regard to the disposal of cases of female child-stealing.

THE Court have lately had before them several cases of female child-stealing, referred for their orders under Clause 1, Section 4, Regulation VI. of 1832, the circumstances of which would have admitted of their being disposed of by the district authorities under the provisions of Section 2, Regulation VII. of 1819; they are pleased, therefore, to call attention to the Rules contained therein, and to point out that, whenever the circumstances of the case may clearly bring it within the intent and meaning of the Section of the Regulation above quoted, it should be taken up under it, the charge against the accused being so framed as to correspond with the exact words of the Section; and that, on conviction, the magistrate should either proceed to dispose of the case himself, by passing sentence upon the offender within the limit of Section 19, Regulation IX. of 1807, or if that sentence appear to him inadequate, by committing the case to the sessions judge, in order that he may dispose of it, under the provisions of Section 6, Regulation XVII. of 1817, which have been declared applicable to such commitments.

Directing that the entries under No. 9, of letter A. and No. 8, of letter S. in the Schedule of offences, accompanying the Circular Order, No. 71, dated the 21st November last, be struck out of that Schedule, and certain rules observed.

THE entries, under No. 9 of letter A. and No. 8 of letter S. in the Schedule of offences, accompanying the Court's Circular Order, No. 71, dated the 21st November last, viz., "attempts to commit any of the offences detailed in this Statement" and "suicide, attempt to commit," having led to a difference of practice in the entry of attempts to commit offences not specified under the first 41 headings of Part I., Statement No. I., in Statement No. II. the Court direct that those entries be struck out of the number of the offences enumerated under the letters A. and S. of the Schedule above referred to and the following Rules observed:—

2. When there has been an attempt to commit an offence not specified under the first 41 headings of Part I., Statement No. I., the substantive offence should be entered in Column 1, Part I., of Statement No. II., and the remaining columns of that statement left blank, the attempt to commit being entered in Part II., Statement No. II., in the same manner as if the substantive offence had been one of those appearing in Part I, of Statement No. I, according to the following exemplar.

3. In such instances, the case of attempt will be entered under heading 43 of Statement No. I, but no entry will be made under heading 42 of the same Statement.

No. 85.

With reference to the accompanying Rules, which have been this day promulgated with the approval of Government, regarding the appearance of the Superintendent and Remembrancer of Legal Affairs as Government Advocate in the Nizamut Adawlut, the Court direct the magistrates to make the Government prosecutor or co-prosecutor in all heinous cases, so that there may be no formal defect of power to appear in the Court of Nizamut Adawlut, in the Government Advocate.

With reference to rules which have been promulgated regarding the appearance of the Superintendent and Remembrancer of Legal Affairs as Government Advocate in the Nizamut Adawlut, magistrates directed to make the Government prosecutor or co-prosecutor in all heinous cases.

RULES.

The Court promulgate the following Rules, approved of by Government, as signified in Mr. Officiating Under-Secretary Young's letter, No. 1092, of the 20th instant, relative to the appearance of the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs in the capacity of Government Advocate or his Deputies in the Court, and his relation to the superintendent of police and to the magistrates:—

1. In appealed or referred cases, the Government Advocate shall be competent to appear, and he shall ordinarily appear by himself, or at his discretion, either by the senior or junior Government pleader, on behalf of the Government, in all cases in which Government has been the prosecutor, and in which a pleader is employed for the prisoner. And it shall be further competent to him to make appearance, in like manner, in any appealed or referred case, instituted on the prosecution of Government, in which, although no pleader may have been engaged for a prisoner, it may seem to him, acting in communication with the superintendent of police, or directly with the magistrates, when there may not be time for a reference to the superintendent of police, important that there should be an appearance by a pleader on behalf of the Government.

2. Pleaders, appearing for a prisoner in appealed cases, shall be bound to give in to the register's office, at a time not less than one week before the date fixed by the Court for the public hearing of the appeal, a note, under distinct heads, of the pleas of fact and of law on which he rests his appeal, and the register shall cause such note to be transferred to the senior Government pleader. But it shall be competent to such pleader for the prisoner, on leave of the Court, to put in, at the hearing of the appeal, any further pleas of law, which he may desire to argue. The register shall also intimate to the senior Government pleader when a pleader may be appointed on behalf of a prisoner in a referred case.

3. The Government Advocate shall, through the senior Government pleader, give immediate notice to the office of the register, when he may intend to appear in a case in which no pleader has been engaged for a prisoner, and the register shall thereupon intimate the same to the judge to whom the case has been submitted, and the judge shall fix such date as he may think suitable for the public hearing and decision of the case.

4. It shall also be competent to the Court to call for the appearance of the Government Advocate, either by himself, or by the Government pleaders, as he may determine, in any case in which, from its special character, they may consider that such an appearance would be manifestly conducive to the better administration of justice.

5. In cases whether referred or appealed, in which there may be an appearance for the Government, as above provided, without the previous employment of a pleader on behalf of the prisoners charged or convicted, the Court shall be competent to nominate a pleader to appear on behalf of the prisoner, and to assign to him such remuneration as it may deem suitable, not exceeding Rupees 200 in any case; such amount to be paid on a contingent bill, under the countersignature of the register of the Court.

Rules regarding the relation of the Government Advocate to the superintendent of police, and the magistrates.

6. The superintendent of police shall give such directions to the magistrates, as he may deem necessary, in order to their apprizing the Government Advocate of the cases, whether referred or appealed, in which it may be thought by them of importance, that there should be an appearance before the Nizamut Adawlut on behalf of the Government, and he will also, in the discretion which belongs to his office, communicate directly with the Government Advocate regarding such cases as he may see fit.

7. The Government Advocate shall, after any communication with the magistrates which he may find necessary, correspond with the superintendent of police, on the subject of any case in which, whether a pleader shall or shall not have been engaged on the part of a prisoner, it may appear to him unadvisable that he should make appearance in Court, whether by himself or his deputies, on behalf of Government. If after such correspondence with the superintendent of police, an appearance shall still appear inexpedient to the Government Advocate, he may, in his discretion, refrain from appearing, and the case shall then be left to be disposed of by the Court upon consideration of the record, after hearing the pleader for the prisoner, in any case in which such pleader may have been employed.

8. The Government Advocate shall have the power of calling for explanatory information from the magistrates in regard to any case in which under the preceding Rules, it may become his duty to appear, or to consider the propriety of appearing in Court. And he may also, where necessary, solicit information on any point of importance connected with the course and circumstances of a trial, from the sessions judges.

No. 91.

Publishing Advocate General's opinion regarding the amenability of British officers and soldiers to magistrates, under the Statute 53, George III., Chapter 155.

THE Court publish for general information, the copy of an opinion given by the Advocate General, regarding the amenability of British officers and soldiers to magistrates, under the Statute 53 George III., Chapter 155, with reference to the provisions of Act 4 George IV., Chapter 81 and Regulation XX. of 1825.

ADVOCATE GENERAL'S OPINION.

The Statute 4 George IV., Chapter 81, although it repealed the next or 106th Section of the Statute 53 George III., Chapter 155, leaves the 105th Section unrepealed, and the Regulation XX. of 1825, which was enacted by a subordinate legislature, and in my opinion solely with a view of carrying out the provisions of the Statute 4 George IV., Chapter 81, cannot in any way affect the operation of the Statute 53 George III., Chapter 155.

The Statute 4 George IV., Chapter 81, has been amended and re-enacted by successive enactments, 3 and 4 Victoria, Chapter 37, and the 12th and 13th Victoria, Chapter 43; under the latter Acts the same powers as were formerly conferred upon Courts Martial, distant more than 120 miles from the Presidency, have been continued, but they both contain an express provision that nothing in those Acts contained shall be construed to exempt any officer or soldier from being proceeded against by the ordinary course of law, a provision which leaves the jurisdiction of the magistrates under Statute 53 George III., Chapter 155 and Act No. V. of 1848, and of the Supreme Courts, wholly untouched.

With respect to offences committed by British officers and soldiers, and not falling within the terms of the Statute 53 George III., or Act V. of 1848, I am of opinion that they are only cognizable by the Supreme Courts and by Courts Martial, both of which Courts appear to me to have concurrent jurisdiction over British officers, resident beyond 120 miles from the Presidency.

TO THE CRIMINAL AUTHORITIES IN THE LOWER AND NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES.

Western Provinces, 11th and Lower Provinces, 29th October, 1852.

No. 98.

Directing the extension to the criminal department of certain Rules in regard to filed stamps, prescribed by the Circular Order, No. 55, of the 14th May, 1844.

The Court substitute the following Circular Order for Circular Order No. 11, dated 27th August last:—

The Court are pleased to direct the extension to the criminal department of the following Rules, in regard to filed stamps, prescribed by* paragraph 4 of Circular Order, No. 55, of the 14th May 1844.

All stamps filed and not liable to be returned, are to be punched.

In old cases, the duty is to be performed by the serishtadar of the zillah court or magistrate's office, but under the supervision of the judge or magistrate.

In pending cases, the punching is to be effected by the same officer, after decision and before consigning them to the record office.

Stamps which may be now filed, will be punched by the serishtadar or other officer receiving it, and judges and magistrates, joint, assistant and deputy magistrates of all grades, when signing the order for filing, are to see that the Rule is observed.

Blank stamps which are filed to make up for deficient value of any petition, &c.

In old cases, such stamps are to be destroyed by the zillah judges or magistrates, and a certificate of the fact endorsed on the principal stamp.

In pending cases, the same course is to be followed after decision and before consigning them to the record office.

No. 99.

Criminal authorities directed in passing sentence upon parties for misdemeanors, or for offences subjecting them to punishment under Section 19, Regulation

THE Court, having had under consideration, on a reference made to it under Regulation X. of 1796, the legality of adding a sentence of labour on conviction by magisterial authorities of parties for misdemeanor, or for offences subjecting them to punishment under Section 19, Regulation IX. of 1807, have intimated in reply that, "whereas by Clause 1, Section 5, Regulation XIV. of 1816, magistrates can subject prisoners to labour, unless specially exempted from it by the sentences passed upon them, it follows that there can be no impropriety in including labour as a portion of the recorded sentence against them, when it is thought fit that labour should be imposed, and that it is, indeed, preferable that it should be so recorded, as it is by the officer who has had judicial knowledge of the case that the propriety of imposing labour can best be determined."

2. You are directed, in conformity with the principle of the above order, in passing sentence in cases of the nature indicated, invariably to record, whether the imprisonment is to be with or without labour.

No. 100. Lower Provinces, 6th January, 1853.

A magistrate may enforce the attendance of a British subject to give evidence in a criminal case, as he would the attendance of any other witness; and under Regulation IV. of 1793, may cause him to be seized and brought before his court, but he has no power to punish him, if he refuse to give evidence. In such case, if the evidence be material, the Government may indict him in the Supreme Court for obstruction of justice.

A tender of expenses with the subpœna, to such witness, if poor, is necessary to secure his con-

THE Court circulate for general information the following questions addressed to the Advocate General, and that Officer's replies to them :—

Questions.	Answers.
I. Whether, in the event of a British-born subject, out of Calcutta, evading or disregarding a subpœna to attend to give evidence before a mofussil magistrate, the latter can issue his warrant to have the witness brought up for the purpose of giving his evidence, which includes the further question of what power can be exercised, or procedure followed by a mofussil magistrate for the punishment of a British subject refusing to give evidence after being brought before him?	I. I am of opinion that a British subject, resident in the mofussil, is not exempted from appearing as a witness in a criminal case pending in the Courts of the East India Company, and that the magistrate has full power to summon such British subject, who ought to obey such summons and attend; and if this be so, then I think it follows, that the magistrate may enforce the attendance of such British subject, as he would enforce the attendance of any other witness. In summoning a British subject, and in enforcing obedience to such summons, the magistrate should be guided by the law of procedure in his own court, which appears to me to be equally applicable to all persons summoned by him as witnesses ; and he may therefore, if he thinks fit, and the evidence of the witness is material, proceed under Regulation IV. of 1793, Section VI., and seize the witness and bring him before his court.

I think, however, that the mofussil magistrate has no power to punish a witness if he refuses to give evidence when brought before him ; for although the British subject has no privilege exempting him from appearing as a witness in the Courts of the East India Company, yet he has a privilege, exempting him from punishment by a mofussil court, except in certain cases, and this is not one of such cases.

If the case should ever arise of a British subject refusing to give material evidence when summoned by, or brought before, a mofussil Court, I would recommend the Government to indict him in the Supreme Court for an obstruction of justice. It seems, that an indictment will lie, when the court, whose process is disobeyed, has no power to attach (Russell on Crimes, 497, note 2), and the Supreme Court is bound to take judicial cognizance of the existence of the mofussil criminal courts ; and I therefore think the Supreme Court is bound to punish an offence committed by a British subject, which is an obstruction of justice in such courts. I think, that if it were proved that the evidence of the witness was material, that he was personally served with summons to attend the mofussil court, that he was tendered the usual expenses allowed by such courts, and alsoviction in the Supreme Court.

The appearance in a mofussil court of a resident of Calcutta as witness, may be compelled by warrant endorsed by one of the Judges of the Supreme Court under Act XXIII. of 1840.

beyed the summons, that he would be convicted in the Supreme Court; and I am of opinion that nothing but good would result from the prosecution, even if unsuccessful, inasmuch as it would call the attention of the Legislature to the state of the law on this point.

II. Whether it is necessary, in criminal cases, to accompany subpœnas to British subjects, with a sum sufficient to defray their expenses to and from the court?

II. I am of opinion that the mofussil magistrates should be guided by the rules and procedure of their own court as to the expenses of witnesses, but if the witness is poor, and refuses to attend, the tender of his expenses would, I think, be necessary to secure his conviction in the Supreme Court.

III. How inhabitants of Calcutta, whether British subjects or Natives, can be compelled to appear before the mofussil magistrates to give their evidence?

III. The magistrate should compel the appearance of witnesses resident in Calcutta by warrant regularly endorsed by one of the judges of the Supreme Court, under Act XXIII. of 1840.

Western Provinces, 13th January, 1853.

A trial held under Section VI., Act VII. of 1845, for a breach of the Canal Law, will be proceeded with as a criminal trial under the general regulations.

THE Court notify that the mode of procedure, prescribed in criminal trials by the general Regulations, is applicable to trials held under Section VI., Act VII. of 1845, for breaches of the Canal Rules.

Records of cases disposed of under the enactment by officers invested under Section VIII. thereof, with power of joint-magistrate, will be sent at the close of each month to the magistrate of the zillah, who will place them among his records, and enter them in his statements as prescribed in Circular Order, No. 398, 11th April, 1850.

2. The Court further direct, that the records of all cases, disposed of, under the enactment by the officers invested under Section VIII. thereof, with the powers of joint magistrates, be sent by them respectively, at the end of each month, to the magistrate of the zillah, within which their jurisdiction lies, who will place them among the records of his court, and enter the cases in his periodical returns under the heading "Canal laws, breach of," which is to be introduced into the schedule of miscellaneous offences, published with the Circular Order, No. 398, dated 11th April, 1850, in its appropriate place under Letter C.

TO THE SESSIONS JUDGES IN THE LOWER PROVINCES, AND COMMISSIONERS AND DEPUTY COMMISSIONERS, &c., IN THE EXTRA-REGULATION PROVINCES.

Lower Provinces, 26th January, 1853. No. 102.

The information required in the forms of statements Nos. 11 and 13, will be supplied by the criminal authorities, and submitted with the annual criminal statements for 1853.

I AM directed by the Court to forward to you the accompanying forms of statements Nos. 11 and 13, and to request that in submitting your annual criminal statements, for the year 1853, you will give the information required therein, and forward them at the same time with the other prescribed annual statements of that period.

2. Such parts of the forms as apply to magistrates, will be prepared in the courts of those officers, and submitted at the end of the year to you, and you will embody them into one statement, with the particulars of your own Court. Columns 1 and 2 of No. 11 will be filled up by the magistrates, and Column 3 by the sessions judges, while Columns 4, 5 and 6 will be prepared by the Sudder Court; also as regards No. 13, the magistrates and sessions judges will enter such offences as they can respectively pass sentence for, and the statement when received will be filled up by the Court, for those cases which they disposed of: thus one form will contain all the information which it is intended to supply.

TO THE CRIMINAL AUTHORITIES IN THE NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES.

Western Provinces, 29th January, 1853. No. 103.

Mode of framing indictments against receivers of stolen property, with reference to the distinction pointed out in Circular Orders, Nos. 124 and 125, 12th August, 1813, and 25th January, 1819, between the receipt of stolen goods, with a criminal knowledge, and the act of retaining possession of them, after becoming aware, subsequent to receipt, of their having been stolen.

THE Court, having remarked in the monthly statements, several instances in which prisoners, who were apparently guilty of the offence of receiving stolen property, knowing it to have been stolen, were committed to the sessions court for trial on a charge of knowingly keeping stolen property in their possession, which charge does not necessarily imply that the property so retained was received with the knowledge that it had been stolen, deem it expedient to call attention to the distinction pointed out in the Circular Orders, Nos. 124 and 125, dated 12th August, 1813, and 25th January, 1819, respectively, between the receipt of stolen goods with a criminal knowledge, which is a felony, and the act of retaining possession of them when the knowledge of their having been stolen has arisen subsequently to their receipt, which is a simple misdemeanor; and to enjoin greater care and precision, in future, in framing indictments in cases of the kind in question. The Court further observe, that whenever there may be any doubt as to whether the higher or lower grade of offence has been committed, the charge should always be made for the higher grade, on the principle already laid down in paragraph 16 of the Circular Order, No. 54, dated 16th July, 1830.

Whenever a doubt exists as to the higher or lower degree of offence committed, the charge will always be made for the higher degree.

Error in the rendering of the words "capital cases" in the 2nd paragraph of Circular Order of 28th December, 1850, in the translation published in the Agra Government Gazette, corrected.

THE Court request, that an error which has been brought to their notice in the translation, published in the Agra Government Gazette of the 7th January, 1851, of their Circular Order, No. 1906, dated 28th December 1850, may be corrected by the substitution of the words مقدمات قابل حکم قتل for the words جرایم کبیرہ as the rendering of the words "capital cases" in the 2nd paragraph.

TO THE SESSIONS JUDGES IN THE LOWER PROVINCES AND CRIMINAL AUTHORITIES IN THE EXTRA-REGULATION PROVINCES.

Lower Provinces, 26th April, 1853.

No. 106.

Form prescribed for the annual criminal report of the current and future years, which will be submitted on or before the 1st February of every year, after they become due.

I AM directed by the Court to request, that you will prepare and submit the annual criminal report of your district, for the current and future years, in the form annexed, which is framed so as to show the exact state of the files under each head at the close of the year reported upon, the amount of business transacted generally by all the officers exercising criminal powers, the proportion of convictions and commitments to acquittals in heinous crimes, and the general analysis of acquittals, the number and results of the commitments and appeals before the sessions judge, the average duration of cases and the periods of detention of witnesses.

2. The report must invariably embrace the opinion of the sessions judge and the magistrate, in regard to the official character and qualifications of the several joint magistrates, deputy magistrates and assistants, covenanted or uncovenanted, employed in the district under your control.

3. Any general observations, which you, or the magistrate, may have to offer on the results exhibited in the statements, or on the criminal administration generally, should be appended to the report prepared in this form.

4. The above report, and the annual statements connected therewith, must be forwarded to this office on or before the 1st of February of every year after they become due.

TO THE MAGISTRATES AND JOINT MAGISTRATES IN THE LOWER PROVINCES.

Lower Provinces, 14th June, 1853.

No. 107.

I AM directed by the Court to forward to you, for your information and guidance, extract (paragraph 3) of a Resolution (No. 376, dated the 30th March last,) recorded on the annual criminal report and statements relating to the administration of criminal justice in the district of Nuddea for the past year, and of copy of the magistrate's letter, (No. 210, dated the 6th instant) addressed to the sessions judge of that district received in reply thereto.

Notice may be served on the defendants in a petty criminal case at the time of its institution, to give them opportunity of showing cause why they should not be summoned. This notice does not supersede the process prescribed by law for procuring attendance of accused persons.

2. The Court direct me to call your attention, and through you, of your subordinates, to the practice observed by Mr. Montresor in dealing with accused parties in petty criminal cases. This notice to the accused, you will observe, is not compulsory, nor does it in any way supersede the processes prescribed by the law for procuring the attendance of accused persons, if they do not attend voluntarily; but it may be of obvious advantage to give to a defendant, or to one of several defendants, the option of being present on the first taking of evidence upon a charge.

Extract (Paragraph 3) from a Resolution of the Presidency Nizamut Adawlut, No. 376, dated 30th March, 1853.

" The general analysis of acquittals is given in the margin. It is decidedly more satisfactory than in many other districts. The magistrate will report, through the sessions judge, on the causes which, so far as he may have been able to ascertain them, have led to so considerable a reduction in the number of persons acquitted, after having been summoned by the magistrate and the officers subordinate to him."

Copy of a letter from the Magistrate to the Sessions Judge of Nuddea, No. 210, dated the 6*th June,* 1853.

SIR,

With reference to the 3rd paragraph of Resolution No. 376 of the Presidency Court of Nizamut Adawlut, under date the 30th March last, I have the honor to state, for the information of the Court, that the diminution in the acquittals of defendants summoned by the magistrate and his subordinates has arisen in this wise.

The greater number of defendants formerly acquitted were those brought to trial in petty cases, in which probably some eight or ten defendants were named by a prosecutor and witnesses, and subsequently summoned. On the defendants being present and being unable to give some satisfactory defence, the case terminated in the acquittal of a large number of persons; for this reason the officers subordinate to this Court have been instructed by me to give the defendants an opportunity of appearing to answer the charge by notice served on them at the time of the institution of the suit, and the effect has been that some one or two of the defendants generally appear and show cause why a large number of the defendants named should not be summoned. This is the only, and I believe the direct, cause for the reduction in the number of acquittals.

I have, &c.,
C. F. MONTRESOR,
Magistrate.

TO THE SESSIONS JUDGES IN THE LOWER PROVINCES AND CRIMINAL AUTHORITIES IN THE EXTRA-REGULATION PROVINCES.

No. 109. Lower Provinces, 15*th July,* 1853.

It is not necessary to charge a party with being an accomplice, when he is charged with being a principal in a crime.

I AM directed by the Court to forward to you for your future guidance, the accompanying Extract, (paragraph 3) of a letter, written by their order, on this date, to the sessions judge of Beerbhoom, in which it is held that it will not be necessary to insert a count charging a party with being an accomplice, when he is charged with being a principal in the crime.

Extract, paragraph 3, of a letter, No. 798, dated the 15*th July,* 1853, to the Sessions Judge of Beerbhoom.

3. Although, with reference to the distinctions made by the Mahomedan Law, a Futwa may occasionally be delivered, distinguishing the acts of accomplices from those of the principal in a crime, the Court observe that there is no occasion to insert a count charging a party with being an accomplice, when he is charged with being a principal in the crime.

Western Provinces, 22nd August, 1853.

No. 110.

It is not necessary to charge a party with being an accomplice, when he is charged with being a principal in a crime.

THE Court desire to notify, for general information, that when a party is charged with being a principal in a crime, it is not necessary to charge him in a second count with being an accomplice in the same.

TO THE SESSIONS JUDGES AND MAGISTRATES IN THE LOWER PROVINCES.

Lower Provinces, 31st August, 1853.

No. 111.

Magisterial authorities will, in their calendar of commitments, under the columns of circumstantial evidence, classify witnesses according to the nature of their evidence, indicating by a heading in red ink the subject to which the witnesses are expected to testify.

They will also, with the calendar, when more than one prisoner is included in it, submit an additional statement in the form pre-

I AM directed by the Court to request, that the following instructions may be carefully followed in future, in all cases of commitments and referred trials, to which they may be applicable.

1. The Magistrates in the calendar of commitment, under the columns of circumstantial evidence, will classify the witnesses according to the nature of their evidence, indicating by a heading in red ink the particular subject-matter to which the witnesses are expected to testify. It is of course impossible to lay down rules to meet every case, but the specimen given in the margin, as taken from a Midnapore calendar, where this practice has been adopted by the magistrate, will sufficiently show the nature of the classification required.

Examined witnesses Nos. 5, 6. Heard a noise, and on going to plaintiff's house found him lying wounded.

Joynarain.

Examined witnesses 7, 8, 9. Saw prisoners 2, 3, 4 near the village on the evening previous to the dacoity.

Petamber Sain.
Issurchundur.
Bhurut Naik.

2. In addition to the calendar and other documents, now sent to the sessions judge on a commitment, the magistrates will, whenever more than one prisoner is included in the calendar, prepare a statement in the tabular form, marked A, sent herewith, filling up carefully such of the columns as may be necessary in the particular case from the evidence taken before themselves and the police. The sessions judge, who tries the case, will fill up the third comparative column from the evidence given before him, and in all cases, either referred or appealed to, or called for by the Court, this statement will form part of the nuthee.

scribed, which will form part of the nuthee in all cases referred to, or called for by the Court.

In referred cases the sessions judge will note in red ink, in the margin of his report, the name and number of the witness to whom he may refer.

3. In cases referred to the Court, the sessions judges are directed to insert in red ink in the margin, the name and number of the witness or witnesses to whose evidence they are alluding in their report.

The sessions judge will, in his English decision and report on criminal trials, confine himself to a clear and concise statement of the case, concluding with the reasons on which his judgment is formed, and will avoid all lengthy recapitulations of evidence.

4. The Court take this opportunity to point out to the sessions judges, that in their English decisions and reports on criminal trials, they should endeavour to confine themselves to a clear and concise statement of the case, concluding with the reasons on which their judgment is formed. All lengthy recapitulation of evidence should be avoided, and in the narration of the facts, reference should be made marginally to the several witnesses by whom the facts, in their proper order, are established in evidence. Due attention to these remarks will ensure a considerable saving of time to both the sessions judges and the Court.

TO THE CRIMINAL AUTHORITIES IN THE LOWER PROVINCES.

Lower Provinces, 28th September, 1853.

No. 112.

I AM directed to forward, for your information and guidance, copy of the accompanying correspondence with the Board of Revenue.

Course to be pursued by a magistrate in requiring collectors to attach the lands of absentees, under the provisions of Regulation XI. of 1793.

From the Officiating Secretary to the Board of Revenue, to the Register of the Sudder Dewanny Adawlut, No. 199, dated the 13*th September*, 1853.

SIR,

I am directed by the Board of Revenue to request, that you will ascertain the Court's opinion as to the degree of precision which should be observed by magistrates, in requiring collectors to attach the lands of absentees under the provisions of Regulation XI. of 1796.

LAND REVENUE.
H. Ricketts, and E. Currie, Esqrs.

2. The requisition is peremptory on the revenue authorities, but it is often couched in very vague, terms in consequence of the magistrate being ignorant of the nature and extent of the property which he wishes to be attached. It may happen that no such name as that of the proclaimed absentee is to be found on the collector's books as joint proprietor in the estate named by the magistrate. His name may not be found on the collector's books at all, either as the recorded proprietor of any estate or as paying in any portion of its revenue. The course which should be taken by the collector under such circumstances is not clear.

3. The Court will observe from the correspondence with the Commissioner of the Jessore Division, annexed* in the copy to this letter, that in order to ensure the fullest co-operation of the revenue with the police authorities, they have in a case in which the collector hesitated to attach, on indefinite information, prescribed mofussil inquiry on his part. But though the law gives him power to conduct such inquiry, the Board doubt, whether the collector can or ought to be held responsible for the consequences of acting on its results. The investigation is one for which the magistrate has all the necessary agency: and that the responsibility of identifying an absentee's property should rest with him, seems but a reasonable check on the power which he has of issuing a precept to the collector.

4. Should the Court take this view of the duty of the magistrate, the Board will refrain hereafter from issuing such instructions as those just noticed. They will, however, take care that collectors cordially co-operate with the magistrates to the full extent permitted by their records or by the information they may otherwise have acquired.

I have, &c.,

A. GROTE,
Officiating Secretary.

From the Register of the Sudder Dewanny Adawlut, to the Secretary to the Board of Revenue, No 1693, dated the 28*th September*, 1853.

SIR,

I am directed by the Court to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, No. 199, dated 13th instant, with its enclosures, and in reply to communicate the following observations for the information of the Board.

SUDDER DEWANNY ADAWLUT.
Present
Sir R Barlow, Bart,
J R Colvin, and J Dunbar, Esqrs } Judges.
and
A J M Mills, and H T Raikes, Esqrs } Officiating Judges.

2 The Court are of opinion that it is incumbent on the collector to afford to the magistrate, upon a precept to that effect received from him, all the information that he may possess or can procure, in order to assist the magistrate, in identifying and specifying the lands or property, the attachment of which the magistrate may be desirous to order. This duty of the collector is therefore preliminary to the issue of an order for attachment by the magistrate, who on the receipt of the necessary information would issue judicial directions on the subject. The duty of the collector, upon the receipt of these directions, would consist solely in taking possession of the lands or property specified by the magistrate and managing them to the best advantage until further orders.

3 I am directed to add, that the objections of third parties to the attachment of lands of which the collector takes possession, on the direction of the magistrate, should be preferred to the magistrate who has given the order for the attachment, from whose orders an appeal lies of course to the superior criminal courts. So also any resistance to the proceedings of the collector in taking possession of the property would be a resistance of the process of the magistrate and punishable by him.

I have, &c,

C. T. BUCKLAND,
Register.

Lower Provinces, 18th November, 1853.

No. 113.

When a magistrate shall have occasion to tender a conditional pardon, under Clause 3, Section 3, Regulation X. of 1824, he will, if it be accepted, immediately record a roobukaree stating the fact and his reasons for making the tender, which roobukaree will, on commitment of the case, be annexed by the sessions judge to the evidence taken by him.

THE Court, having observed that the practice enjoined in Clause 3, Section 3, Regulation X. of 1824, is not invariably followed, direct me to call the attention of the magisterial authorities to the provisions of that law, and to require that whenever a magistrate may have occasion to tender a conditional pardon under the law in question, he will, if it be accepted, immediately record a roobukaree, stating the fact of his having offered the pardon, and the reasons which induced him to make the offer.

2. If the case is committed to the sessions, the judge will be careful to annex this roobukaree to the deposition taken by him, from the party who has thus become a witness through the offer of pardon.

SIR,

Judicial Department.

IT being very desirable that the commissioners of divisions, in their capacity of superintendents of police, should be kept fully informed of the course and result of the trials held upon the commitments made by the several officers exercising magisterial authority under them, I am desired by his Honor the Lieutenant Governor to request that the several sessions judges may be instructed, after the despatch to the Court of their monthly statements of the cases of prisoners convicted and acquitted, to forward the office copies of those statements for the perusal of the commissioners, to whose circles the districts may appertain.

2. The commissioners will be directed from this office, to return these office copies after perusal, to the sessions judges, within a brief period, not exceeding one week after their receipt.

3. This practice is not intended to supersede the rule under which it is the duty of the sessions judges to bring to the notice of the commissioners, with their own remarks, any particular case in which the proceedings of the magisterial and police officers, as shown in trials before them, may, in their judgment, call for the special interference or comment of the superior police authority.

STOLEN PROPERTY.

1. Magistrates will certify to courts of circuit the execution of orders for restoration of stolen property found on prisoners convicted, and such certificate shall be preserved among the records of the said Courts. 5th May 1796, No. 5, Vol. I, ... 2

2. Magistrates will, relative to the search by Police officers for stolen or plundered property, conform strictly to the Rules contained in Section 16, Regulation XX 1817, and will be particular in transmitting the chalan of stolen or suspected property obtained during a search in the form No. 3, prescribed by that Regulation; and judges of circuit will enter upon the record of such trial, the original chalan, with a Persian translation, when the original may be in any other language. 24th November 1821, No. 247, Vol. I., ... 76

3. Courts of circuit and magistrates to number and describe articles of stolen or plundered property, according to the number and description affixed to them in the chalan, which the Police Darogah is required to transmit by Clause 2, Section 16, Regulation XX. 1817. 16th May 1823, No. 276, Vol. I., ... 81

STOLEN PROPERTY, RECEIPT OF.

theft or robbery, and those who are convicted of having such property in their possession, knowing the same to have been stolen at a time subsequent to their receiving or purchasing it. 12th August 1813, No 124, Vol. I. 44

2. It is in the discretion of the Magistrate not to punish at all in cases in which no criminal act shall appear to be fairly imputable to the bonâ fide purchaser or possessor of property acquired by robbery or theft. 25th January 1819, No. 215, Vol. I., ... 70

3. When possession of property is determined in the circumstances, to be an offence punishable, by the futwa, at discretion, it should be punished as a misdemeanor not of a very serious nature, and the sentence should not be the same as for the offence of criminal receipt, but should, in most cases, be equal to that to which magistrates are limited by Regulation XII. 1818, and when a higher penalty is adjudged, the grounds of the sentence should be inserted in the abstract statement of prisoners punished without reference.—Ibid

4. Law officers, when intending to convict of criminal receipt of stolen property or property acquired by robbery or theft, should specify in their futwa the evidence as well to the mode and circumstances of the receipt as to the mere fact of possession.—Ibid.

5. Attention of the criminal authorities directed to Construction No. 857; and instructions communicated relative to the wording of charges for receiving stolen or plundered property. L. P., 19th September, No. 215, and W. P, 10th November 1845, No. 217, Vol. III, ... 399
